Statewide ice fishing festival makes a cold day merry

BY KAREN ENGDAHL
The Shopper

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. - "I went ice fishing!" exclaimed youngster Leif Hanchett as he crossed the icy parking lot at Hoyt's Landing, fishing gear in hand. He cheerfully admitted he had not caught a fish, but that did not dim his enthusiasm. "They just pulled out a gigantic fish out there!" he said, looking up at his mom, Kim Hanchett, for confirmation.

"It was a huge northern pike!" she said, sharing his excitement. "And they're going to clean it out on the ice."

Vermont's ice fishing festival occurs annually in concert with free ice fishing day, and the 2017 celebration was held at Hoyt's Landing on the Connecticut River in Springfield. It was estimated well over 200 people participated in the festival.

Some were youngsters trying the sport for the first time; some were seasoned veterans eager to share their knowledge; all were enjoying a day of free ice fishing, plus extra activities provided by the Vermont Dept. of Fish and Wildlife.

Governor Phil Scott made an appearance and spent a couple of hours. An ice fisherman himself, he walked around and chatted with many of those fishing.

People of all ages crowded the landing with similar stories. Participants, some from Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Connecticut, caught perch, walleye and crappie. One lucky angler caught a 31-inch, 7-pound northern pike.

Staff from Vermont Fish & Wildlife, instructors from the Let's Go Fishing program, and volunteers from the University of Vermont's Wildlife and Fisheries Society were on hand to teach ice fishing basics, including knot tying, drilling holes, rigging and using an ice fishing rod, setting tip-ups and preparing for a day on the ice. Fishing regulations and fish identification were covered as well.

Brooke Tommaney and Chris Griffin estimated about 150 people had already registered to fish by noon, with three hours to go in the day.

"We've been steady," said Griffin. "People are having a good time."

No doubt the youngest fisherman at the event, 2-month-old Gabe Taddei snuggled in his infant carrier close to mom Kelsey Taddei.

"He's having fun fishing," she said. "We just made a trip back to the car for a pacifier and he's good to go!"

Fish and Wildlife staff operated a fish fry station out on the ice to cook up participants' catches and offered other refreshments, including plenty of hot cocoa. Several warming huts were available for anglers to use. Ice fishing equipment was available on loan, but many participants brought their own gear.

Celebrate the return of the light with Celtic song and harp

BY MARY ELLEN CANNON
The Shopper

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. - St. Bridget's Day will be celebrated in early Celtic song and Gaelic wire harp at Immanuel Episcopal Church in Bellows Falls Friday, Feb. 3, 7:30-9 p.m., sponsored by Stone Church Arts.

James Ruff steps himself in early Scottish and Irish song and harp. Ruff's performance, revolving around St. Bridget, draws in other Celtic saints and heroes. His Stone Church performance falls on an ancient Celtic holiday, Imbolc, halfway between Winter Solstice and Spring Equinox. In Celtic lore Brigid is the goddess of healing, poetry, and metal smiths. When Christianity took over the island, the healing, new growth, creativity, and inspiration of Brigid were preserved in St. Bridget. On Imbolc in Scotland and Ireland, a farmer could consider planting soon. Like here, the light is returning.

Candles symbolize light returning and Jesus as light of the world. Christians celebrated Candlemas, a holy day for blessing candles. Roman Catholic calendars list the holiday as "The Presentation of the Lord." Ancient Jewish tradition called for purification for the new mother followed by presentation of a son at temple on the 40th day.

Punxatawney Phil, the groundhog who predicts more winter or an early spring on Feb. 2, weaves into the story. Punxatawney Phil stems from Candlemas lore of clear skies with shadow falling on a hedgehog, foretelling a longer winter or overcast for early spring. German immigrants to Pennsylvania transferred the tradition onto groundhogs. A newspaper editor in 1886 designated his hometown groundhog, "Punxatawney Phil" as the true predictor. He spread Phil's fame. Punxatawney, Pennsylvania, cashes in on the tradition each year with a weeklong festival.

Again we see healing and purification. St. Blais and St. Bridget are called upon for healing. St. Blais, an Armenian saint who chose death over denouncing his faith, is credited with saving a boy with a fishbone caught in his throat. A priest using two unlit candles blessed a son at temple on St. Blais Day, Feb. 3. Candles and fire form part of Brigid's celebrations.

Immanuel Episcopal Church, home of Stone Church Arts, designed for excellence in acoustics and elegance, creates a fitting venue for Ruff's voice and harp. Completed in 1869, the church exemplifies 14th century French Gothic style.

Light returns! Ruff brings Celtic music to celebrate! For more information, visit stonechurcharts.org. Immanuel Episcopal Church is located at 20 Church Street in Bellows Falls.

District VI Winter Music Festival

Students from the High School Concert Choir perform at the Winter Music Festival.

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. - Bellows Falls Union High School welcomed 117 student musicians from fifteen different schools to the Winter Festival last weekend. The students performed in one of three ensembles, the Middle School Concert Band, High School Concert Choir, or the High School Jazz Band on Sat., January 28.

These students auditioned for their respective ensembles in November, waited patiently to find out if they had been selected, and then worked tediously to prepare their music for the two-day festival. After arriving at the festival, the students were directed by a guest conductor as they worked to polish the pieces in preparation for the concert.

The concert began with the Middle School Concert Band, directed by Glenn Giles, a professor at Castleton University. He received a B.S. in Music Education from Castleton University and an M.M. in Instrumental Conducting from the University of Maine. He is a guest conductor and clinician in Northern New England and a member of the Vermont Music Educators' Association.

He's taught in the Rutland area for 44 years.

The concert band, which included four members of the Black River Middle School, performed "At the Crossroads," a dedicatory fanfare for Band by Robert W. Smith, "Country Wildflowers" by Larry Daehn, and "The Forge of Vulcan" by Michael Sweeney.

The conductor, Prof. Giles, asked the audience to sing with the band on their last piece, a patriotic "Let Freedom Ring!" by Ed Huckeby. The conductor acknowledged and thanked the families and teachers of the students in the Band, and exited after explaining the importance of a quality music education to both the student and the world around them.

With drastic shifts and changes being made in education, it is even more important that students receive a well-rounded education and the opportunity to pursue their passions.

The High School Concert Choir performed next, although their original guest conductor did not direct them. Stephen A. Paparo, professor at the University of Massachusetts - Amherst, was only able to direct half of the rehearsals. He fell sick Friday evening and was not able to come to rehearsals Saturday morning.

Miraculously, Andrea Nardone, Choral conductor and educator at Hartford High School, stepped in to conduct the District Choir, polishing the pieces and directing the Chorus in the concert.

The Concert Choir, which included four members of Black River Middle School and pianist Patty Meyer from Brattleboro, began with a traditional piece, "With a Voice of Singing" by Martin Shaw, and "Blow, Blow, Thou Winter Wind" by John Rutter. Their next piece, "Hine Ma Tov" arranged by Allan E. Naplan, featured a clarinet soloist Elijah Taylor from Brattleboro Union High School. Next, they performed "Sing Me To Heaven" by Daniel Gawthrop, a beautiful lyrical tale of life and love. They concluded their portion of the concert with "Son de Camaguey," by Stephen Hatfield, which was incredibly fun, light-hearted, and rhythmically accompanied by music directors.

The Jazz Band brought an end to the concert and festival. John Mastroianni, who currently works in public schools in Connecticut, but has performed, toured, and recorded with many jazz and pop artists, including Mel Lewis, Smokey Robinson, Gerry Mulligan, and Aretha Franklin, conducted them. He studied at the University of Bridgeport, New York University, and privately with Phil Woods, Jim McNeely, and others.

Stuart Stocker and the art of boatbuilding

BY KAREN ENGDAHL
The Shopper

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. - Stuart Stocker's love of boats and boating started when he was a teenager, launching his family's 15-foot Woodard boat (with a 50 HP Mercury outboard) into the Connecticut River at Hoyt's Landing.

"I loved waterskiing and I loved going fast," said Stocker during a recent visit to the landing.

Fast-forward many years: Stocker enjoyed a successful career as a builder-carpenter in the area and moved to Chester but continued to love his time motorboating on the Connecticut River. His first experience in a kayak came in his fiftieth year when he was invited to go kayaking with a friend. He loved that boating experience as well and started building his own kayaks about ten years later.

"I learned how to build kayaks mostly by watching videos and studying plans," he said. "Right from the start I had two main interests in kayak design. First, I wanted good performance. Then, I wanted to focus on the art work involved - the wood pattern designs."

Stocker has built about a dozen kayaks over the years, each of which is rich with woodworking detail, including intricate laminating and decorative wood pattern designs.

"The base of the boat is made with Western cedar and basswood," explained Stocker, "and the deck designs are made in a progression of colors with black walnut, Honduran mahogany, oak, Western cedar, Canbera wood, and hickory."

Stocker builds the kayaks in a small workshop at his home and uses wood from Vermont Furniture Hardwoods in Chester.

Who buys Stocker's kayaks? For a while a few years ago, Stocker says he had a website from which he sold boats (he has also built quite a few custom motorboats), but he closed the website when he officially retired. Now he only takes commissions for boats by word-of-mouth.

"I'm working on two boats this winter," he said, "but they're not for sale. I'm developing them as prototypes for my own use." "I just love being on the water," Stocker continued. "I don't want to spend all my time building and lose the chance to be on the river."

You may have a chance to talk him into building a boat for you if you visit Hoyt's Landing some lazy summer afternoon. Look for the most beautiful kayak in the river and Stocker will surely be there.

Hartness House chef brings big, bold flavors and music

BY TERRI J. HUCK

The Shopper

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. - Nick Matush's global experience, hometown roots and love of music make the talented young chef uniquely qualified to revitalize the Hartness House's restaurant in Springfield.

As soon as he was hired last spring, Matush began renovating the bar area, previously known as the Governor's Room and now simply the Hartness House Tavern.

"I spent my first two months as a general contractor," he said. Meanwhile, he was preparing breakfast every morning for the hotel's guests. In recalling that hectic time, he said with a grin, "I didn't leave here, but I didn't live here."

When the tavern reopened in July 2015, "we were flying by the seat of our pants," he added.

Since then, the tavern — which is open for dinner Thursday through Saturday and brunch on Sunday — has slowly been building its reputation. Matush describes the tavern's cuisine as "locavore pub food." The locavore movement is all about forging closer connections between farmers and consumers to support the local economy and promote healthy, delicious food, and that's just what Matush has been doing.

He also refers to his style as "vibrant world cuisine" and said, "I like big, bold flavors."

Matush began his career by studying culinary arts at the River Valley Technical Center in Springfield. His first job was at the Morning Star Café (now 56 Main Street restaurant). The owner, the late Robert "Mac" McIntyre, was an important early mentor for Matush, who quickly progressed from dishwasher to line cook. He met other chefs through McIntyre and then went to work at a restaurant in Ludlow.

But Matush soon realized that he couldn't advance as far as he wanted unless he went to culinary school, so he headed for the New England Culinary Institute's campus in the British Virgin Islands.

After he graduated, he got a job in Taos, N.M., with award-winning chef Joseph Wrede, who now has a restaurant in Santa Fe that serves "elevated New American fare...in a warm setting with a refined farmhouse feel." It's easy to see that influence at the Hartness House Tavern. Matush's menus (which he changes frequently) include items such as butternut sage fettuccini, crispy skin salmon and pork belly tacos. And the room is a pleasing combination of rustic and modern furnishings warmed by sunlight through the large windows.

Matush also worked at Little Palm Island Resort and Spa in the Florida Keys with Luis Pous, who melds Cuban and Asian cuisines, and Rafael Perez, whose G.K. Bistronomie in Miami serves up traditional Peruvian food with a modern twist.

But Matush was always itching to learn more and move up. He didn't want to be stuck as a chef de partie — or third in command behind the sous chef and head chef — so he went looking for a sous chef position and found one in Tortola, British Virgin Islands. He said he spent an intense two years there, and by the end, "I wanted out of the industry."

Restaurants in the Caribbean import most of their raw ingredients because there are so many tourists to feed, and the limitations can be frustrating. So Matush left the chef world behind to go to Ecuador and then the Caribbean island of Dominica, where he worked on remote farms and had an opportunity to observe the often lopsided connection between farmers and the food industry.

When he returned to the United States, he focused his interests in a new direction — pickling. Known as the Mad Pickler, he grew his own vegetables, pickled them and sold them at farmer's markets. (Although he no longer operates as the Mad Pickler, large jars filled with vegetables in a rainbow of colors line the shelves behind the tavern's bar.) To supplement his income, he took a job at Stemmwindler in Ludlow and spent three ski seasons back in the kitchen, which reawakened his passion for cooking.

He could have stayed at Stemmwindler, but his friend Genevieve Johnson was doing some marketing for Hartness House and convinced him to meet with the owners, who wanted to try something new with the inn's bar. Once Matush was onboard, he in turn encouraged Johnson to take on a bigger role at the inn. She is now general manager.

His goal for the tavern is to rely on local producers, and if he can't find something locally, it at least has to be organic. "It's my way of protesting against big agriculture," he said, adding that his bosses are supportive of his approach.

In addition to food, he's passionate about music. In describing his decision to take on the challenge of essentially building a restaurant from scratch, he said, "It was a great chance to create something in my hometown and get a food and music scene going."

The tavern hosts live music performances on Thursdays in the inn's living room, which has space for dancing. Matush's goal is to offer great food and danceable music, and he pointed out that people always have the option of staying overnight at the inn.

"I love music, and I want to create a party scene" and eventually attract ever-bigger musical acts, he said, adding that it was always his dream to combine his passions if he ever had a restaurant of his own.

He has two cooks now: Dyllan Battiest and sous chef Benjamin Minifie. Matush said they've been busier since Minifie joined the team, and he can feel the momentum building at a place he aptly called "one-of-a-kind in Springfield."

The tavern serves dinner Thursday through Saturday from 5 to 9 p.m. and brunch on Sunday from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. For more information about upcoming music events, go to Facebook.com/HartnessHouse.

Community home Weatherize Project

REGION - Volunteer energy groups from the neighboring towns of Cavendish, Reading, Weathersfield and Windsor will launch a community home Weatherization program. This program began in January and will run through the end of May 2017.

The four-town energy teams last collaborated in 2015-2016 to bring affordable solar systems to homeowners in the communities. Following on the success of "Solar makes $en$e" the energy teams are now hoping to encourage homeowners to reduce their need for fossil fuels, realize considerable home heating and energy savings and enjoy a warmer home in winter and cooler in summer.

Vital Communities of the Upper Valley, a non-profit organization based in White River Junction, Vermont, initiated both Solarize and Weatherize. With area volunteer help, Vital Communities is the independent coordinator that provides ideas and possibilities, for local organizations and municipalities to work together on and is geared towards a sustainable future.

The Weathersfield Kick-Off Event at the Weathersfield School on Schoolhouse Road, off Route 5, in Acutney will be an opportunity for homeowners to learn about costs, benefits, incentives and how to participate. Meet the volunteer teams and certified partner contractors and lastly, learn about Efficiency Vermont rebates and special low cost financing. Free professional consultations and quotes are being offered to homeowners interested in participating.

Vital Communities is offering great prizes, homeowners who sign up by May 31, 2017 could win up to $2,500 (in addition to rebates) towards the cost of a project.

Keep and eye out for future informational events coming near you.

easy and fun way for newcomers to get started in ice fishing, and also a great opportunity for kids and families to enjoy time together outdoors," said Nicole Meier, information and education specialist with Fish & Wildlife in an earlier statement.

Vermont's free ice fishing day, which takes place each year on the last Saturday in January, enables both residents and non-residents to go ice fishing on any legal water body in Vermont for the day without a license.

"Free ice fishing day creates opportunities for a range of anglers, and really helps to showcase the great ice fishing we have here in Vermont," said Louis Porter, commissioner of Vermont Fish & Wildlife, in an earlier statement. "From those looking to try out the sport for the first time, to nonresidents who may want to sample some of Vermont's quality fisheries, the day offers full accessibility to great ice fishing fun across Vermont."

MUSIC

The Jazz Band began with "Don't Get Sassy," written by Thad Jones and arranged by Carubia, "Crescent City Stomp" by Eric Richards, and Work Song by Nat Adderley, arranged by Mastroianni. Their final piece, "Coffee Queen," was written by John Mastroianni. Each of the seventeen members of this select ensemble had the opportunity to solo, creating a beautiful, musical, art for everyone to enjoy.

All in all, it is the work done behind the scenes by music educators, students, parents, and the host school that support musical opportunities for middle and high school students. These music festivals are incredible opportunities for young musicians to cultivate, explore, and develop their passion for music and make lifelong friends and memories.

Springfield mother-daughter "divas" appear in opera

BY KAREN ENGDAHL

The Shopper

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. - While she was growing up, Nikki Carmody was surrounded by the sounds of opera, and it became a basic element of her musical life. Recently she and her daughter, Caithness Cammarata, sang in the chorus for two performances of "Il Trovatore," an opera presented by the Brattleboro-based Windham Orchestra, deepening their affection for the art form.

"My mom loved opera!" said Carmody. "She sang opera around the house and listened to it constantly. When she was a kid living outside New York City she and her brother would sneak out of the house to go to the Met [Metropolitan Opera]. I fell asleep every night listening to opera. I couldn't understand it, but I grew to love it. When I finally attended my first opera, "La Boheme," I was hooked."

According to Carmody, she and her daughter learned about the "Il Trovatore" opportunity through an announcement at a Springfield Community Chorus rehearsal.

"My mom was all excited to sing in the production," said Cammarata, "so I decided to join her. It was a lot of fun. I loved listening to the soloists and seeing how it all came together. But it was a long performance - the opera lasts almost four hours!"

"It was emotionally intense!" added Carmody.

for the pair. Carmody described their earliest duet ventures as "singing Karaoke at the old Casa del Sol in Windsor when Cait was about 8 years old." A crowd favorite, the youngster made her solo debut with "Over the Rainbow" at the Windsor venue.

"When I was 10, I went to New York and tried out for 'America's Got Talent,'" said Cammarata. "We had to stand in line for more than ten hours! I only got to sing for about ninety seconds, but it was amazing."

Though she didn't make the cut for "America's Got Talent," Cammarata continued to pursue singing opportunities in the community and beyond. She has been a member of the Springfield Community Chorus as well as choruses at Springfield High School. She has also studied intensively during summer music camps in Utah and locally with Village Harmony. Her plans for the future include a summer in Tampa, perhaps working with Disney, to learn more about the music industry.

Mom and daughter will also continue with local music projects in the days to come. They are perfecting their acts for the Claremont Talent Show on Feb. 18, Carmody preparing an operatic aria, Puccini's "O Mio Babbino Caro" ["Oh, my dear Papa"] and Cammarata, "At Last," an Etta James classic. Carmody also plans to sing with the Springfield Community Chorus for its 50th anniversary concert in the spring featuring Beethoven's Ninth Symphony.

Ice report

BY MARY ELLEN CANNON

The Shopper

REGION - Sun on Lake Warren in Alstead, N.H., Saturday morning, Jan. 28, made for ice fishing fun and some skating fun. Matt Day's ice holes all show 15 inches of ice. Ice skating conditions were okay but not great, as a skim of snow took the glass polish off in most places.

At Hoyt's Landing in Springfield, Vt., near the I-91 entrance, Vermont Fish & Wildlife staff explained they had monitored ice thickness closely for their ice fishing festival and reported 8 to 12 inches. Lots of footprints embedded in the ice deterred from skating fun but some less walked-over areas were okay.

The Fish & Wildlife staff caution that ice is variable and warn to stay away from the river. Their safety tips include:

- avoid going onto ice if it has melted away from shore
- be extremely cautious crossing ice near river mouths, points of land, bridges, islands and over reefs and springs

- leave information on your plans and go with a friend
- bring a fully charged cell phone
- carry a set of hand spikes to help you work your way out if you go through ice
- be aware waves from open water can quickly break up large areas of ice
- leave your car or truck on shore

Local on-land outdoor rinks have fared poorly given fluctuating conditions. The area behind St. John's Episcopal Church in Walpole has a snow cover. Alstead Fire Dept. volunteers were close to great ice in the riding ring area by the gazebo in Alstead when 50-degree weather hit to wipe out the effort. Kids got two days of skating in. Inquiries about skating in Bellows Falls didn't lead to any outdoor rink.

Alstead Historical Society receives grant

ALSTEAD, N.H. - Bruce Bellows, president of the Alstead Historical Society, announced recently that they have been the recipient a grant from the New Hampshire License Plate Program (Moose Plate) for the conversation and preservation of Alstead's Record Book A. Bruce and AHS member Sam Sutcliffe worked on the proposal with conservators Carolyn Frisa and Raven Norlander-McCarty of Works on Paper in Bellows Falls, Vt. and sent it to the New Hampshire State Library last spring. The finished book will be bound by Malcolm Summers of The Chester Bookworm in Chester, Vermont.

Record Book A is the Alstead town clerk's record dating from 1763 to 1800 and contains within its 360 pages town meeting results, birth, death and marriage records of the residents, road layouts and other pertinent information concerning the birth and life of the town. When completed, the book will not only be conserved, but there will be available to the public digitized copies as well as microfilmed versions of the book. Those interested in doing research on the beginnings of the town as well as family records will have access through the New Hampshire State Library, the Alstead Historical Society as well as the Shedd-Porter Library in Alstead Village.

Westminster Fire and Rescue news

WESTMINSTER, Vt. - Thank you to Richard and Melanie and the kitchen staff at Kurn Hattin, Sally Rhea, Joan Holton, Judy Harrison and Annie Walker for providing food to feed everyone three meals during a multi truck accident on January 20.

A great way to help the people who help the community is preparing food for the fire fighters when they are out for an extended period of time, having something to eat and drink when they return is a huge compliment. Also when there are special events requiring a large number of people to be fed, having volunteers to help prepare food is helpful. If you are available and are willing to be on a call list for these occasions call Chief Cole Streeter or June Streeter let them know.

Some of the volunteers of the Westminster Fire Department helped flood the area for the ice skating rink on the East Side of the Westminster Central School; it is now open to the public.

Donations in January were from Frank & Mary Mitchell, Bruce MacDuffie, Westminster Cares, Bellows Falls Rotary, Best Septic, in memory of Ernie Norman from Bob and Sue Lober, in memory of Joan Sumner from Bob and Sue Lober.

Anyone interested in volunteering their time to help the community in a time of need, please contact Chief Cole Streeter at 722-3178. We would like to have additional volunteers from the Westminster West area. There is a Fire House, an engine and a rescue vehicle located in Westminster West and more help is always welcome to utilize that equipment during calls.

As always, we would like to thank the members of the community for its continued support of the fire department. Check us out on our website www.westminsterfireandrescue.org.

Falls Mane Salon fulfills owner's dream

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. - Fulfilling a lifelong dream of one day becoming a business owner took a tremendous amount of work and determination, but Myriah Clark of Bellows Falls has done just that. Her new business, Falls Mane Salon, has opened at 81 Atkinson St. in Bellows Falls.

Clark has spent most of her working career as a hair stylist and has built a strong client base. After she and her husband purchased the building, formally the People's United Bank, they got creative and within a few months renovated the space into a beautiful modern salon with three styling stations and manicure and pedicure chairs. Clark opened her doors on Tuesday, Jan. 24, and was greeted by many of her clients and wellwishers.

The Clarks built the salon with the idea that other stylists would lease space to run their own business out of her newly renovated location. Clark is pleased to announce that stylists JoAnna Dickerson and Brittany Bailly have joined her in her new space. JoAnna's Glamorama, formerly of downtown Bellows Falls, will now operate out of the Atkinson Street salon.

For information or to book an appointment, call 802-463-4000, or visit the salon's Facebook page. Walk-ins are always welcome. The salon will be open Tuesday through Saturday and offers extended evening hours.

Merger Committee schedules informational Act 46 forums

REGION - The Northshire Merger Study Committee has scheduled a slate of forums to inform the voting public on the details of the proposed school district merger to be voted on by Australian Ballot on March 7, 2017. In two subsequent votes late last year, the committee and the State Board of Education unanimously agreed that it is advisable that the Danby, Dorset, Manchester, Mountain Towns RED (comprised of Londonderry, Peru, Weston and Landgrove), Mt. Tabor and Sunderland school districts merge into one Regional Education District.

(Manchester) is looking forward to further connecting with community members. He said, "During town meeting time, we typically have to focus on matters strictly germane to our town and school district. This merger proposal will push all of us to expand our thinking to consider a potential long-term relationship with our neighbors. Having grown up here, I know firsthand the natural bond we share with the communities involved in this proposed merger. While this year's Town Meeting will be a unique experience for us all, I am confident that in the coming months the voters will reflect the thoughtful, open-minded, and inquisitive attitude that has been the trademark of our 17-member committee." Vice-chair Richard Grip added to Wilson's sentiment, "I moved from Newfane to Dorset five years ago so my daughters could attend BBA. As a demographer, I work with many school districts in the Northeast who are conducting feasibility studies on merging, or in some cases, de-regionalizing. When I moved to this area, I realized how invested people are in exploring opportunities that enhance our education system. I think we will see more of the same in these upcoming forums." To get the details of the proposed merger, Wilson recommends voters read the merger report, which was approved by the State Board of Education. You can read this document, along with many more, at the following website: <https://sites.google.com/site/northshirmergerstudy/>. He also recommends voters follow the committee on Facebook @northshirmergerstudy. Wilson added, "The primary reason we explored a merger is Act 46. This is not to say that a merger would be unwise without the existence of this school governance reform legislation. Before Act 46, in 2012, the Landgrove, Peru, Weston, and Londonderry school districts voluntarily and successfully merged into the Mountain Towns RED." The upcoming forums are:

The Big Cheese

Recently I was researching the 1871 Vermont Journal in the collection of the Springfield Art & Historical Society. While I didn't find what I was looking for I did make an interesting discovery.

In the April 29, 1871, Vermont Journal I found mention of a cheese factory to be built on North Street in Chester and scheduled to open later that summer. In the October 9, 1871, issue I found the opening dedication. I have copied it below as printed.

"The dedication of the new cheese factory took place at Chester on Tuesday of last week. Everything but the clouds appeared to favor one of the largest gatherings of people ever known in town.

Inauspicious as were the signs of the morning, however great crowds flocked to the place from every direction. A procession of more than a mile in length began to move at 10 o'clock, in the following order: Grafton Brass Band; the mammoth cheese drawn by six horses; a cow in a wagon; the fire department with their engine, splendidly trimmed; a town team drawn by 105 pairs of oxen in one string; company of antiques and horribles mounted and on foot, under the command of J.B. Cram; invited guests and 'citizens generally.' About 11 o'clock it began raining, which dampened the ardor of all, but they kept on till the end of the route. Leander Wetherell of Boston arrived on the noon train and began his address on 'dairy husbandry,' but was interrupted and obliged to wait until evening, when he finished it in the town hall. It is estimated that over three thousand people were present. A delegation consisting of 100 teams started from Charlestown, N.H., and turned back on account of the rain. The mammoth cheese, weighing 732 pounds, was given away to the crowd, who stood in the rain while eating it. A banner carried on the wagon with the cheese was inscribed, 'weighty but not mithey'."

I know a little about the Antiques and the Horribles. They were a local marching band that dressed in exaggerated costumes. One account I found described them this way:

"They were led by Jim Cram. Over his shoulder he carried a tin sword more than six feet long. He wore an enormous artificial nose, and had a 'fair ground belly' stuffed with straw, the Boston Cultivator, an agriculture magazine distributed throughout New England. Wetherell also addressed the New York State assembly in 1889 regarding dairy practices.

The cheese factory was located on the upper end of North Street near the cemetery and on that side of the street. It shows up on the 1905 Sanborn Insurance map but is not present on the 1925 map.

Chester Town Hall was built in 1884 so it was not the site of Wetherell's speech. He would have spoken at either the Baptist Church or the Stone Church on North Street, as both served for town meetings prior to 1884.

The photo with this article is in the collection of the Chester Historical Society. I have not seen any photos of the parade. Do you have one?

One hundred and five pair of oxen would be close to 1,000 feet in length. A 732-pound cheese divided among 3,000 people would be about four ounces per person.

The Feb. 19 Antiques Roundtable will feature horses, including: work horses, show horses or riding horses. We are looking for exhibitors to show saddles, spurs, bridles, photos, etc. I will show an antique 1860s McClellan Civil War saddle and part of my Dan Patch collection. The historical society will show our WWI McClellan saddle along with old photos of horses. This is your chance to show off your horses.

The March 12 Roundtable will feature musicians who make, repair and play their own instruments. Erik Johansson has already signed up. Each musician will show and talk about their instruments and each will be given a few minutes to play on the stage at Chester Town Hall. Later all will play together on the stage for as long as they like. This is a unique opportunity to show visitors what you do and jam a little.

This week's old saying: "You can lead your son to college but you can't make him think."

and he was sweating profusely. Behind him came every conceivable kind of hobo. What they lacked in musical ability they made up for with volume and enthusiasm."

In a separate document I found that in 1888 the cheese factory produced 100,000 pounds of cheese. Not bad for a seasonal operation. They closed for the winter months. All of the milk they used came from local farms.

Vermont bill could extend more freedom to student publications

Many of us can remember working on student newspapers when we were in high school.

It was a lot of fun, loads of work, and sometimes what we wrote never made it past the principal/censor at the school.

All sorts of reasons were used to keep stories out of the paper, some valid, some with the "because I can" answer we all loved hearing as kids.

That could change in Vermont, where a bill has been introduced in the legislature to extend more freedom to student publications.

Considering the current political climate in our nation, it's probably coming at just the right time.

Senate Bill 18 of 2017 would do away with the authority of school officials to block the publication of student media content unless it is libelous or slanderous, violates the law, invades privacy, or "materially and substantially" incites school disruption.

That should cover the time-worn excuse that something printed in a school newspaper might disrupt the school. Anything printed in any publication might disrupt something somewhere, so school administrators used that one to censor whatever they wanted to.

The Students Rights Freedom of Expression Bill is modeled after one in Arizona, and seven other states have passed versions of the legislation.

The legislation would apply to both public and private schools, as well as colleges and universities in the state.

As a local example, the Burlington High School newspaper, the Register, printed an article about harassment and a student supporter of Donald Trump. As a result, the school administration announced it will review all articles before publication.

At a legislative hearing, Kelsey Neubauer, student editor in chief of The Vermont Cynic, the student-run newspaper at UVM, said the university's hands-off policy toward the publication has allowed the staff to write stories that might not have ever been seen if prior review was mandated.

She said they published an investigative article about the university's food service contractor and its labor practices that led the university to improve things. The article earned a second place award for the 2015 Story of the Year from the Associated Collegiate Press.

School administrators can censor student speech under a 1988 U.S. Supreme Court ruling that said "ungrammatical, poorly written, inadequately researched, biased or prejudiced, vulgar or profane, or unsuitable for immature audiences."

That pretty much covers everything, so since then, some of the most innocuous and also some of the best stories have been stopped from publication using that ruling.

Some school districts are probably already thinking of reasons this bill is a bad idea, so who knows if it will ever become law.

But it is a good step in the right direction. We hope it or a version of it does eventually become law.

Op-Ed: Millennials to the rescue in Vermont's demographics crisis

Vermont's dirty little secret is out in the open. The Green Mountain State is the victim of a demographic shift. The state needs more young people and middle-class families - that is, more people paying taxes and fees.

The election of Gov. Phil Scott helped bring the secret out of the shadows.

With the rise of news stories about Vermont's young people leaving the state in search of better-paying jobs, so, too, has its middle class begun to shrink. For example, 64 percent of Vermont's high school graduates go out of state for college, and many never return.

"We must acknowledge ... our demographic and workforce challenges," Scott said during his inauguration address. "It's a complex problem and it will not be solved overnight. ... We literally cannot afford to ignore this issue anymore."

Shrinking workforce

Between 2000 and 2010 - during the governorships of Democrat Howard Dean and Republican Jim Douglas - Vermonters between the ages of 25 and 45 declined by 30,000.

Things didn't improve much under Democrat Gov. Peter Shumlin.

"Since 2010, we've lost 16,000 workers ... and that downward trend continues," Scott said. "We are losing 2,300 more every year, which means, by tomorrow, we'll have six fewer workers than we have today."

As Scott also warned while lieutenant governor when his statewide "Everyday Jobs Initiative" hit the road, such losses erode the state's tax base and scare away new businesses. "Those losses [are] making Vermont less and less affordable for those who remain," he said.

Middle class blues

Between 1980 and 2015, Vermont's middle class shrank 12 percent, according to a 2016 report by the left-leaning Public Assets Institute of Vermont. Meanwhile, job growth has flattened.

During the 2016 campaign, Scott said he'd like to see Vermont's population expand from 625,000 to 700,000 over the next decade.

"This is a pretty tall order - maybe unattainable," said Rob Roper, president of the Ethan Allen Institute, a right-leaning free-markets think tank. "Our state's population is stagnant, and if we want to be able to continue paying for government services, we need to find a way to increase the number of citizens paying taxes into the treasury."

During his budget address earlier in the week, Scott said $750,000 will be earmarked for outreach marketing that targets young people, working families and new businesses.

Local action

Business leaders in Rutland and surrounding communities aren't waiting for Scott or legislators to wave a magic wand. Their aim is to start taking action now.

Rutland's shifting demographics are a microcosm of the rest of Vermont. As Mary Cohen of the Rutland Region Chamber of Commerce sees it, stopping and reversing Rutland County's population declines is critical to the economic health of the Rutland and Killington resort region and beyond.

Cohen said a new, multi-tiered marketing campaign aimed at young people and others is set to start within six months. It's the opening salvo of a decade-long blitz.

Rutland's target audiences are Millennials and mid-career professionals looking to get something more of life. There's also a tourist component. "If we can get them here to visit, we know many will want to live here, too," Cohen said.

Millennials can help the Vermont population expand in the next 10 years.

Skill sets

Cohen said Rutland-area employers have jobs, but not enough individuals with the right set of skills locally.

For example, health-care employers need trained people with med-tech and nursing degrees, and manufacturers, like G.E. Aviation in Rutland, are looking for electronics and mechanical engineering candidates.

With a first-year budget of $200,000, Cohen said her partnership received funding from local businesses. Rutland City government kicked in $50,000 for the first year.

The campaign team includes the Chamber and the Rutland Economic Development Corporation, as well as local boosters, advertising and media experts, and other key professionals.

"While Rutland City and the region have made significant strides toward revitalization, growing our population and visitation are vital," Cohen said.

Roper agrees about growth, but he believes a free-market approach will work best to solve the demographic crisis in the long run.

"Vermont has a reputation for being a hard place to make a living. It only makes sense that we make it easy for recent graduates to, for example, ski during the day, work a part-time job in the evenings, supplement their incomes driving for Uber and rent out the spare room over the garage through Airbnb," Roper said.

"The myriad regulations standing in the way of this kind of economic flexibility for both employers and employees need to be scrapped, and Vermont should lead the way into the 21st century with a clarion call for Millennials to come help us do it," he said.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

Nitka's notes from the State House

The governor presented his budget address this week to a joint assembly of the House and Senate. He received enthusiastic applause as he entered the chamber and in the Hall of Flags outside the chamber, where there was a gauntlet of state police and wellwishers. Inside, agency heads and commissioners were present sitting in the balcony. They are Governor Scott's team and looked ready to tackle their new jobs. Most are new appointees and others were previously employed by the Shumlin administration. They have a wide range of experience and will work at agencies with vastly different missions, from the Fish and Wildlife Department to Corrections.

There was enthusiastic clapping for many of the governor's initiatives and looks of puzzlement by some members regarding others. Since the time of the address, we have been receiving emails asking how certain proposals will work and from where will the funding come. The majority of the contacts are about the education changes, renegotiating teacher contracts that are already in place, moving the school budget vote date from Town Meeting Day to May 23, and moving child care and retired teachers' health care to the Ed Fund, which comes from property taxes. No one mentions the money that will be transferred from other funds to support some of these changes and what will not be funded or receive additional support.

The proposed closing of the Windsor Prison Work Camp will require thoughtful planning for the prisoners and the town of Windsor. The closure will reportedly save four million dollars. There is more money for higher education and for the Vermont Training Fund to focus on the trades. Four more counselors will be hired to work in the Small Business Development Centers, while additional funding will be used to promote Vermont as a jobs destination. The budget appropriates $800,000 to the opiate treatment hub in St. Albans and makes $1,300,000 in investments into the criminal justice system for the opiate crisis.

There is a great deal in the new budget to figure out at this point and a lot of work to be done in many sectors around the state to be able to accomplish some of the goals.

Related to the opiate problem is a new bill in the Senate Judiciary Committee, S. 22, which has to do with fentanyl, the substance that is taking the lives of many of our Vermont citizens and is frequently combined with heroin. It is a synthetic opioid that is reported to be 50 to 100 times more powerful than morphine. Fentanyl has legitimate uses in the medical field but it is its unlawful use that is dangerous to users. The bill proposes to increase the penalties for possessing, selling, dispensing or trafficking fentanyl.

A welcome relief this week was the appearance of the Vermont National Guard 40th Army Band for Farmers' Night in the State House. The selection, "Armed Forces-The Pride of America," is a favorite of mine and the attendees. It contains the music of each of the service branches and members of the audience are asked to stand and be recognized during the playing of the music from their service branch. Quite a few older women are present who served as nurses, including in the Marines.

Visit the State House, have lunch in the cafeteria and listen to testimony in the committees on many of the bills.

Remember, we now have the skating rink on the front lawn.

Contact me at home at 802-228-8432 or anitka@leg.state.vt.us. I am able to read all of your e-mails and appreciate you sending them - however, the volume received makes it impossible to respond to all of them.

Dear Editor,

Greater Falls Connections would like to thank the local businesses that participated in the Responsible Beverage Sales and Service Trainings held during 2016, which were co-sponsored by the Brattleboro Area Prevention Coalition and the Department of Liquor Control. Thank you to Allen Brothers, Donovan's, Leslie's Tavern at Rockingham, and Pierce Lawton

American Legion Post 37 from the Greater Falls area for participating in the trainings. Greater Falls Connections recognizes the important role that local retailers, bars, and restaurants play in preventing underage drinking and tobacco use.

By taking part in the trainings, these businesses are demonstrating their commitment to making our community a better place to live, work, and play. Responsible Beverage Service Trainings are part of an approach that increases collaborations with local retailers to reduce and prevent underage use of alcohol and tobacco and to prevent sales to intoxicated customers in our community.

We welcome all businesses to partner with us to promote wellness in the community and to prevent the abuse of alcohol, tobacco and other drugs. Feel free to stop by our office at Parks Place and be part of the solution.

Sincerely,
Scott Sharland

Dear Editor,

To Craig Averill

Before telling Dick McCormack to read the Constitution, you should have picked up a dictionary. A "Republic" and a "Democracy" are not opposites. A republic is a form of democracy. So our country is indeed a democracy, and as such it has some basic principles.

One principle is: one voter-one vote. Not one state one vote, not one city one vote, not one county one vote, not one state 5 votes and another 40, but one voter-one vote.

Another principle is majority rule, with extensive protections for minorities. Not minority rule, ever.

The Electoral College, twice in the last 5 elections, has given us minority rule. This was never the intent of the founders and is a great danger to our democracy.

Also, the founders understood that their constitution was not perfect, and in that knowledge they provided for it to be amended. Which it has been an average of once every 9 years. I don't know of any other elections that don't rely on the popular vote - town, state, or what-have-you.

If there are more voters in New York City than in North Dakota, so be it. Why shouldn't those votes be counted one-on-one? There is no LOGICAL reason not to, and certainly no reason for a true democracy not to do so.

Sincerely,
Martin Reiter

Little red hats are warming hearts in a big way

REGION - The American Heart Association | American Stroke Association has teamed up with seven of Vermont's birthing hospitals for the "Little Hats, Big Hearts" program. This initiative will provide approximately 350 newborns with a handmade, red infant cap in February during American Heart Month to celebrate heart health while raising awareness of congenital heart defects (CHD), the most common type of birth defect in the country.

In addition to the handmade hat, new parents will receive information about congenital heart defects and the AHA's Support Network for families affected by heart disease and stroke. CHD are structural problems with the heart present at birth. They result when a mishap occurs during heart development soon after conception and often before the mother is aware that she is pregnant. Defects range in severity from simple problems, such as "holes" between chambers of the heart, to very severe malformations, such as complete absence of one or more chambers or valves.

The American Heart Association put a call out to knitting and crocheting enthusiasts and little red hats came pouring in from all over the state. They will be distributed to babies born at Brattleboro Memorial Hospital, Gifford Medical Center, North Country Hospital, Northeastern Vermont Regional Hospital, Northwestern Medical Center, Southwestern Vermont Health Care and University of Vermont Medical Center. The program is sponsored by Morgan Stanley.

"As a heart attack survivor, I am beyond thrilled that Morgan Stanley has not only sponsored the Go Red for Women luncheon, but also stepped up in sponsoring the Little Hats in Vermont. I think it is a testament to how much Morgan Stanley cares about women's health and the health of our future generations," Julie Braun, Financial Advisor at Morgan Stanley.

The American Heart Association is committed to raising awareness for CHD, and helping children live stronger lives through education, research and public policies. In fact, the organization's funding for pediatric cardiac research is second only to the federal government. The American Heart Association also creates guidelines and trains parents, caregivers and medical professionals on CPR specifically for infants and children.

Too many hats

REGION - Can you have too many hats? So, are you my accountant or my financial adviser today?

Would I want my dentist to perform open-heart surgery? They both deal with my health, but in completely different ways.

Having a "team" approach (Advisor-CPA-Estate attorney) keeps everybody in their wheelhouse of expertise and each holds the other ones, accountable.

CPAs tend to be logical. This need for information might be a negative, especially in volatile markets where quick decision making can be the difference between making and losing money.

Many CPAs feel selling is uncomfortable. Selling is the science of asking appropriately timed questions, and giving a client education, coaching and discipline, the discipline they might not otherwise impose on themselves.

Success in Financial Services is about getting messy. You have to get involved in their emotions, their hopes, dreams and regrets. You have to deal with people in times of death, divorce, bankruptcy, bad business decisions, and catastrophic illness. This can be quite disconcerting. Financial advising and investing is a contact sport, better suited for a psychology major than finance major.

Due Diligence is needed on all of the financial products out there today and everything new coming to the markets. By incorporating all of the compliance and new DOL fiduciary responsibilities on the horizon, plus the knowledge needed for planning expertise and investment education, and lastly, providing informed wealth strategies for your client, is a pleasurable. Then taking the CPA role and having to keep up on all the ever-changing tax laws and IRS statutes? Could you be getting subpar information on your taxes and your investments?

If an accountant offers to do your taxes for free, or, as a part of their Financial Planning service if you let them manage your investments, this is a decision you should weigh very carefully.

Accountants tend to not like uncertainty. My accountant says, the IRS code is "Peace of Mind." The rules are black and white and knowing the rules are considered fulfillment of the position. The securities markets are fickle. Investors can lose money- and under the perfect storm (like 2008), half their retirement. There are no rules to insure an adequate market return. This uncertainty is a change in comfort from say the predictability of, a tax return.

The potential downside to stacking disciplines. The risk of misplaced priorities. First and foremost, a good CPA is worth their weight in gold. Financial advisors are responsible for helping clients maximize their wealth, not like a lawyer drafting legal documents or litigating, or not like auditing businesses or wrangling with the IRS. My client's care about risk, returns and safety they want their accountants to do their taxes. If you hold yourself out as a financial advisor, that's what you should do. It's a full-time job.

THIS AND THAT

BY BILL MURPHY

A little bit of this and a little bit of that while waiting for the kick-off of the Super Bowl:

Patriots legacy- How old are you? I'm not getting personal; I just wondered what your perspective of the Patriots was? You see I remember the Friday Night when the Patriots were born. I listened to the game from Boston University's Nickerson Field on WBZ Radio. There was no TV. The Patriots coach was Lou Saban. It would be a great story if I could tell you he is Nick Saban's father, but it appears they were not related, despite the fact Lou's wife said they might be second cousins when Lou died.

You have had to be around from the beginning to fully appreciate what this team has accomplished. The Pats are looking for their fifth Super Bowl title Sunday night and they have all come in the new century. The franchise has an opportunity to join the Dallas Cowboys and San Francisco 49ers as five time winners trailing only the Pittsburgh Steelers, who have captured six Super Bowls.

The Pats finished 5-9 in that birth year and that Friday night game was a 13-10 loss to the Denver Broncos. It took them years to find a home field, until finally owner Billy Sullivan built one. Their problems went downhill from there.

There were many obstacles, which hindered this franchise before super fan Bob Kraft took control. Those obstacles began with the biggest problem of all, when the bathrooms at Sullivan's new field didn't function on opening night.

It is phenomenal where the Pats have come and the heights the combination of Belichick and Brady have led the franchise too. A victory Sunday would bring the northeast of America one step closer to leaving others in the dust. It really is an amazing story.

The missing Hanna Simpkins- Through no fault of her own, Hanna Simpkins was left off the list of area athletes presented last week, who have gone on to compete at the college level. Simpkins played both basketball and volleyball at Fall Mountain, but it was the sport of volleyball she took to the next level and is still hard at work.

Simpkins is a 2016 graduate of Fall Mountain and was a mainstay in different phases of their volleyball program. The Wildcats have the only volleyball program in our reporting area. A couple of years back, Simpkins was a part of a team, which was the best in Fall Mountain history and made the rest of the state know, the Lady Cats knew a thing or two about the sport.

Volleyball coach Michelle Swift let us know the bottom line of the sport at the school. Volleyball took the fall slot of field hockey for the Wildcats. Interest grew but due to proximity of other schools who compete in the sport and off season opportunities, camps, etc., growth with success is difficult. Simpkins has flourished nonetheless.

Simpkins played for Swift's team her first three years of high school. The pinnacle of success came her junior year when the team stood some kind of chance against good teams. Following that season, most of the talent graduated and Simpkins was left to lead and help teach the young and inexperienced.

"I don't know where to start," Swift reflected when speaking of Simpkins. She went on to say, "really, Hanna is a self taught volley ballplayer. I did what I could, but living here, it's difficult to grow in the off-season. Hanna and her family made sure she had those experiences; whether they were camps, travel teams or what. I am sure it was a lot more fun for her when we had other talented players, yet she did all she could do when she was a senior and led the way with our youngsters. Over her time here, she proved to be a solid leader, a strong captain and a good teammate."

Simpkins is now competing at Mount Ida College in Newton, Massachusetts. Her college coach Craig Martin says he found her late and only because of her participation in the Junior Olympic program.

Martin says, "her freshman year wasn't easy. She started for us at the beginning at middle hitter, but then we thought we should move her to the outside." Swift felt that was a good move for Simpkins at the college level, because of her size and it would allow her to use angles more efficiently.

"The transition was tough at times for Hannah," Martin said, "but she kept working. We had her coming off the bench for a while, but then she made it back to the starting line-up. She is working hard in the off season to make herself better." Swift added that if I wanted a word to describe Simpkins, it was "competitor."

During her freshman season at Mount Ida, Simpkins finished fourth on her team in scoring and in categories such as kills and kill percentage. She has three years of eligibility remaining and Martin is looking forward to her future.

"I am not surprised he says she is working hard," Swift says, "that is what she does."

Hard work has certainly paid off so far.

Fall Mountain cat paws- The Wildcat football program should have a new head coach before too long however Gordon Danserau is still accepting applications as the process moves along. Danserau says they have candidates in the pool that can make it work but because of a busy Athletic Director schedule for the next few weeks and the possibility that Nick Saban will choose to apply, it will be awhile longer before the school actually goes through the interview process.

Danserau also tells us the school will be hosting three basketball tournaments in 2017. Fall Mountain will play host to both a boys and girls Junior Varsity Tournament later in February. Then, due to the fact Keene State will no longer host a Girls Basketball Tournament around the holidays, Fall Mountain will put together one of their own at the varsity level. Schools with interest should contact Danserau at the school. If he has his way, all three tournaments would have eight team fields.

BF girls basketball looking for winning season

BY BILL MURPHY

The Shopper

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. - Since 2003 when the Bellows Falls Girls basketball team captured the Division I Vermont State championship, results have not been kind. One winning season separates the results from twelve straight losing seasons, but this year's group is looking to break that trend. They stand 5-4 with eleven games remaining. Their stretch run begins with a game at Springfield Wednesday night.

Recently the team won three of their last five games. They defeated Black River 71-16, Long Trail 43-6, and Arlington 40-30. They bowed to Mount Saint Joseph 49-31 and Green Mountain 53-40 during the period.

Sophomore Molly Kelly was the most consistent Terrier scorer in that stretch scoring 12, 6 and 7 respectively in the winning games and 6 and 13 in the two losses. Freshman Taylor Goodell gave Kelly plenty of offensive support 10 points versus the Ludlow team and 13 versus Green Mountain and 8 points in three of the other games.

The strongest part of the Terrier team is their depth. Coach Joe Goodhue plays ten players regularly and says, "we have depth, however I wish we could be more consistent and have less turnovers."

Seniors Hannah Kelly and Keri Ticino had strong numbers with Kelly's 19 points against Black River and 8,8 and 7 versus Long Trail, Arlington and Green Mountain respectively, while Ticino played strong defense with 18 steals over the stretch of games.

Springfield wrestlers hit the mats

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. - The excitement was high January 21 as nine high school and junior high wrestlers from Springfield hit the mats at a tournament in Bristol, Vermont.

Cardio and drills must be working, because the work put out by these kids was just excellent.

Jayson Webster battled his way through four opponents to bring home the gold; Tim Bapp-Cederholm and Brandon Bennett also earned first place in their brackets.

Mo Stettner wrangled her way to second place, and Matt Prosser brought home a silver medal also.

Third place winners were Peter Berlenbach, Gillian Guy, and Skyler Congdon; newcomer Troy Meier wrestled hard and kept his spirits and chin up through some tough matches.

Everyone worked hard, faced big challenges, and earned some respect on the mats. Congratulations, Springfield Junior high and high school wrestlers!

Apron Theater Co. presents Title and Deed

PUTNEY, Vt. - "We all have a funny little map in our head that divides the world into home and away." So we are told in award-winning playwright Will Eno's one-character drama Title and Deed. The character speaking is a recent arrival on our shores, disoriented from culture shock and homesickness, and he is struggling to illuminate both sides of that map with a torrent of words: absurd, tragic, stinging, hilarious words.

The original New York production of Title and Deed was on "ten best plays" lists for 2012 in both the New York Times and The New Yorker. Now this unusual theater experience comes to Putney, Vermont in a new production from the Apron Theater Company in association with Next Stage Arts Project.

It features Michael Fox Kennedy as the unnamed exile. Christopher Emily Coutant is director. Performances are at Next Stage, Friday and Saturday, February 17-18 at 7:30 p.m., and Sunday, February 19 at 2:00 p.m.

Michael and Christopher have worked together as actors and directors in Vermont community theater for a dozen years. They acted in the Apron Theater productions of Other Desert Cities and The Cripple of Inishmaan and at Actors Theatre Playhouse in Michael Frayn's Copenhagen. They originally met when cast as a couple in a play.

"One thing led to another," Mr. Kennedy says, "and we became a couple in real life as well. But we still love to do theater together, and when we didn't have a play to work on last summer, I found Will Eno's brilliant piece and asked Christopher to direct me."

It will be his second one-man show. He has presented his own play, assembled from the words of Abraham Lincoln, at many venues around New England.

The New York Times described Title and Deed as "a haunting and often fiercely funny meditation on life as a state of permanent exile."

John Lahr in The New Yorker wrote, "Eno's joking seems to me a great act of courage: a way of facing loss and learning to live with it. His voice is unique; his play is stage poetry of a high order.... In this tale's brilliant telling, it is not the narrator who proves unreliable but life itself!"

The newly renovated Next Stage is at 15 Kimball Hill, Putney, Vt. It is fully accessible. Tickets can be reserved at 802-387-0071. Title and Deed is presented through special arrangement with Samuel French, Inc.

Five local artists exhibit series works at Landmark College

PUTNEY, Vt. - An art exhibition titled "Series," curated by Landmark College art faculty member Christie Herbert, will open at the Landmark College Fine Arts Gallery with a reception on Saturday, Feb. 18, 2 to 4 p.m. "Series" features five artists who live and work in Windham County, Vt. - Ricia Gordon, Stephen Procter, Michael Poster, Elizabeth Ungerleider, and Susan Wilson. The exhibit will be open daily through April 14. Admission is free.

In March and April, each artist will give a free talk about his or her work in the Fine Arts Gallery on Thursdays from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m., as follows:

- March 2: Ricia Gordon
- March 9: Elizabeth Ungerleider
- March 23: Susan Wilson
- March 30: Steve Procter
- April 6: Michael Poster

What is a series? "A series can hark back to a romanticized time when stories were released in print as a serial," Herbert wrote in the catalog that will accompany the show. "We like to think that each new installment was eagerly awaited, discussed and watched in lives marked by fewer choices. More recently, a television series can be watched in weekly increments or binge-watched in one sitting. ... In any case, the tension lies in the unfolding, the waiting to see the next installment in a series, noting the telling detail or unexpected plot twist."

Ricia Gordon's series of paintings explores how the artistic process itself unfolds, including the layering over of surfaces as a kind of modern exorcising ritual in her series, "I Cannot Fathom." Gordon is a Brattleboro resident with an M.F.A. in writing. Since retiring from Landmark College, she has shifted from doing creative writing to developing a serious painting practice. Gordon has shown her work in numerous local and regional galleries and venues.

Michael Poster's series in this show documents a theme over time as he immerses himself in a particular community. In this case, he shares his experience with a women's roller derby team. His series is at once a documentation of raw, feminist energy and a nod to the tender and unguarded moments captured outside the rink. Poster moved to Dummerston in 2011 from Pennsylvania, and has a studio at the Cotton Mill.

Stephen Procter's series of monumental ceramic vases invites the human body to stand and note how each vase differs, referencing a kind of navigation of encounters over time in a contemporary setting. Procter is a trained musician and ceramic artist whose sense of form is influenced by music. He has a studio at the Cotton Mill.

Elizabeth Ungerleider has been photographing her surroundings since she received her first Kodak Instamatic camera at age 10. Via long-term daily photographic documentation on Facebook, Ungerleider explores what happens when those sequences are juxtaposed over a period of years—a modern day visual diary delivered via modern technology and social media.

Susan Wilson's large-scale sculptures capture series of emotions and personalities. The large-scale faces seem both familiar and alien, evoking the sense of how distinct each is, while also asking the viewer to find kinship and community among them. After teaching art for 30 years, Wilson retired to Putney, finding the communities of southeast Vermont an inspiration for her new figurative ceramic sculpture.

The Landmark College Fine Arts Gallery is open to the public daily from 10 to 6. Landmark College is at

Pasta dinner and game of human chess at chess and chow night

CLAREMONT, N.H. - If you're looking for a night out this winter that's fun for the whole family, New England Classical Academy is hosting the first chess and chow night on February 10 featuring a pasta dinner and human game of chess!

The dinner will feature a pasta bar with choice of meat, alfredo or tomato sauce, salad, bread, drinks and dessert, and gluten free options will be available too. Following the dinner, the floor will be cleared and spectators will take their places in the stands to watch the first NECA human chess game! The four academic houses will compete in semi-finals and then a final game to crown the Chess Champions with much ceremony! Students will don appropriate costumes to help the audience identify their playing piece and a strategy team will call out the moves.

This fundraiser benefits the school and Headmaster Heidi Fagan came up with the idea on vacation this past summer with her family.

"Actually, my son Camden, thought of it, as we saw a place that had a huge outdoor lawn chess set. That's when I thought we should combine the fun of a human chess battle with a dinner that families could enjoy."

NECA is in its eighth year in the former St. Mary's school building and has 150 students between Pre-K and 12th grade. An independent school, NECA seeks to form and educate young people according to the ancient and traditional understanding of education as the pursuit of wisdom. Rooted in the Catholic faith, NECA is committed to a traditional classical curriculum centered on the study of Latin, Greek, mathematics, humanities, science and the arts.

Chess and Chow Night is sure to be an evening of lively and enjoyable entertainment and dining for all ages and is open to the public. Tickets are either per person or for a family of four. Email neca_office@yahoo.com to order tickets. The dinner has seats available for 250 people and NECA anticipates a sell out event, so order early!

Full moon snowshoe hike

CHESTER, Vt. - The public is invited to join members of the Chester Conservation Committee on Saturday, February 11, 2017 for a guided full moon snowshoe hike starting at 7 p.m. The CCC is sponsoring this event to introduce hikers to our organization and to share the beauty of the Green Mountain Union HS Nature Trail. Last spring we sponsored a guided hike on this town treasure and now it's time to break out the snowshoes for a full moon snowshoe hiking experience. Whether you are new to snowshoes or an experienced hiker, this guided hike experience is sure to be interesting and fun.

The GMUHS Nature Trail is located behind Green Mountain Union High School. Traveling from the town green, head southeast on Main Street. Main Street turns into Route 103 South continue for 0.7 miles. The High School will be on your right. Once on the high school driveway, bear left to reach the rear of the school.

The Trail Head is accessed by crossing a narrow, wooden footbridge near the lower soccer field looking left into the woods and is clearly marked.

Trail length is 1.8 miles, of moderate difficulty, and depending on conditions, will take about one hour to hike.

Depending upon the snow conditions, snowshoes or boots with traction cleats (yaktrax) would be appropriate for this hike. A headlamp or flashlight is also recommended but not required.

The Chester Conservation Committee is proud to sponsor this free, community event to showcase Trails in Chester.

Vermont's spring snow goose hunting opportunity

REGION - Since 2009, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has annually issued a "Conservation Order" to allow the reduction of the population of migrating greater and lesser snow geese as well as Ross' geese. The numbers of these geese have grown so high that they are destroying habitat for themselves and other species.

Eight states in the Atlantic Flyway included Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Virginia, and Vermont, will hold a similar Spring Snow Goose Conservation Order from March 11 through April 28, 2017.

The Vermont 2017 Spring Snow

Goose Conservation Order will occur statewide. The daily bag limit is 15 snow geese, and there is no possession limit. Waterfowl hunting regulations in effect last fall will apply during the 2017 Spring Snow Goose Conservation Order with the exception that unplugged shotguns and electronic calls may be used, and shooting hours will be extended until one half hour after sunset.

A 2017 Spring Snow Goose Harvest Permit is required and is available at no charge on the Vermont Fish & Wildlife Department's website www.vtfishandwildlife.com under "Hunt-Waterfowl-Spring Snow Goose Hunt." Hunters may also call the Essex Junction Office at 802-878-1564 to request a permit.

Hunters will also need a 2017 Vermont hunting license, a 2017 Harvest Information Program (HIP) number, a 2016 federal migratory hunting stamp, and a 2017 Vermont migratory waterfowl stamp.

Hunters can register with the Harvest Information Program by going to the Vermont Fish & Wildlife Department website or by calling toll free 1-877-306-709.

Hunters who obtain a permit will be required to complete an online survey after April 28 and prior to May 16, 2017, whether they hunted or not. Hunters without access to the Internet may obtain a copy of the survey by calling 802-878-1564.

Women's Discovery Camps at Sugarbush return in late January and early March

WARREN, Vt. - Sugarbush's internationally-recognized Women's Discovery Camp is scheduled to occur this winter. The camp will be held Monday to Wednesday, March 6-8.

"Our theme this year is Movements and Sensations," said Terry Barbour, Ski & Ride School director. "Skiing is a dance with gravity, the mountain, and the snow. To dance well, we need to move. This year, we'll explore what those movements are and what they feel like. Of course, we'll have to be careful - some of those sensations may get people addicted to the sport!"

The camps were recognized last year by Departures magazine in an article entitled, "Top-Notch Women's Ski Camps." Sugarbush's Women's Ski Discovery Camp was the only northeastern resort women's camp mentioned among a group that included top-tier resorts such as Vail, Alta, Chamonix, and Whistler.

Sugarbush's camp has been offered for a number of years and takes advantage of the resort's excellent veteran coaches such as SKI magazine-ranked instructor M.A. Raymond, as well as celebrated coach Paté Weston.

The resort has also offered incentives to assist working women and mothers to attend the camps. Each participant in Women's Discovery may receive either a half-price full-day kids program in The Schoolhouse children's center, or a half-price companion adult lift ticket for each day of the camp.

Along with on-hill instruction, the camp includes video analysis, group meals, après ski socials, and optional ski demos.

Day tickets are available at a discount for campers. Discounted lodging packages for the camps are also available. For more information, cost and to register, visit www.sugarbush.com.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You don't like rejection. But instead of trying to "ram" your ideas through to an unresponsive audience, stand back and wait for a more favorable environment later this month.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Job commitments call for the tidy Taurian to charge into those problem-plagued projects and get them into shape. Then go ahead and enjoy the fun and friendships of your expanding social life.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) The pressures of the workplace are beginning to ease. While you still need to stay connected to your ongoing commitments, you'll be able to take more time to relax with family and friends.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You might feel that you need to prove how much you can do. But be careful not to take on more than you can handle, or your risk being bogged down. An Aries has a message for you.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Financially it could be a little tight for a while. So resist the urge to splurge on things you don't really need. There will be time enough to indulge yourself when the money squeeze eases later this month.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You demand trust from others. But someone is creating a situation that could put your own trustworthiness in question. Be sure to keep all lines of communication open.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A problem delays the recognition that you hoped to receive for your hard work. But all will soon be resolved. Remember to make patience your watchword this week.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Those wonderful ideas could expand your workplace prospects and ultimately lead you on a new career path. Your personal life also opens up new vistas.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) So much seems to be swirling around you these days that you might find it hard to focus on priorities. Best advice: Take things one at a time, and you'll get through them all.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Work out situations with what you have, and avoid the temptation to create complications where they don't exist. This applies both at home and in the workplace.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Keep your keen senses open to possible changes in personal and/or professional situations. Knowing what might lie ahead gives you an edge on how to handle it.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Personal pressures at work could create a problem with your performance. Best advice: Focus on the job ahead of you. If necessary, you can deal with the other issue later.

BORN THIS WEEK: Like your fellow Aquarian Abraham Lincoln, you have a way of handling the most difficult situations with grace and conviction.

pet of the week

Hi my name is Duke! I am a 3-4 year old Texan boy although I am pretty glad to be in Vermont though, as my first days in Texas were not so wonderful. Long story short, I had gotten my leg caught in a trap and chewed my leg off to save myself! My owner didn't really pay much attention to my injury, so when this lady saw me, she took me straight to the vet.

I am just a loveable guy who is in search of his forever home! I am very loveable and just adore cuddling; I would be the perfect lap dog for cold, stormy nights. I am unsure how I would be with another dog in the home. I have had a couple introductions here at the shelter that have not went the best, but I am still willing to try meeting other dogs!

I am not going to be cat friendly, I just can't do it; they are strange. I love walks, but please be patient with me as I am still learning how to get around with my 3 legs. I sometimes fall while going potty or just if I get too excited. I would be fine with kids that are experienced with dogs, so probably 6+ to play it safe. My adoption fee has been paid for already by a loving donor.

Please come meet me Wed. – Sat. from 12 - 4:30 p.m. at the Springfield Humane Society at 401 Skitchewaugh Trail, 802-885-3997

Vermonters speak out regarding the impacts of rail

REGION - The Vermont Transportation Board released its Annual Report, which documents the comments the Board received during a recent series of public forums that focused on state transportation policy associated with trains, both passenger and freight.

After researching past and present railroad trends, the Board conducted a series of seven public forums held during the fall of 2016. The report documents Vermonters' support for, as well as concerns about, the expansion of passenger rail, future property development associated with railroad activity, and the various quality-of-life issues that come with living close to trains.

"The State of Vermont has several irons in the fire that it hopes will lead to significant expansion of how we use our railroads," said Vanessa Kittell, Chair of the Transportation Board. "Given this, the Board attempted to find out more about our community's interest and experience with rail. We asked about everything from the advantages that expanded rail use can bring to a community to the challenges that living close to the tracks may create."

The report, which can be downloaded from the Board's website at www.tboard.vermont.gov, addresses six topics associated with rail, and details what Vermonters had to say about each.

- The six topics are:
- Expanding passenger rail.
 - Establishing commuter rail.
 - Living with the railroad as a neighbor.
 - The impacts of downtown truck traffic.
 - Railside economic development.
 - Railroad safety.

"It should come as no surprise that Vermonters have strong feelings about rail," Ms. Kittell said. "It's their stories and observations of everyday experience here in Vermont that must be considered by our policymakers as the future of Vermont's infrastructure takes shape."

Each fall, the Transportation

Board conducts a series of public forums to take comment about important transportation issues.

For more information about the report contact the Board's Executive Secretary John Zicconi at john.zicconi@vermont.gov or by calling 802-828-2942.

Think sunshine! Host a Fresh Air child

REGION - Fresh Air summers are filled with children running barefoot through the grass, gazing at star-filled skies and swimming for the first time. This summer, join volunteer host families in Central Vermont and open your heart and home to a Fresh Air child. Each summer, thousands of low-income children from New York City visit suburban, rural and small town communities along the East Coast and southern Canada through the Fresh Air Fund's Friendly Towns Program.

Harlen, age 9, has visited the Tornatore family for two summers. Host dad Albert shared: "Harlen has definitely learned to try new things. I remember our first summer. He was nervous but by the end of the first week, Harlen and my son were having adventures and having so much fun. We went to the aquarium, amusement park, and the kids love the beach." "My kids get so excited when they get to see Harlen," host mom Allyson added. "This summer we went to a drive-in movie, and we were all in the backseat with blankets, pillows and popcorn, snuggled together. Harlen is simply part of our family."

The Fresh Air Fund, an independent, not-for-profit agency, has provided free summer experiences to more than 1.8 million New York City children from low-income communities since 1877. Fresh Air children are boys and girls from 7 to 18 years old. Children who are reintivated by host families may continue with the Fresh Air Fund through age 18 and can enjoy extended trips.

For more information about hosting a Fresh Air child this summer, please contact Michelle Abajian at 802-760-7462 or visit www.freshair.org.

Alexa, A.J., Harlen, and Amanda have fun playing together in the Tornatores' family backyard.
