200-year-old inn’s romantic history repeats itself with new owners

BY PAULA BENSON
The Vermont Journal

PROCTORSVILLE, Vt. – Built around 1840, the colonial carriage style house on Main Street has over 6,000 square feet of space, a total of 12 bedrooms and 9 baths, a large wrap-around porch, and beautiful, original features such as stained-glass windows and detailed woodwork. Narrow staircases behind skinny doors connect the three floors and feel like secret passages.

Over the many years, the home has been owned by various families, including members of the Singleton family, the same family that owns Singleton’s General Store right across the street. In 1987, the property was known as the Okemo Lantern Lodge when it was purchased by Dorothy “Dody” and Charles “Pete” Buttons, after the couple retired from their jobs in another state and moved to Vermont. The current owners christened the house The Black Bear Den after they purchased the property in September 2022.

There is an idyllic fantasy that has persisted for many years involving moving to Vermont with plans to open a bed and breakfast. From Lifetime movies, to the Bob Newhart Show from the early 1980s, stories of people who leave the “big city” for the romance and challenge of running a small-town inn continue. Few people act on that desire, but some do, including The Black Bear Den’s owners, Tim Brown and Caitlin Dee. They share a similar story with Charles and Dody Buttons, but perhaps one more charmingly impulsive.

Brown and Dee first met at a gathering for a Jeep club they were involved with in Connecticut. 48 days later, they purchased the Proctorsville property. They have been happily hard at work; cleaning, repairing, painting, and restoring the historic house ever since.

Brown retired from what was a regional sales manager job, and now works full time as the property manager for The Black Bear Den, which the couple has been renting out to large groups for short term stays. They may decide to open a B&B at some point, but admit the place needs more renovations before that can happen, and since Dee is still employed as a college professor, she can’t commit to running a bed and breakfast full time just yet.

Right now, Brown says, “Our hopes are to return the inn back to its original condition and create a well-cared for, beautiful home with gardens and more.” Brown admits, the couple has been taking on the work themselves, and “there have been a lot of necessary repairs and upgrades, and it’s been a ton of work already.”

Brown has even extended the restoration project to the timeworn cemetery on the hill above the house, another example of the couple’s commitment to honor the legacy of the property and town. Because the road leading to the cemetery has been blocked off, Brown explained, “No one is tending to it. The whole cemetery has fallen into disrepair.”

Called Proctor Cemetery after the Proctor family who donated the land, the earliest documented burial is from 1816. Buried there are five known U.S. Veterans, of the Revolutionary War, Civil War, the War of 1812, and the Spanish American War.

“Tim made a little path,” Dee related. “He’s been going up there, clearing out dead brush.”

“I’d like to get to the point where it looks nice, with flowers, and grass,” said Brown.

Much like their home, the pair exudes a positive energy. Dee and Brown really seem to be enjoying their adventure so far, laughing as they shared their story with me.

Dee went on to say that after an offer on a different property fell through, she saw the online post with the inn for sale. “It just really seemed meant to be. We didn’t plan to buy something this big, or own an inn, but here we are, and we’re just going with it for now.”

Both Dee and Brown look forward to spending time at the house together, and with their blended family, (they each have two children) and will continue renting to other families and groups who want to visit the area and stay in a unique home.

Someday, they said, they’ll have their wedding at the house.

Funds requested from Chester Trustees of Public Funds

BY IAN BARD
The Vermont Journal

CHESTER, Vt. – A member of the Chester Trustees of Public funds, Shirley Barrett, was brought in by the Chester Selectboard during their Jan. 4 meeting to hear a request for $52,000 to be used for the cemetery department. The board members present, Arne Jonynas, Leigh Dakin, and Lee Gustafson, were curious about the workings of the Trustees of Public Funds and continued discussing.

The trustees are an elected committee in Chester that manage a set of funds that were donated to the trustees to be used on a specific issue, the largest three categories being the cemetery, school, and poor funds. The trustees hear requests for funds from the selectboard and decide if the request is reasonable and fulfills the use intended when the money was donated. Barrett stated that a representative of M&T Bank would be coming to the trustee meeting on Monday, Jan. 9 to discuss what the funds ended the year at. In the third quarter report the funds total was around $730,000.

The selectboard requested funds of $52,000 to be spent from the cemetery fund. They were requesting $23,000 to cover tree work and a new tractor from 2022 and $29,000 for tree maintenance, survey work, and a much needed expansion of the equipment shed in upcoming 2023. While Barrett was not there to make a decision on the request, she expressed concern over using the funds to cover the costs of already purchased items from 2022. The board had a discussion with Barrett over the trustees procedure for accepting or denying a request. There was not much information about the procedure and policies of the trustees mentioned in the meeting and the board expressed interest in finding more out in the near future. After Barrett left the meeting the board members present discussed the greater importance of the 2023 expenses and that if need be they would drop the request for the 2022 expenses. An open spot on the trustees was also mentioned during the meeting.

The board briefly went over the license agreement for the community greenhouse. The board had heard back from their attorney and forwarded all the information they had to the club. The board is now waiting to hear back on their thoughts.

The general fund budget review continued from previous meetings. It was stated that the year end numbers are not in yet, but the town is currently at a $5,000 surplus, and there are no major expenses expected.

The board has received three proposals from monitoring companies to establish Chester’s short term rental registry.

Town Manager Julie Hance stated that the appraisal of the cost of a solar farm for the town is expected back on Jan. 26.

The board went into an executive session on the Police Collective Bargaining Agreement after the meeting.

The next meeting will be Wednesday, Jan. 18.

A Vermont family farm for over 225 years

UDLOW, Vt. – Smith Maple Crest Farm, located in Shrewsbury, Vt., was established circa 1790. The seventh Smith generation still farms it today. Dairy and sheep herds and maple sugaring were the initial focuses of the family farm. As years and markets changed, dairy and sheep herds were phased out while maple sugaring remained. Grass fed beef became the livestock part of the farm. The Smith's, Willard "Jeff" and Mary, have wonderful stories to share of the Smith Maple Crest's past history and its present farming operation on Thursday Jan. 19, at 7:30 p.m., at Fletcher Memorial Library in Ludlow. For a sneak peak of what's in store, please visit www.fmlnews.org or www.smithmaplecrest-farm.com, or call FML at 802-228-8921 or Jerry Milligan 802-734-3829.

Annual Grafton Ice Bar event sells out for the second year in a row

BY PAULA BENSON
The Shopper

GRAFTON, Vt. – On Friday and Saturday, Jan. 6 and 7, the normally sleepy town of Grafton, Vt. welcomed the return of the annual party known as the Grafton Ice Bar. Sponsored by the Grafton Inn, Jamie Gregory Trucking and Excavating, and others, the event featured bars and sculptures carved from ice, a selection of craft beers, cocktails made with local Vermont spirits, hot apple cider, and bonfires aplenty.

The skies remained clear and the weather seemed perfect for the evening with temps cold enough to feel chilly if a fire pit wasn't close, but warm enough that the ice bars, cocktail tables, and benches were melting just a bit. The ice sculptures shimmered under the blue and white string lights hanging throughout the outdoor space. Attendees in winter gear crunched across the packed snow mingling and chatting in small groups, while a DJ from Peak Entertainment played a rowdy mix of pop music from the 80s through today. Sometimes a song would inspire a few folks to bop their heads or do some hip shaking. There was a long line at Tito's Taqueria most of the evening, the popular food truck serving tacos and burritos to the patient crowd. A huge bonfire raged just above the main event area at the bottom of the hill behind the Grafton Inn and Main Street. Volunteers from the Windham Foundation carried six foot logs to stack in tee-pee style on the blaze. Bales of hay circled the bonfire where dozens of people sat visiting with friends or meeting new ones, sipping cocktails, and soaking up the warmth of the flames. Many of the people there were guests of the Grafton Inn, and had come from nearby states, or other towns in Vermont, but more than a handful of locals were also in attendance, enjoying one of the annual social events that make the town of Grafton such a unique community.

Unfinished business

I have a number of articles I'm working on. But as is often the case, I need more information.

Hunting rattlesnakes

Ken Cook called me last month. Ken was my neighbor growing up on High Street. Ken wanted to talk about my father, Arnold, hunting rattlesnakes in the 1950s. Ken urged me to write about it. I do remember the rattlesnakes. Dad hunted rattlesnakes on the slate piles in Fair Haven. Vermont paid a bounty of a dollar each in those days.

I have a 35mm slide of me at four or five years old holding a rattlesnake. I told Ken I would need the slide to write the story. The problem is, the slide is in a crawl space that no man dares enter.

This past weekend Bill Burton called. Ken Cook and Bill married sisters. Bill remembers my father going to the Burton house to show Bill's father, Wendell, rattlesnakes he got that day.

Bill said his father took a photo of my Dad holding two rattlesnakes. Bill doesn't have the photo but is going to ask his sister, Brenda, if she might have it. That photo would be perfect with this story.

Photos, postcards, and unfinished business

I have an excellent book, "Vermont Album," 1974, with text by Ralph Nading Hill, and published by Vermont Life and The Vermont Historical Society. In it I found a few postcards pictured that I have. But I need written permission to use the text in the book. I will inquire.

One postcard description I need permission to use is the Post Office in Searsburg, Vt. It is the photo with this article. Needham Drury Bartlett stands in the doorway. He was an old Yankee. He raised a few vegetables on the hillside behind the shack. He had a string from the shack to the garden. A postal customer would pull the string, which activated a bell in the garden. It's a fun story.

Another photo in this book I also have is a butcher with his horse-drawn meat wagon. Painted on side of the wagon is "L.E. Stratton." The butcher stands at the tailgate wearing a white apron and cutting meat. I knew nothing about this postcard until this past week. I saw Quint Carr at the Chester Post Office the other day. We got to talking about things.

I told Quint about the Stratton postcard. Quint told me his father, Paul, has the same postcard. Now it got interesting. I've known Paul for years, and sometimes visit him. Paul is in his 80s and grew up in Williamsville, the other side of Newfane.

Paul has some wonderful stories about growing up in Williamsville. Quint told me L.E. Stratton was a foster parent of Paul's father, or grandfather (I forget which now), and he was a butcher peddling meat in the area.

I'll pay Paul a visit and record this history before it is lost. Paul told me a story that dates to 1913. A man was chopping firewood with his Dalmatian close by. A large bear slipped off a ledge above, and rolled down next to the dog and man. The bear aggressively took after the dog. The man with the axe killed the bear with one blow. I don't recall if Paul has this postcard or not. If he does I'll copy it.

If you have any information on any of these stories please call or email me.

Yankee cuisine

Ted Spaulding and I were talking about my New Year's story last week. We talked about Yankee food. Salmon pea wiggle, dried beef gravy, salt pork and codfish gravy, sausage gravy with biscuit, and the dreaded meatloaf.

Next we talked about horseradish. I love horseradish. I grew horseradish when I was young. It's a large root. Once cleaned, we ground it and added distilled vinegar. The fumes are so potent we ground it in the barn for better ventilation.

Oyster stew is another favorite of mine. Oyster stew suppers were held at churches and fraternal organizations years ago. Ted told me about such a supper at the Odd Fellows Hall in Saxtons River. The cooks were busy keeping customers supplied. Claude Tenney was adding pepper to a kettle of oyster stew when the cover came off the pepper shaker, dumping large amounts of pepper in the stew. Ted described it this way: "Claude bailed out the pepper." That expression struck me funny.

This week's old saying was sent to me by a reader. He asked an elderly man how he was doing. "Circling the drain, Lindy, just circling the drain."

Springfield Hospital seeking Apple Blossom Cotillion directors

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. – According to the American Heritage Dictionary, tradition means "a time-honored practice or a set of such practices." Keeping traditions like the Apple Blossom Cotillion alive requires people and a strong commitment to the "practice." For years there has not been any lack of commitment from individuals such as Pam Church, Carrie Jewell, Larry Kraft, Marie Laplante, Tracy Austin, and numerous others. We appreciate the years of volunteer dedication since the Cotillion's inception in 1957.

Springfield Hospital remains committed to the Apple Blossom Cotillion, and we are seeking your help. We are seeking new directors for the 2023 Cotillion. Pam and Carrie have done an outstanding job over the years, and are now ready to hand over the directorship to new leadership.

If you have an interest in either directing or helping with the production of the 2023 Apple Blossom Cotillion, which traditionally takes place the first weekend in May, please email or call Sandy Peplau, Marketing and Development, 802-885-7686, speplau@springfield-hospital.org.

Mirrors for climate mitigation at Rockingham Library

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. – Learn about a new climate solution that uses mirrors to reduce earth's rising temperatures, presented by Professor Lisa Doner on Saturday, Jan. 21, at 11 a.m. at the Rockingham Library.

One of the most pressing environmental problems we face today is that the earth is overheating, threatening human, plant, and animal life. This presentation will discuss a strikingly innovative solution, which proposes that surface-based mirrors can be used to reflect sunlight away from the earth before it can be absorbed as heat, thereby helping to reduce rising temperatures. Such a simple, mechanical solution would grant us a vitally necessary reprieve - time to work on transitioning away from fossil fuels.

This new idea, developed by MIT and Harvard scientist Dr. Ye Tao, will be presented by Dr. Tao's colleague, Professor Lisa Doner, who is an Associate Professor in Environmental Science at Plymouth State University. Prof. Doner currently spearheads two field experiments using prototype mirrors at Plymouth State University and the Concord Technical Institute, both in New Hampshire.

For more information on the subject of the presentation, visit www.meer.org.

This presentation is free and open to the public. Those who can't attend the program in person may go to this Zoom link <https://us02web.zoom.us/j/89191411557> or go to www.rockinghamlibrary.org and click on the Zoom link from there. If there is inclement weather locally or anyway along the way from Plymouth, N.H. (where the presenter lives) on the day of this presentation, the program will switch to zoom only. Please check the library's website for details. For more information, email programming@rockinghamlibrary.org, call 802-463-4270, or stop by the library at 65 Westminster St., Bellows Falls, Vt.

Springfield Town Library planning for the future

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. – The Springfield Town Library and the Library Board of Trustees are planning for the next three years and are seeking community input to guide the plan. Opinions about the needs of the town as well as the library are sought. Non-users of the library are especially encouraged to participate so the library can meet the needs of the entire community.

Those who have an existing Google account can access the online survey from the library website, www.springfieldtownlibrary.org or go directly to <https://bit.ly/3vEX7tC>. There are print surveys available for those who prefer paper or do not have a Google account. They are available at the library, from library trustees, at the senior center, and the town offices. Additional locations will be added.

It is vital for the library trustees and staff to get as many people to complete the survey as possible. The library is here for the community and it is important to develop a plan to serve its needs.

OBITUARIES

Dear Editor,

To the voters of Plymouth, In Spring 2021, the Town of Plymouth contracted with Mac-lay Architects in Waitsfield, Vt.

Mac-lay completed a Net Zero energy report and requisite building renovation plan for the current Plymouth Town Hall facility, which can be found on the Town of Plymouth's website.

At the time, the projected cost of implementing this Net Zero building renovation plan was roughly one million dol-lars.

Since that time, global supply chain problems, inflation, and contractor backlogs have sig-nificantly increased the cost of completing a Net Zero renova-tion project.

Moving forward, and in de-ciding which way to re-cast their vote for the bond neces-sary to complete the full pro-ject, Plymouth voters should consider all of the following points:

1. The current town hall fa-cility is a metal span structure with separately-framed of-fice space, erected in the early 1970's. Metal span structures of this type, then and now were never designed to be "Net Zero" structures.

2. Net Zero-style structures by their very nature are de-signed or modified to be "tight" structures, in that they do not "breath" or "leak" like a typical structure, but instead require an impenetrable insulation en-velope.

3. To transform the cur-rent metal span structure into a "tight" structure requires a significant investment in very expensive roof modifications and prefabricated wall panels. Moreover, the Mac-lay-recom-mended heat pump technology, ventilation systems, and solar panels are all highly expensive options.

4. The Mac-lay plan origi-nally presented several dif-ferent options, one of which was simply performing de-ferred maintenance on the current town hall facility, which would include a new roof, new bay doors for the shop, and a new propane heating system (and to that end, the selectboard already and just recently had in-stalled a brand-new high efficiency propane boiler for the town hall offices).

5. For the already-ap-proved $950k, it would be largely possible to erect a brand-new metal span struc-ture for use by the Highway Department and Fire De-partment, and then relocate the town offices to the for-mer school building/current community center.

The town of Plymouth already owns and maintains the former school/current community center. It's a masonry structure in good condition that would require minimal modifications to be repurposed as the town of-fices.

Ultimately, voters must decide what's in the best in-terests of the town, all things considered, and whether or not they're willing to put the town into debt to achieve it.

Voters must keep in mind that a vote of "Yes" for the bond will mean the borrow-ing of up to $800k, and an increase in municipal taxes. This will be on top of a pro-jected increase of 16% in ed-ucation taxes due to the $75 million bond for the new middle/high school building in the WCSU.

Sincerely,
Keith Cappellini
Selectboard member
Plymouth, Vt.

Dear Editor,

To the voters of Plymouth, I support the bond acqui-sition and full weatheriza-tion project of our munici-pal building. What began as a project to repair a leaky roof and upgrade its insulation evolved into a well thought out process to look at the build-ing as a whole. Our municipal building itself has good bones and meets the needs of our

Robert Lee Currier Sr., 1941-2023

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. – Robert Lee Currier Sr. of Springfield, Vt. died peacefully at Springfield Hospital with his wife Joan by his side on Friday, Jan. 6, 2023. He was able to say his goodbyes and give her one final kiss.

Bob was born on June 17, 1941 in Springfield, Vt. to Clifford F. Currier and Vivian M. Currier (Hill) who both preceded him in death. Bob had a younger brother Rich-ard F. Currier as well as a sister Nancy M. Currier who both preceded him in death.

Bob is survived by his loving (and very patient) wife Joan and their dog Angel. They would have celebrated their 63rd wedding anniversary in February. They were mar-ried in Springfield at the Calvary Baptist Church. He is also survived by his three children Amy (Cur-rier) Estey of Atlanta, Ga. and her husband Joe, Robert Lee Currier Jr. and his wife Patti of West-ford, Vt., and Bechi Cur-rier and Brian LaRusso of Howell, N.J.; Six grand-children Allison Crouch, Joshua Estey, Robert Lee Currier III, Erin Zervas, Matthew Currier, and Megan Currier.

states, as well as New York, New Jersey, and Ohio partic-ipating in different leagues and tournaments. He was Vermont State Champion in 1980. "RC", as he was known by his shooting friends, won hundreds of trophies and other accolades throughout the years and most recently shot at the Vermont State Shoot in June of 2022.

He loved his Cowboys and the Red Sox and remained a steadfast fan through thick and thin. He was a hunter, a fisherman, and he loved working around his home. He could fix anything. He watched westerns and loved John Wayne. He fought for the neck from the turkey every year at Thanksgiv-ing - most recently with his granddaughter Megan. He loved strawberry shortcake, which Joan lovingly made him each year for his birth-day, and never passed up the opportunity for lobster and steamers! Some say he might have cheated on a game or two of cribbage, a game he enjoyed with his daughters Amy and Bechi, his sister Carol, and many of his friends. And no morning was complete without a few rounds of pinocle on the computer.

Bob, RC, Daddy, Grandpa, Brother, Uncle - our dia-mond in the rough. You had a heart of gold, and would do anything for anyone; a champion of young and old, of animals, anyone in need of a helping hand. We will miss you more than words can say. You have left your mark on all of us. You will never be forgotten.

A Visitation will be on Fri-day, Jan. 13, 2023 from 1-3 p.m. at the Davis Memorial Chapel in Springfield, Vt.

A memorial service will take place following the vi-sitation at 3 p.m.

highway, administrative, and fire departments.

Our building consumes a lot of energy, especially compared with other Vermont municipal buildings, which was discov-ered after an energy audit from Two Rivers Ottauquechee. This is due in part to design and accumulated deferred maintenance. Daylight is vis-ible in sections of overhead doors, some steel entry doors are rotted, leaky windows, and outdated heating systems all contribute to this. The lack of roof overhangs in our climate is contributing to the degradation of the siding.

A goal of the project is to be sure that we are balancing long-term operating cost with capi-tal investment. Inflation has increased the initial cost of the project substantially; however, heating fuels have also risen accordingly. The bond, if ap-proved, will increase our town's annual expenses by approxi-mately $70,000 per year but we expect to achieve a significant reduction in annual energy costs. I think we can also elimi-nate most of the $25,000 annual appropriation to the building reserve for at least the next 20 years.

The project did not start as a "green" or "renewable" project, but it has many of those attri-butes. It has the potential to be "net-zero," reducing the town's carbon emissions if we choose to employ enough renewable energy to meet the buildings energy demands. I've seen how these investments have proven worthwhile, locking in at a fixed electricity cost for 20 years or more.

The project will also improve building occupant comfort, po-tentially improving employee retention and recruitment. The timing of the project is op-portune, Selectboard member Rick Kaminski is serving as the Town's Project Manager, with over 45 years of experience in commercial construction, and he's generously worked to de-velop this project and will see it through to completion.

Whether your priority is operating expense reduction, carbon emissions, employee retention, or pride in our town, if completed we'll have an es-sentially new building requir-ing very little work for years to come, and I hope you'll join us in approving the bond and sup-porting the project.

Sincerely,
Jay Kullman

FWN: Responding to spam calls

REGION – Sharon experienced an all too familiar scene. The call warned her of over $10,000 in charges made on her account from several countries and she was asked to “help investigate this” by agreeing to install the app “Open Desk” on her cell phone. The caller told her to withdraw $10,000 from her bank and deposit the money in a special account “to keep the hackers from getting her money.” The criminal told Sharon not to tell the bank “because the hacker might be a person from the bank.” A claim was being filed with the FTC and the agency would call her. When the call came on a spoofed phone number displaying “United States Government,” Sharon realized that the whole thing was a fraud and contacted the FTC finding that no claim was filed; she filed one herself.

Here are some takeaways from this incident:

1. Scammers like to use the phone to commit crimes. Calls are virtually untraceable using spoofed numbers.
2. To the degree possible, allow calls to go to voice-mail. Criminals rarely leave messages.
3. Criminals play on emotion and urgency. In this case the loss of $10,000 is likely to trigger a strong emotional response. Any time a caller unknown to you sets emotions into gear, step back and consider how to respond.
4. Refrain from giving the unknown caller any personal information. This, too, can be difficult. Often the scammers impersonate authority, and generally people respond with obedience to authority.
5. Determine if the criminal was successful in accessing personal data from you such as Social Security or Medicare number, credit card or bank account numbers, or other information.

If the information included your Social Security Number, contact www.ssa.gov/fraud/; for Medicare identity theft, www.medicare.gov/fraud. If financial account or credit card information was divulged, notify the company involved and request an account cancellation and reissue.

While nothing provides 100% protection from fraud, here are some steps you can take to protect your assets and information:

1. Contact the three major credit bureaus and activate credit freezes. Freezes lock your credit reports from others obtaining personal information. Freezes are free of charge and can be lifted if there is a need to provide access. Go to www.annualcreditreport.com and request copies of your credit reports from the three major credit bureaus, you will be asked for your Social Security Number and some questions related to your financial report.

2. Activate multi-factor authentication, MFA, with all financial, insurance, and shopping accounts. MFA requires use of an alternative means such as an email or cellular number to verify identity and provide access to the account.

AARP issues bi-weekly alerts and anyone, regardless of age, can register at www.aarp.org/fraud. The Federal Trade Commission issues frequent alerts; register at www.consumer.ftc.gov/scam-alerts. The Better Business Bureau – www.bbb.org/scamtips; National Consumers League – www.fraud.org; and, Scam Detector – www.scam-detector.com.

Rani Arbo and Daisy Mayhem at Next Stage —

PUTNEY, Vt. – Next Stage Arts Project and Twilight Music present New England's acclaimed folk/roots quartet Rani Arbo and Daisy Mayhem at Next Stage on Sunday, Jan. 22 at 4 p.m.

Rani Arbo and Daisy Mayhem feature four-part vocal harmonies, indelible songs, fiddle, acoustic and electric guitars, bass, and a homemade percussion kit of cardboard boxes, tin cans, caulk tubes, packing-tape tambourines, bottle-cap rattles, Mongolian jaw harps, and a vinyl suitcase. Over the past 20 years, the quartet has toured across North America, and has released seven CDs on Signature Sounds.

In the lineage of string bands who blur the boundaries of American roots music, Rani, Andrew Kinsey, Anand Nayak, and Scott Kessel have always been standard-bearers, with a particular knack for pairing words and music. From bluegrass barnstormers to sultry swing, old-time gospel to bluesy folk-rock, they consistently turn in lush arrangements of original songs alongside artful re-workings of a melange of music.

Next Stage is located at 15 Kimball Hill in downtown Putney, Vt. Tickets are cheaper in advance or can be bought at the door. Advance tickets are available at www.nextstagearts.org. Next Stage will provide a beer, wine, and cocktail cash bar. For information, call 802-387-0102 or visit www.nextstagearts.org.

HCRS 2023 positivity calendar fundraiser —

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. – Health Care and Rehabilitation Services (HCRS), southeastern Vermont's second largest nonprofit community mental health agency, announced the sale of 2023 wall calendars to raise needed funding for food and shelter assistance across southeastern Vermont. The 12-month calendars feature seasonal images with positivity quotes and sayings.

The rate of food insecurity and need for safe shelter spiked during Covid, and thanks in part to the rise of costs, sufficient food and affordable apartments have remained beyond reach for many in our region. Anne

Bilodeau, HCRS' Chief Operating Officer, said, "We wanted to support this critical need in our communities, so we came up with the idea to create and print positivity calendars as a fundraiser."

HCRS will donate 3/4 of the money from the sale of each calendar to the following organizations: Upper Valley Haven in White River Junction, the Springfield Family Center, Parks Place Resource Center in Bellows Falls, and the Groundworks Collaborative in Brattleboro.

You can view the image for each month as well as purchase the calendar at www.hcrs.org/blog/hcrs-2023-positivity-calendars-are-available-now. There is a cheap shipping cost for one or two calendars; supplies are limited.

Bilodeau adds, "This fundraiser not only allows us to support our valued community partners and people in need across southeastern Vermont, but the calendars will also bring a feeling of positivity to any space where they are displayed."

Anyone with questions about the calendar or fundraiser can call 802-886-4567 ext. 2191 or email abradeen@hcrs.org for more information.

Bilodeau said, "We hope the community will join us in our effort to support the food and shelter needs of friends and neighbors in our communities."

Snowmobile season —

REGION – The U.S. Forest Service is looking forward to a successful snowmobile season. Weather permitting, snowmobile use is allowed on designated trails from Friday, Dec. 16 through Saturday, April 15, 2023.

Green Mountain National Forest (GMNF) officials remind snowmobile enthusiasts to heed to all gates and signs and to stay off roads and trails that are closed. Keep to the right at all times, wear helmets, and stay on designated trails. All snowmobiles must be legally registered, have liability insurance, and operators must purchase a VAST Trails Maintenance Assessment decal.

The GMNF and the Vermont Association of Snow Travelers (VAST) cooperate to maintain more than 470 miles of National Forest System trails that are part of the larger statewide snowmobile network, for mixed uses, including snowshoeing, hiking, and cross-country skiing.
