GMUSD discusses BFK, buses, and contracts

BY SHARON HUNTLEY
The Vermont Journal

CHESTER, Vt. – During their April 21 meeting, the Green Mountain Unified School District Board listened to a presentation for the “Portrait of a Graduate” program, presented by Jeff Korchinski from the non-profit “Battelle for Kids.” The board asked for further details before approving the $38,000 program, that would, according to Korchinski, “Re-envision and transform their school systems,” and would be paid for by Elementary and Secondary School Emergency Relief (ESSER) funds. Bus ownership was also discussed, and contract extensions and salary increases were approved.

According to Korchinski, BFK would facilitate the five-month, district-wide process, helping the district engage a large group of stakeholders including educators, students, parents, community members, business leaders, board members, administrations, and those of different religious and cultural backgrounds. The participants would be known as a “design team” and would meet four times over the course of several months to establish a vision and align the organization, all to “prepare students to be effective and accountable and responsible citizens in our communities,” says Korchinski. That initial work would eventually lead to a strategic plan and a three-to-five-year roadmap for implementation.

Two Rivers Supervisory Union Superintendent Lauren Fierman said that the BFK was very helpful in pulling together focus groups from several stakeholder categories in order to help define what it means to be a successful graduate, all culminating in a vision statement that can be shared.

Board member Steve Perani questioned whether the district didn’t already have a pretty good idea of what success means, to which Fierman responded, “I do not have a clear idea of what this community, as a whole, believes.”

Korchinski clarified that their company facilitates in a constructive way, helping to provide specific insights about what different skills and competencies kids would need in the future to be successful, not only in college, but in all trades. BFK also works with teachers to integrate these into a curriculum.

Board member Josh Schroeder reminded the board that they had talked about establishing some sort of vision statement last year, but that they had gotten nowhere and needed help. Fierman agreed, saying that they would be putting together a new vision statement and suggested utilizing BFK, so long as the board majority supported it. She followed by saying she would not have suggested the program if they did not have the ESSER funds available.

By the end of the discussion, the board agreed to get additional details and provide case studies for the next meeting.

Board Chairman Joe Fromberger gave an update on the Professional Development Advisory Committee. Fromberger and Ludlow Mount Holly Unified Union School District Board Chair Paul Orzechowski have met with Fierman and determined that the committee joint board will include 12 members, consisting of two board members from each of the two boards, one teacher from each of the five school buildings, a parent from each of the two districts, and one administrator. Fromberger said he would pick two board members that would work well on the committee, as well as appointing an alternate.

At the April 13 LMHUUSD meeting, Orzechowski had said the committee would consist of 11 board members, but his breakdown of participants did not include an administrator. The committee joint board will be an advisory board, and will make a recommendation impacting the 2023/24 school year.

During a discussion of new hires, Fierman announced that current CTES and Cavendish Fletcher Community Librarian Kata Welch has accepted a position as the new school librarian at CAES, following the retirement of CAES Library Media Specialist Kim Farrar.

The new full-time CTES School Nurse will be Andrea Donahue, who is currently the CAES School Nurse. Amelia Carson will fill the open nursing position at CAES. The current GMUSD Spanish teacher was also offered an extended contract.

The board tentatively approved a request by Sandra

Russo, board member from the Cavendish Library, to install a shed next to the library for storage purposes.

In the TRSU Board update, Fromberger said that non-bargaining staff, during open session, voted to offer non-bargaining TRSU employees a 3.5% increase and voted to extend Fierman’s contract for an additional two years, citing the move as a vote of confidence in her ability “to take us forward.” Fromberger also said that a motion has been made to change the titles and registrations for the buses from TRSU to GMUSD, but that it was not approved.

Fromberger said he was personally appalled when he learned that TRSU owned the buses but that the GMUSD was paying for them. Fierman said that since transportation is managed through the TRSU, including the employing of bus drivers, buses, whether owned by GMUSD, LMHUUSD or TRSU, are handled through the TRSU. Fierman suggested that rather than spending the money to retitle the buses now, when new buses are procured, those could be titled and registered under GMUSD.

TRSU Facilities Director

Todd Parah added that the $40,000 tech reimbursement they receive from the state could be jeopardized by a title change. Board member Deb Brown suggested they delay action so as not to risk impacting those funds.

Following an executive session, the board approved a 3.5% salary increase for all GMUSD non-bargaining employees; one-year contracts for both CAES Principal Katherine Fogg and CAES Assistant Principal Nicole Luz; a two-year contract for GMUHS Principal Keith Hill; and 3.5% salary increases for all three.

The meeting opened with former board member Abe Gross making a statement from the floor to clarify his remarks made during their March 23 special meeting, during which he pointed to certain failings of CAES. During this April 21 meeting, Gross apologized for not making his comment clearer, stating that he held the administration and board responsible and not the teachers, who are the least paid and most committed in the system, and specifying that he was not pointing to a

Chester tables cannabis discussions, continues with solar project and police assessment

BY SHARON HUNTLEY
The Vermont Journal

CHESTER, Vt. – At the Chester Selectboard’s April 20 meeting, the issue of the retail cannabis sales loomed large again, both in terms of decisions on the Local Cannabis Control Commission, and also in discussing nuisance ordinances and how they might, or might not, be applied to possible retail cannabis locations in town. The board also agreed to begin the process of purchasing the solar field, and Town Manager Julie Hance discussed an upcoming police assessment and public safety community forum.

The board made a few more concrete decisions about the structure of the Local Cannabis Control Commission, determining that two board members, Lee Gustafson and Ben Whalen, would participate with an established term length of one year, and three community members would be selected and serve for three-year terms.

To date, there have been four community members who have put forth their names for consideration. The board will schedule interviews at the next selectboard meeting to decide which of those candidates will serve on the commission. Any other interested community members who wish be considered for the Local Cannabis Control Commission should submit a letter of interest to the Town Manager. The board will also formally adopt a resolution with specifics on the commission, using a sample resolution as a guide, at the next board meeting.

According to Board Chair Arne Jonynas, they received updated guidance from the State Cannabis Control Board, although town commission authority still seemed limited and he suggested it was specifically made that way by the state so that cannabis retail establishments would not be treated differently than other retail establishments.

As the board turned to the topic of public nuisance ordinances, they referenced a wide array of samples from other towns included in their packet and covered a wide range of issues including noise, some as specific as singing or whistling, and ranging to smells and parking.

In kicking off the subject, Jonynas asked the board what their goal was and if they were trying to address a current problem or a future problem.

Board member Lee Gustafson, who has been openly opposed to retail cannabis in Chester, said that if they have a nuisance ordinance in place, it allows the board to be discriminating in what kind of businesses operate, specifically mentioning the green and downtown area.

“The point is that if we’re not thinking about how do we want to present ourselves as the town of Chester to people either visiting or thinking about moving here, then we could end up with any downtown area looking in ways that we don’t want it to look. And so, not singling out any specific type of business or activity, I think we need to be thoughtful about how we’re going to maintain the character, the wholesome character, of the downtown area or the green area for the future.”

Board member Ben Whalen said, “If we’re talking about cannabis and we’re concerned about locations, I feel that that’s more of a zoning issue than ordinance.” Later in the discussion, Whalen also voiced caution over unintended consequences from ordinances.

Gustafson countered that the town can’t address issues through zoning and that that’s the problem.

Jonynas added his concern about attempting to target cannabis retail specifically, saying, “One thing we have to be extremely careful of is that we don’t single out cannabis in this, in any which way whatsoever...the state has made it very clear on that. I think we should make sure we’re clear on that also.” He also suggested it could result in a lawsuit and that anything the board would impose as far as nuisance ordinances would have to be extremely general and apply to all retail, all people, and all citizens.

Gustafson pushed back on Jonynas’ statement however, saying the whole reason they were discussing nuisance ordinances was because of the cannabis issue, and if they can’t discuss the issue for fear of a lawsuit it was “kicking the stool out from under us.” He went on to ask, as a representative of the Town of Chester, how can he represent those who share his viewpoint if they don’t talk about it?

He stated, “You all know [my] feelings. Did it pass,

Boot Pro donates to ESBR and Ascutney Outdoors

LUDLOW, Vt. – Alex and Shon Racicot, owners of Ludlow’s Boot Pro, recently raffled off a pair of Atomic Skis. Proceeds were to benefit Ascutney Outdoors and The Expeditionary School at Black River, and a generous sum of $6,010 was raised. This money will now help sustain each of these programs’ commitment to connecting people with their land. At its core however, what distinguishes Boot Pro’s donation from other charitable moments is its spirit of strengthening community by expanding local-area networks.

In the midst of the pandemic, ESBR opened its doors on Sept. 8, 2020. In 2015, Ascutney Outdoors was formed to take responsibility for the management, oversight, and development of recreational educational and community activities and the conservation of land at Mount Ascutney. Both organizations are a community-driven approach to ensuring the natural environment is maintained and sustainable.

From its inception, ESBR’s Board of Trustees have set out to establish a school that would be situated in the heart of their community. To accomplish this vision, the school’s strategic plan continues to be framed by these educational pillars: environmental stewardship, outdoor adventure, community engagement, and civic responsibility. ESBR looks forward to exploring Ascutney Outdoor’s network of trails and using it as one of their outdoor classrooms. Like Ascutney Outdoors, ESBR has relied on pro bono support to get started. The Racicot’s introduction as the leaders of these organizations is just the beginning in ensuring that the younger generation of outdoor enthusiasts learn how to preserve and regenerate the environment here in southern Vermont and beyond.

St. Luke's Church seeks organist

CHESTER, Vt. – Effective immediately, St. Luke's Episcopal Church, the gray church at 313 Main St. in Chester, Vt., seeks an organist. The position is salaried and part-time at approximately 6-8 hours per week. The church is also interested in securing the names of a few musicians willing to substitute on an occasional Sunday 10 a.m. service.

A key leader of the congregation and a vital member of the church's ministry staff, the Church Organist collaborates directly with the pastor on all things musical and provides organ and piano preludes, postludes, and accompaniment for all weekly services year-round, plus special services such as funerals and Christmas Eve. The Liturgical Calendar dictates the musical selections appropriate for the given day. The congregation loves to sing, and the church has a fine S. S. Hamill organ that was built for St. Luke's in 1870, rededicated after extensive work in 2006, and regularly maintained.

To apply, send a cover letter and resume to Lillian Willis at lbwillisct@comcast.net or P.O. Box 318, Chester, VT 05143.

Gross outlined three changes that could be made immediately, in-cluding: changing the driveway and traffic pat-terns to improve pick-up at CAES, saying that it might be achieved through a selectboard special project or with the help of a donation from an abutting landowner; change enrollment to CAES so that classrooms are smaller by bussing Gassetts students to CTES rather than CAES; and change weekly schedules so teachers are fully com-pensated for their collabora-tive work, instead of forcing them to forego the work or do it on their own time, "Be-cause it's essential work." He ended by saying, "Changes are needed. Please do not fail to make them."

The last day of school for GMUHS, CAES, and CTES is Tuesday, June 21 for stu-dents, and Wednesday, June 22 for teachers.

The GMUHS High School graduation is scheduled for Friday, June 17.

The next GMUSD Board meeting is scheduled for Thursday, May 19 at 6 p.m. at Green Mountain.

yes. Did I want it to pass, no, of course not. But does that mean I can't voice my opinion anymore? No. I should be able to."

Town Manager Julie Hance suggested the board wait until they were able to hear from the Vermont League of Cities and Towns who would be providing training soon to help ad-vise towns on the issue.

Jonynas agreed, saying the board would let the issue of nuisance ordinances slide for a while and see what the VLCT comes back with.

The board approved Hance to begin the process of exer-cising the purchase option of the solar field. Upon her sig-nature, the town has 120 days to get an appraisal of property, and then another 30 days if they decide to back out of the decision.

Several details still need to be gathered in addition to the appraisal, such as how much power the town cur-rently uses, and whether the town would still be obligated to provide two towns with power, renewing their exist-ing contracts.

Gustafson, who has exper-tise on the subject, said that in his initial investigation into the solar project, it worked well, that the structure of the array made for more eco-nomical maintenance. He also said the power produc-tion was well above his expecta-tions.

Charlie the Liar

Below is a story I wrote several years ago for my own amusement. Time got away from me this past weekend. Danny and I went to the postcard show on Saturday. Next thing I knew, it was time for another article. Caught short, I didn't have an article, so I submit this imaginative tale. It's a true story, full of lies, embellished by me.

Charlie was an old man known for telling tall tales. You couldn't believe a word he said. Boys liked to go to his house, play checkers, and listen to his stories. We sat mesmerized as Charlie described how he fought off a giant bear with just his jackknife.

Deer and bear heads hung on the walls. Antique rifles stood in corners, further setting the stage. Oh, the stories he would tell how he got the bear. Here's one of Charlie's tales:

A traveling salesman, on his regular route, frequently stopped overnight in Chester and, as there was nothing to do in the evenings, fell into the habit of attending the usual gathering at the general store. There was often an old Indian there who had quite a reputation as a gunner. Over time, the salesman got to know him well.

After an absence of some time, the salesman finally made his way back to Chester, and, as usual, went to the store for the evening. The old Indian was there and this question naturally was asked: "How's the gunning this fall, Uncle?" The old Indian shook his head in a dismal sort of way and answered.

"Not very good, but I did have a little luck the other day. I took the old gun out and saw a fox lying beside a rock. I pulled up the gun to fire, and damn if another fox didn't come out and lie down on the other side of the rock. I fired at the sharp edge of the rock, split the bullet, and killed both foxes.

The gun kicked so hard that it knocked me over into a brook behind me, my right hand landed on a muskrat and my left on a beaver. When I got up out of the water, my trousers were so full of brook trout that they burst a suspender button and it flew and killed a partridge."

Another story Charlie told was about the coldest winter on record. He was working in a logging camp on Stratton Mountain in the 1920s. The story went like this:

Charlie told how bitter cold it was in the woods that winter. This particular winter was so cold that when the men spoke their words froze in mid-air. No one could hear the others speak. It was spring before it was warm enough to thaw out the words. As Charlie said, "All of a sudden the woods come alive with the winter's conversations."

While you couldn't believe Charlie's tales, there is one story he told that was probably true. Charlie had a son. His son, like Charlie, was a hunter, trapper, and woodsman. It was in the 1930s or '40s when Charlie's son, now a grown man, decided to move out Montana way and hunt big game, grizzly bears, buffalo, and elk.

Well, so it was, the son went to Montana. Charlie never heard from him again. Even as late as 1960, there was no word.

Charlie was an active member at Chester Rod & Gun Club and attended many shooting matches. He was one of the better marksmen in the area and quite often came in first or second.

Charlie would take his .45 caliber muzzleloader to these matches. The recommended amount of black powder was 80 grains. Charlie knew his muzzleloader well. He used 90 grains of black powder and used the same weight bullet used with 80 grains.

The result was a higher muzzle velocity and increased accuracy. The bullet travelled faster, farther, and flatter with the extra powder charge. Charlie experimented with different loads of black powder and discovered any more than 90 grains caused the bullet to tumble and lose accuracy. At 100 yards, with open sights, Charlie could put nine out of ten rounds in a three-inch diameter bulls-eye using his 90 grains of black powder.

Henry always liked visiting Charlie. They got along well.

I need someone to roto-till a very small garden for me. A walk behind tiller would be perfect. Know anyone?

Kchi Pontegok Project awarded grant

ROCKINGHAM, Vt. – A collaborative of the Elnu Abenaki Tribe and the Rockingham Historic Preservation Commission has been awarded a National Park Service Underrepresented Community Grant to support reassessing the historic landscape of the Bellows Falls petroglyph site, Kchi Põntegok.

In the language of the Indigenous Western Abenaki, Kchi Põntegok, pronounced "kit SEE POHN tuh guk," means "at the Great Falls" and inspires the project name. The site is a rare instance of petroglyphs in New England and marks a sacred place.

"It is good to see folks starting to understand the history of Kchi Pontegok," said Abenaki Chief Roger Longtoe Sheehan. "The Great Falls and the landscape around it is not just a few hundred years old but thousands and thousands of years old. This much older history is that of Indigenous Abenaki Peoples who have and still live here and consider Kchi Pontegok and the lands around it sacred. We hope other folks will start to understand why this history is important."

The site is located at the Great Falls along the Connecticut River in Bellows Falls Village near the Vilas Bridge. It is identified in the State of Vermont's archaeological site inventory and is on the National Register of Historic Places.

Goals of the project are to affirm the sacredness of the Bellows Falls petroglyph site, address cultural representational inequalities, and to update the site's listing on the National Register of Historic Places.

"The Town of Rockingham and its environs have always recognized that we have history that extends back millennia before people of English descent settled here in the eighteenth century," said John Leppman, Historic Preservation Commission chair. "Artifacts such as the petroglyphs at the Great Falls remind us of this heritage. The Commission is delighted to have support from an Underrepresented Communities Grant to expand our vision of a heritage that is not only ancient but decidedly lasting and relevant."

Since the 1980s, when research of the petroglyph site was undertaken for the National Register, new studies have revealed greater detail and ways of understanding and interpreting the carvings. The Kchi Põntegok Project will include a review of current scholarship, archaeological field research, collection of oral histories and traditions, and archival research. The intent is to raise awareness of their place as an anchor in a sacred landscape of significance to the Indigenous Western Abenaki Tribe.

"I feel excited and honored that our partnership received this grant," said Walter Wallace, Commission Coordinator. "Excited because this is an important collaboration between the Abenaki and Euro-American communities in our region, honored because this is the first Underrepresented Communities Grant awarded by the National Park Service to a Vermont town."

The Underrepresented Community Grant program is supported by the Historic Preservation Fund to identify, plan, and develop nominations to the National Register of Historic Places increasing representation of Black, Indigenous, and communities of color listed on the Register. The HPF uses revenue from federal oil leases on the Outer Continental Shelf to assist with a broad range of preservation projects without expending tax dollars, with the intent to mitigate the loss of a non-renewable resource to benefit the preservation of other irreplaceable resources.

For more information about the Kchi Põntegok Project, email clg@rockbf.org.

For more information about NPS historic preservation programs and grants and the Underrepresented Community Grant program visit their websites.

Conversation on petroglyphs

ROCKINGHAM, Vt. – On Wednesday, May 11 at 7 p.m., join Dr. Michael J. Fuller for a conversation about the meanings of petroglyphs created around the world, while referencing a local site: the petroglyphs at the Great Falls in present-day Bellows Falls, known to the Abenaki as Kchi Ponteku, over Rockingham Library Zoom.

Dr. Fuller is a Professor Emeritus of Anthropology at St. Louis Community College in Missouri. He has participated in over 60 archaeological surveys and excavations in Missouri, Arkansas, Tennessee, and Oregon from 1970 to 2022. His ongoing research project involves the location and documentation of rock art sites in North America. He visited and documented the petroglyphs in Bellows Falls in 2014.

This program, co-sponsored by the Rockingham Historic Preservation Commission and the Rockingham Library, was made possible in part by funding through the Vermont Division for Historic Preservation and the National Park Service.

To request a Zoom invitation to this program, email programming@rockinghamlibrary.org, call 802-463-4270, or stop by the library at 65 Westminster St., Bellows Falls, Vt.

COMMUNITY NEWS

Dear Editor,

On April 20, the Town of Londonderry held a special meeting to discuss Article 22 placed on the warrant for Town Meeting, which will take place on Saturday, April 30, 9:30 a.m., at the Town Hall. Approval of Article 22 would raise and appropriate funding funds for an engineering study to remove the Williams Dam. The Londonderry Conservation Commission attended the special meeting, as did many other local residents. After a brief presentation by DuBois & King, who recently completed an alternatives analysis for the town, a public comment, question, and answer session was held.

Representatives from the Vermont Department of Environmental Conservation, Connecticut River Conservancy, and Trout Unlimited spoke to the ecological benefits of dam removal, and to the significant amount of funding currently available for dam removal projects, which would potentially cover all costs with no burden placed on the taxpayers. Representatives from Londonderry's Fire Departments discussed the importance of maintaining adequate water supply for fire fighting in town and the challenges that river based dry hydrants present. The town's selectboard spoke to the liability associated with owning the Williams Dam. Others spoke about the aesthetic value of the dam. Many viewpoints were heard, and most importantly, everyone in attendance had the opportunity to voice them. For those that are just learning about the issue, there is a great deal of information available for review on the town's website.

The Londonderry Conservation Commission supports the removal of the Williams Dam. From an environmental stewardship and ecological perspective, the benefits of dam removal are clear. We believe that a properly permitted, designed, and constructed dam removal project will restore this segment of the West River, and we trust that the permitting and design process can address the issue of adequate water supply for our fire departments. We have spoken with many Londonderry residents who support the removal of the dam because of concerns about the environment, as well as the projected taxpayer burden associated with not removing the dam, which is estimated at $767,000 for dam rehabilitation or $1,300,000 for dam replacement. We encourage everyone to participate in Town Meeting Day.

Sincerely,
Londonderry Conservation Commission
Londonderry, Vt.

Dear Editor,

To the Chester Selectboard and community members:

Good evening and thank you for your service. I am here for one reason: Police advisory committee.

I have lost count as to the amount of times I have asked the selectboard and Julie Hance, Chester Town Manager, to begin this process. Last Jan./Feb. I was told after the town budget passed. Then I was told after a police study was conducted. This year I am told after the police union contract is finalized.

It is time to put this on the selectboard agenda. Burlington, Barre, Bennington, and Montpelier are some of the towns which already have an advisory or oversight committee. The Montpelier Police Review Committee published a comprehensive and professional report on strategies to improve police transparency and accountability, which includes the sharing of data, Fair and Impartial Policing assessment, officer misconduct, and oversight on the purchase of militarization equipment. Also included is the recommendation for increased investments in community support programs such as police embedded social workers, or a crisis management team functioning with the police on calls.

Last year our town paid a $50,000 settlement to a man who was pulled over with a gun simply for driving while black. Was the Chester Police Department held accountable for breaking the Fair and Impartial Policing law? No, they were not. Selectboard Chair Arne Jonynas apologized and no internal complaint was filed against the two officers involved. No internal complaint, no record on file. For one of those officers, the Chief failed to report this use of a forced stop to the state.

This is just one example of what we the public know about, because the Vermont Human Rights Commission found unanimously that the CPD had violated Vermont's Fair and Impartial Policing state law.

We now have a holding cell in our quaint little town. No state law exists for municipal holding cells. How do we know the CPD is following their own holding cell policy? I would hate to see a holding cell incident that costs our town another $50,000, or worse, costs someone their life.

A FT officer is leaving in September. A police advisory committee could be part of the interview process for a new hire, or, perhaps we should we spend that money on a police embedded social worker.

We have a right to know what the police in this town are doing. Are they meeting the current needs of the community? Are they following the law? Are we helping or hurting the young people in this town; are we helping or hurting our folks with SUD or mental health conditions?

It is time to put this on the selectboard agenda. Tell me what I should do to make this happen. I am formally requesting this to be put on the Chester Selectboard agenda before this summer.

Sincerely,
Leslie M. Thorsen

Dear Editor,

This year, instead of producing several smaller, focused bills, the Senate Economic Development Committee created one omnibus economic development bill with a wide range of proposals. It took longer than expected to finish, and the House Commerce Committee is now considering it. The purpose of the bill

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR SUBMISSIONS

Subject to space. May be edited for clarity, grammatical errors, and libelous statements. Must be kept under 400 words. Must include name and town for publication. Viewpoints do not necessarily reflect the views of The Vermont Journal & The Shopper.

is to “address the negative economic impacts of Covid-19 on Vermont’s economy, employers, workers, and families, and establish opportunities to grow Vermont’s economy.” It balances support for both individuals and businesses.

The bill, H.159, offers $20 million in support of the pandemic’s hardest hit business sectors – special events, arts and culture, travel, lodging, tourism, agriculture, and child care – which are still struggling to recover. The Vermont Economic Development Authority will administer this money through short term forgivable loans of up to $200,000. VEDA has experience with the PPP program and has the ability and expertise to look at individual circumstances and make decisions based on an applicant’s unique financial needs.

New and existing programs are also supported in this bill. Vermont’s Relocating Employee Incentive program addresses our acute labor shortage challenge. The SED bill further invests $6 million into this program aimed at recruiting new workers to Vermont, and $4.2 million in regional marketing meant to attract new residents. A new Covid-19 wage replacement program is created to reimburse employers who voluntarily paid their employees who had to take time off because of the pandemic from Jan. 1 – Dec. 31, 2022. Reimbursement is paid out at 67% of an employee’s hourly wage and the maximum grant per employee is $27.50 per hour and $2,200 in the aggregate. Employers may also utilize the money to retroactively provide paid leave to employees. And, the SED bill boosts unemployment insurance benefits by $25 per week.

Two important tools in our economic development toolbox designed to incentivize the revitalization of our downtowns and village centers are the Downtown and Village Tax Credit and Tax Increment Financing programs. This bill increases the total amount of downtown tax credits awarded annually to $4.35 million from $3 million, and creates a new project based TIF pilot program which will allow smaller communities to finance a single public infrastructure improvement with no more than $5 million in public debt costs. This will expand the applicability of this successful program.

This bill also increases the minimum wage to $15 per hour by Jan. 1, 2024. This ensures that the base wage will be reset in two years and that the minimum wage will begin to grow from an updated foundation of $15 per hour. And, finally, H.159 creates three task forces: 1) to study the most advantageous way to set up a legal sports betting system in Vermont; 2) to examine the potential enactment of a paid family and medical leave insurance program, and; 3) to review the historical activities and future possibilities of cultivating a more robust Vermont film industry.

I appreciate hearing from you. I can be reached by email at aclarkson@leg.state.vt.us or by phone at 802-457-4627. To watch Legislative Committees in action and to get more information on the Vermont Legislature, the bills which are being debated now, and those which have been proposed and passed, visit the legislative website at legislature.vermont.gov.

Although such flushing may produce temporary discoloration, the safety of the water is not affected in any way. HOWEVER, we advise you to schedule clothes washing and cleaning projects at other time.
All mains will be flushed between 7:00 AM and 6:00 PM, Monday thru Friday. During the time this work is performed, IT IS EXPECTED THAT THE ENTIRE SYSTEM WILL BE AFFECTED. # green up day

Andover

ANDOVER, Vt. – We are seeing signs of spring: the return of migrating birds and the first buds on trees. As usual, we are dismayed when snowmelt reveals trash along the roadsides. As in the past, Andover volunteers are encouraged to rid the roadsides of trash, and also to give our cemeteries a spring cleanup on May 7. In addition, this year the state has challenged all towns to clean every mile of town roads. Last year, about 76% of all town roads in the state were cleared of trash and the hope is to get that number even higher this year. Trash bags will be available on Green Up Day at the Town Hall starting at 9 a.m. To get a head start, volunteers may obtain bags from the Town Office. We ask that they advise as to which roads they plan to clear so that we may keep track for the challenge. Green Up trash can be placed in the dumpster in front of the town garage. Contact Deb Moser, Green Up Coordinator, at dmoser6468@gmail.com for details.

Rockingham

ROCKINGHAM, Vt. – Green Up Day is coming to Rockingham, Saturday, May 7. Families and interested parties can pick up the familiar green bags to clean up neighborhoods, roads, parks, and playgrounds. Bags are available at J&H Hardware, the Saxtons River Market, Town Clerk's Office, and Lisai's Market. Vermont's Agency of Natural Resources has granted an exemption from Act. 148 – The Universal Recycling and Composting Act for Green-Up Day. For this event, trash and recycled containers can be mixed together in one bag. Once an area is clean, the green bags can be left by the side of the road for town-wide pick-up on May 9, or dropped off at the Rockingham Highway Garage or the Bellows Falls Garage. Trucks will no longer be stationed in Saxtons

River. Tires will not be accepted at the other locations. People are free to pick up green bags on their own and independently do their own clean up around their neighborhoods, parks, and roadways. Wear bright clothing; it is best to use gloves, check for ticks, and watch out for poison ivy. Do not pick up any needles, but notify the police of their locations. Need more information? Check out the statewide website at www.greenuptvermont.org. Want to report an area that needs a special crew or volunteer to captain a team? Please email Guy Payne, Green Up Day Rockingham Coordinator, at gpayne@gmail.com to let him know of your participation and the areas you'll focus on. We'd like to have the number of volunteers involved for this year – especially children – on record, so please contact Guy.

Ludlow

LOUDLOW, Vt. – Green Up Day will take place on Saturday, May 7 at 9 a.m. at the Ludlow Community Center. Volunteers can receive their assignments, shirts, and bags early if they choose too. Volunteers for Green Up Day will meet at 9 a.m. on the front lawn of the Ludlow Community Center for refreshments to go and t-shirts. At 9:15 a.m., instructions and routes will be handed out, and at 9:30 a.m. groups will disperse to designated Green Up areas. Contact Recreation Director Nick Miele at 802-245-4944 or ludlow-recreation@tds.net with questions.

We at the Chamber always look forward to hosting this annual event in Springfield and are calling for volunteers to assist us with cleaning up our town after the long winter. Our aim is to encourage 200 participants. Please join us and help our town reach this goal. Join us to Green Up downtown. We'll be in the Springfield Food Co-op parking lot, 8 a.m. – 12 p.m., or Green Up your own neighborhood or somewhere else around town. Please remember to dress appropriately. It is extremely important to wear work gloves, long pants, and proper footwear to protect against ticks and debris along your clean-up journey, and we suggest wearing bright colors such as neon orange or pink for visibility. Bring rakes, shovels, brooms, and any tools that might come in handy for clean-up. Volunteers will be on call throughout the morning to assist you with any questions you may have. Most of all, remember to have fun. You are bettering our town and community by sharing your energy and spirit to assist with maintaining Springfield's beauty. Our gratitude goes out to the Public Works Department. They will be going around to collect and properly dispose of all the filled bags and any trash items left on the sides of the roads. Please note that pick-up day is Monday, May 9 only. Thank you to all our neighbors, friends, and community partners that contribute their time and energy and volunteer with us every year. We appreciate everyone's help in keeping Springfield green and gorgeous. It takes a village. Official green trash bags will be available on the day of the event at Springfield Food Co-op parking lot, 6 Main St. They will also be available in advance at the Chamber office, 56 Main St., Suite 2. # Spring Home Improvement

“Landscape Gardening” with Henry Homeyer —

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. – Henry Homeyer, the “Gardening Guy,” will present the OLLI-Osher Lifelong Learning Institute program, “Landscape Gardening for Pollinators and Wildlife” on Tuesday, May 3 at 2 p.m. at the Nolin Murray Center next to St. Mary’s Church on Pleasant St. in Springfield, Vt.

Come learn how you can rethink the landscape and make your gardens and landscapes better for the birds, pollinators, and wildlife of all kinds, one step at a time.

Homeyer, author and gardening consultant, is known throughout the area for his timely and informative gardening topic columns in the local newspapers. He will present photos of plants and discuss alternatives to invasive and nonnative plants. He will explain the need for native plants in our gardens to support and balance our ecosystems. We can make a difference by providing keystone species that best support our wildlife.

This program is co-sponsored by the Springfield Garden Club.

Registration can be done online by going to www.learn.uvm.edu/olli/springfield. For registration assistance, please call 802-656-5817.

This is the final program of the Spring ’22 semester. Interesting programs are planned for the Fall ’22 semester which starts in September. You can check the above website in late August for details and to pre-register.

Credit amount: Creates a new tax credit of 26% of the purchase and installation costs (with no cap or lifetime limit) for tax years 2021 and 2022; moves down to 22% of purchase and installation costs in 2023 (under Sec. 25(D) of the U.S. tax code).

Qualifying products: Require qualifying products (any biomass-fueled heater) be at least 75% efficient per the higher heating value of the fuel that are used to heat a dwelling unit located in the United States and used as a residence by the taxpayer, or to heat water for use in such a dwelling unit.

How to qualify for the tax credit: Install a qualifying Central Boiler outdoor wood furnace (Classic Edge 360, 560, and 760) between Jan. 1, 2021 and Dec. 31, 2023; and claim the tax credit associated with your qualifying purchase and installation on your federal filing for the tax year.

This event aims to reinforce the partnership between Vermont garden clubs and their members and Vermont garden centers which bring both traditional and exotic plant materials to the public. This partnership event will encourage citizens to take an interest in the beauty of private landscapes and community civic spaces, either on their own or through membership in one of Vermont’s local garden clubs.

fifteen local garden clubs in Vermont, and was established to promote and aid in the protection and conservation of our state’s natural resources, assist garden clubs in Vermont, and encourage educational programs in the fields of horticulture, ecology, forestry, landscape design, environmental studies, and floral design. ## Final Chester poetry slam

CHESTER, Vt. – Mark your calendars, the final Stone Village Poetry Experience Slam will be held at 7 p.m. on Thursday, May 5.

Join the authors who’ve been reading and the poetry lovers who’ve been enjoying the readings at the First Universalist Parish of Chester at 211 North St.

This being the final of the slams, there will be even more poets. Poets who have read and been judged during all three events will be awarded first, second, and third prizes by the judges who will be, as they always are, picked from the audience. As always, the event will begin and end with noncompetitive poets reading from their works.

By all accounts, the evenings have been a great success. Poets have ranged in age from high-school students to retirees, and poems have ranged in topics from lust, love, and loss to hopes and homelessness.

The events have been sponsored by the First Universalist Parish and Chester’s Whiting Library. Some of the poems have been refined at the Poetry Workshops that have been held as part of the Stone Village Poetry Experience. The final workshop will be held at the library at 177 Main St. at 7 p.m. on May 19.

For more information, contact slam-master Tuck Wunderle at Tuckerman@terrigenous.com or Deirdre Doran at whitinglibrary1@gmail.com.

“Momologues,” Mother’s Day weekend

SAXTONS RIVER, Vt. – The Mother’s Day weekend comedy show, “Momologues,” will show at Main Street Arts on May 7 from 3-5 p.m.

Fifteen comics from around New England, themselves a mix of mothers, fathers, and children, have prepared their funniest “mom-themed” comedy for an all-ages event to celebrate those who brought us into this world. Doors open at 3 p.m., and audience members will be able to peruse local goods until 3:30 p.m., when the show starts. Vendors include Halladays Flowers and Wild Perennial jewelry, who supply the perfect gifts for every mom. Every VIP, that is, every mother in attendance, also gets a special gift upon entry.

Hosted by Marisa Imon and Raegan Garside, this duo was inspired to put on the event upon realizing how many laughs they shared recounting experiences involving their mothers. Garside says, “Hearing Marisa do a monologue about inane stuff her mom had said opened the floodgates of memories of similar stories about my mom. After riffing back and forth about the inadvertently funny stuff our moms had said and done over the years, the concept of “Momologues” was born.”

Advance tickets are available at www.comedyformom.com. Main Street Arts is located at 35 Main St., Saxtons River, Vt.

Fletcher Farm School classes—

LUDBLOW, Vt. – Spring events and classes are coming to the Fletcher Farm School for the Arts and Crafts.

Young Artist Scholarships: Applications for Young Artist Scholarships were sent to local schools in early April. The Fletcher Farm School will provide students with up to one-half of tuition for a five-day class to attend the class of their choice. Students from Ludlow and Cavendish will receive up to another subsidy from the Fletcher Farm Foundation. Parents will be responsible for paying a one-time per year registration fee, plus the materials fee for the class. These scholarships are also open to home-schooled students. Parents complete the application on behalf of the student, then return the application to the child’s art teacher for their recommendation. Completed applications must be returned to the Fletcher Farm School by May 1, 2022. Scholarship recipients will be notified on May 16.

May 7 (a.m. only) – Acrylic Pour...What is it? – Sandi Cirillo – Reg. deadline 4/27/22. In this class students will be working with acrylic paint and canvas, experimenting with colors and textures. Paint is spread onto the canvas and moved around with your hands. The paint will blend the colors and create unique patterns on the canvas.

May 14-15 – Creating Custom Cabochon Settings – Debi Orton – Reg. deadline 5/4/22. Stones with rounded domes are referred to as cabochons. The most typical setting for cabochons is a bezel setting. A bezel is a strip of wire that is soldered to a backing and wraps tightly around the stone. Beginning silversmiths set calibrated cabochons using calibrated, pre-formed settings. Ideally, students will have taken one of our basic silversmithing courses, or have other experience working with stones and metal.

May 14-15 – Fundamentals of Basketry – Meg Kupiec – Reg. deadline 5/4/22. This two-day workshop will introduce students to the basic methods of weaving baskets. These building blocks can be applied to larger and more complex patterns. We will work with a variety of reed sizes and shapes to create two or three different style baskets. Lashing, twining, triple rod whale, over/under; all these weaving techniques will be used to ensure that each person has their own unique basket to take home.

May 14-15 – Carve a Wooden Gnome – Wayne Miller – Reg. deadline 5/4/22. Because this is a beginner’s class, the gnome design chosen has no eyes or hands showing. We will start with a 2” x 2” x 5” piece of basswood that has already been roughed out. With the help of the instructor, students will proceed to carve a simple gnome figure. The basic kinds of cuts and safety procedures will be discussed and demonstrated. At the end of the class, students will have the option of painting their completed carving.

May 28-29 – Creative Metalworking – Piper Strong – Reg. deadline 5/18/22. Explore techniques in welding, brazing, and forming sheet metal into 3D shapes. The goal is to learn by creating your own small sculpture. You will explore organic and geometric forms, using a plasma cutter, torches, hand tools, and your own imagination. Two days will cover the basics and give you time to be creative and learn how to setup your own home studio. All abilities are welcome.

May 22 (10 a.m. – 2 p.m.) – Farmers’ Market Tote Bag – Janet Flinchbaugh – Reg. deadline 5/12/22. Get a jump-start on farmers’ market season with your own creation. Learn to cut stencil and/or use stencils the teacher has brought along to make a unique bag for yourself or a friend.

All of our summer classes are posted at www.fletcher-farm.org, and new classes are being added weekly.
