Cavendish discusses Greven Field clean-up

BY PAULA BENSON
The Vermont Journal

CAVENDISH, Vt. – State Representative John Arrison attended the Monday, Aug. 14 Cavendish Selectboard meeting to address the board and those present regarding the reappraisal notice the town had received from the state. Arrison explained that the high sales prices over the last few years have triggered many reappraisals, but suggested the board put it off as long as possible, and said there was a window to appeal the requirement.

Since Cavendish had reappraised in 2019, the town hasn't had much time to collect funds to pay for another reappraisal, and Arrison warned that it could be a significant expense.

"Part of Act 46," said Arrison, "is that [it requires] a report by December of this year from the tax department on implementing a state-wide reappraisal – in other words, you folks won't have to worry about it again. Then, by December of 2024, they have to have the final plan." Arrison advised the board to talk to the New England Municipal Resource Center (NEMRC) about appealing the appraisal requirement, and take the next few years to accumulate the funds to cover the cost.

Resident Chris Chadwick presented the board with a list of questions regarding his potential purchase of the old Academy Building. Chadwick reported that he is trying to get the restoration project going by this fall, and will need permission to draw up a new deed allowing for residential rentals, address issues of parking, snow removal, and historic preservation, and determine the official property line. "It's a historic building, it just needs to be tended to. I'm willing to tend to it, but I need some questions answered before we can go forward with buying it."

Chadwick also asked the board what the plan was for cleaning up Greven Field. The sports field and recreational area was destroyed in the July flooding. Chadwick mentioned he'd read online that Black River Action Team (BRAT) had plans to go in there, but Town Manager Rick Chambers said equipment would be needed first, before the area would be safe enough for people to enter.

"I don't believe they're going to go in there right off," Chambers replied, calling the area "a liability" and "dangerous." He said the fence and building had to be taken down before volunteers would be allowed in.

Chadwick relayed an assessment he'd received from a vendor he works with, which reported that the perimeter fencing was likely non-salvageable, but the town may be able to recoup some of its loss by selling the materials to a recycling company.

According to former recreation director Terry O'Brien, Chadwick reported, the field can be rebuilt, and Chadwick had already taken some steps to see how that could happen, while considering precautionary changes to help prevent re-flooding damage. For instance, Chadwick suggested, make the dugouts out of cinder blocks, and install a plastic, removable fence during baseball season. He said he's approached LaValley's Building Supply, who offered to help offset the costs of building materials, and a local excavation company was willing to offer a discount to work on the clean-up.

Margo Caulfield mentioned there were FEMA guidelines for building recreation fields in flood zones. Chambers reiterated that the town would need to do a lot more planning before the field could be rebuilt. "If something is done there, it has to be done correctly and within the regulations," stated Chambers.

Caulfield reminded the board that current recreational director Stephanie Knockenhauer should be involved, and everyone agreed. The first thing that will need to occur, Chadwick expressed, is the road leading into the field needs to be built back up, as equipment cannot access that area currently. Since it is town property, Chambers said they had the ability to bring some resources to that project.

Chambers reported that the town Emergency Relief Assistance Funding (ERAF) rating is at 17.5%, and they will now get an extra 10% in state funding for flood repairs. He also took a moment to remind the board that the town has Flood Hazard Area Regulations (FHAR), which need to be in place as a requirement to participate in the National Flood Insurance Program. Chambers said, "These regulations can be found on the town's website, and we are just now putting together new permit applications and checklists which will accompany our building permits in the future. People should really be looking to the town, if and when they are ready to rebuild anything on their property, contacting us to receive the proper permits to do so."

According to Chambers, the update on town road conditions was, "Beautiful! Much better than they were a month ago!" He went on to mention what an incredible job the town highway department and local contractors have done, and that most roads are now passable, with the exception of parts of Bailey Hill Road, Chaos Turnpike, and Depot Street, which are still closed. Chambers said he did not know when Route 131 would reopen, and that he believed the state was waiting on the delivery of guardrails, and continuing repair work to damaged sections.

Board member Shannon Devereux brought up Quent Phelan Road, which, she and Chambers agreed, was "in sad shape." Chambers outlined some issues with the road's repair, stating that it was beyond patching, and needs to be rebuilt before repaving. There was some discussion about keeping it a dirt/gravel road for the winter.

The board decided to wait to sign the proposed Solar Bond Note, after Chambers reported that town clerk and treasurer Diana McNamara was looking for additional quotes, hoping to get a better interest rate.

The Golden Stage Inn received an event permit to serve alcohol at the annual Golden Honey Festival, which will be held on Sept. 9, from 10 a.m. - 4 p.m.

The board's next meeting will be held on Monday, Sept. 11 at 6:30 p.m.

Volunteers clean up flood-damaged lakes

LUDDLAW, Vt. – At least 40 volunteers came out to Lake Rescue equipped with work gloves, kayaks, small motorboats, and pickup trucks on Sunday, to clean up debris left behind after the historic July flood dumped about eight inches of rain upon the Ludlow lakes region. The Lake Rescue Clean-Up Day was the second of two such endeavors; the Lake Rescue Association (LRA) had organized a similar Lake Clean-Up Day the previous weekend on Lake Pauline, just south of the Lake Rescue dam, in cooperation with the Black River Action Team (BRAT).

"We had two tremendous clean-up events," said Bruce Zanca, president of the Lake Rescue Association. "It was real community spirit, and it made me really proud. Many of our neighbors showed up and worked long hours doing heavy lifting, and we made some great progress cleaning up the devastating mess from the July 10 floods." Zanca said volunteer drivers made more than 20 runs to the Ludlow transfer station with truckloads of debris from the lake, including "derelict docks, trees floating in the water, trash, all sorts of different things."

Still, despite the success of the two Lake Clean-Up Days, he said, "We still have some work to do."

"It was awe-inspiring," said Gloria Katsiff, an LRA board member, as she handed out sandwiches and bottles of water to volunteers on Red Bridge Road, beside the horseshoe-shaped dam where much of the soggy detritus had been propelled by raging water down the Black River and through 184-acre Lake Rescue. Splintered docks, battered boats, large trees, life jackets, and broken pieces of outdoor furniture were jumbled in the unsightly mess by the lakeshore and against the dam edge before volunteers arrived at 9 a.m. Sunday and got right to work.

"It gave me goosebumps, to see in the first 30 minutes those big logs and things coming out of the water. People were working with their neighbors, with strangers, working hand in hand, to remove these big items that we thought we would never get out," said Katsiff. Many of the volunteers had suffered flood damage themselves, and yet still came out to help.

People waded into the murky water, or used kayaks with ropes attached, to pull debris ashore to be carted away. Volunteers with chainsaws, backhoes, and large trucks pulled fallen trees out of the lake, carved them up, and disposed of the wood. Water quality tests conducted by both the LRA and BRAT after the flood found the lake to be within acceptable levels for

E. coli. "I just love this area," said Emily Sause, who came to volunteer from New York. "When I heard they needed help cleaning up, I had to come."

"It warms my heart to see how much people care," said Cindi West, whose home across the street was rendered uninhabitable by floodwaters.

The Lake Rescue Association installed a heavy-duty hand crank on the Diver Assisted Suction Harvesting (DASH) boat it uses to ameliorate invasive milfoil, which enabled the crew to pull up large dock pieces and debris mired in mud since the flood. With the help of volunteers in small motorboats, large dock pieces were returned to their owners around the lake.

The Lake Rescue Association works to maintain, restore, and ensure the future of Lake Rescue and Lake Pauline, and build a stronger lakes district community. It often works in cooperation with BRAT to advance the health of the Black River watershed, which runs from Plymouth through Lakes Amherst, Echo, Rescue, and Pauline, before continuing south to Springfield.

Tracy Messer of Coolidge Foundation speaks to Rotary

LUDDLAW, Vt. – Tracy W. Messer of the Calvin Coolidge Foundation, portraying President Calvin Coolidge, addressed the Ludlow Rotary Club at its Aug. 15 meeting. On the heels of the Centennial Celebration of his Aug. 3, 1923, inauguration, the reenacted 30th President of the United States told stories and recited from his biography.

One of the stories Messer told was that, as president, Coolidge raised over $10 million for the 1927 floods in Mississippi. However, many people were upset by his failure to come visit the devastation. Consequently, when Vermont flooded later that year, he did not come home because he had not gone to Mississippi. Instead, he sent the best engineer in the country, Herbert H. Hoover, to oversee repairs.

During his tenure, Coolidge oversaw the economic prosperity of the Roaring 20s. Families installed indoor plumbing and electricity in their homes, and the five-day work week was adopted as the national standard. Coolidge did not choose to run in 1928, as he wanted to get out after six years in office. Had he run and won again, he would have served 10 years, and he felt that was too long for any one person to hold the office.

As Calvin Coolidge, Messer quoted the poem "Vermont is a state I love" in closing.

Plymouth disapproves STR amendments

PLYMOUTH, Vt. – On Aug. 15, the Town of Plymouth voted to disapprove the amendments made to the short-term rental (STR) ordinance by the selectboard on May 15. There were 13 yes votes and 17 no votes. This means the previous ordinance, established on July 6, 2021, is currently in effect.

STR applicants must order and install a Knox Box, have a final inspection with the STR administrator, and provide proof of homeowners' liability and casualty insurance that must contain an STR endorsement. "Any person who commences or continues to operate a short-term rental property without the required permit shall be deemed guilty of an infraction and may be fined up to $100 per day."

The full ordinance and application can be found on the town's website at www.plymouthvt.org/document/short-term-rental-application.

Mountain Town Circus coming to Londonderry

LONDONDERRY, Vt. – The second annual Mountain Town Circus is coming to Flood Brook School on Sunday, Sept. 10, from 11 a.m. – 3 p.m. Troy Wunderle and his Big Top Adventures deliver interactive circus fun and entertainment for the entire family. Proceeds benefit Neighborhood Connections and its mission.

The circus performance is from 1-2 p.m., but there are plenty of activities for the entire family before and after the performance. When the doors open at 11 a.m., circusgoers can opt to take a circus workshop and learn to juggle, walk a tightrope, balance on stilts, or ride a balance board; visit a face painter and balloon artist; have lunch from the Rollin Rooster, Sexy Llama Coffee, or Goodman's Pizza food trucks; munch on a bag of popcorn courtesy of The Tri-Mountain Lion's Club; take a chance on the 50-50 raffle; or bid on family-focused silent auction items.

Silent auction offerings include a portable Weber grill and Adirondack chairs from RK Miles, admission tickets to the Montshire Museum of Science, a child's Northface backpack and juggler sticks from The Mountain Goat, passes to the Bromley Adventure Park, dine around packages from area restaurants, and more. There are even items for household pets.

Tickets can be purchased at Neighborhood Connections, or online at www.neighborhoodconnectionsvt.org.

Ludlow Legion benefit barbecue

LUDLOW, Vt. – Please join on Saturday, Aug. 26, 9 a.m. – 2 p.m., for another delicious Legion Chicken Barbecue in downtown Ludlow. The Legion has hosted many benefit barbecues over the years, and they are always great and sell out quickly. We are honored to say that proceeds will be shared between the Expeditionary School at Black River (ESBR) and Black River Good Neighbor Services (BRGNS).

ESBR has been granted state approval as an Approved Independent School, to be reviewed for renewal in one year's time. This provides an amazing opportunity to continue to sustain an extraordinary local educational establishment.

BRGNS continues to serve this town diligently, especially with flood relief efforts. Such organizations are at the heart of a community, and any support helps it to thrive as a whole.

The Legion hopes to see everyone this Saturday. Rain or shine, they'll be out there serving up some lean mean barbecue.

If you would like to learn more about the school or get involved, please contact Gary Blodgett, chair of the board, at gblodgett@es-blackriver.org, or 802-558-3417. More information on BRGNS is available at www.brgn.org. Thank you to everyone for your continued support of this entire community.

Fleming updates Rotary on African orphanage

meeting, the Ludlow Rotary Club was pleased to welcome back Robert Fleming and Amy Carst of Malayaka House in Entebbe, Uganda.

Robert's story is amazing, how as a tourist in Uganda 18 years ago he became aware of a pregnant young woman not comprehending her pregnancy. Robert took it upon himself to keep a watchful eye and help as he may. The woman had her baby girl, and abandoned it in the bathroom of the hospital. Since Robert brought her in, the police told him to take the baby, as no one would want the child. The next day, Robert was given another young child by the police. You see children are dispensable in Uganda and Robert, being American, was believed to be able to care for them.

Robert, a single person on vacation, did not know how to change a diaper or care for a child. He learned very quickly. Hence, his first baby girl was named Malayaka (Angel), and the Malayaka house was "born." Many children have been welcomed here, each with their own heart-wrenching story. All are well loved, cared for, and educated at the best schools, and on to university if the desire is there. Malayaka House is their home, forever welcomed here, and Robert is their "Uncle."

50 children have been so wonderfully cared for and loved. They have an amazing sense of self and caring for each other. Robert no longer runs Malayaka House, as it takes more than he to manage the day-to-day paperwork, etc. Instead, Robert freely spends time with the children day to day, arranges for their education and welfare, and focuses of public speaking and raising the funds continually needed to provide for the children.

All those years ago, perhaps 15, Rotary was introduced to Robert, his story, and Malayaka House. The Ludlow Rotary Club was so impressed that it wrote and received a sizable Rotary District 7870 grant, to assist with the installation of solar panels for Malayaka House. The club was so touched by the kindness of Robert and his staff. A few Rotarians have visited Malayaka House. If you would like to learn more about this amazingly loving place, see the children, and read about all of the success of Malayaka House, please visit www.malayakahouse.com.

At the meeting, Robert spoke of his mission. It is to provide a loving and safe home for the children left behind, meet their needs, and provide the best education available for the kids.

Chester soapstone

BY RON PATCH

802-374-0119
ronpatch27@gmail.com

In the 1950s, Ed Kendall had a column in the Springfield Reporter. Below are excerpts from Ed's Jan. 29, 1958, column. It is far too long to include in its entirety.

"On July 10, 1885, the Chester Steam Power Co. leased some land to the Union Soapstone Co., at an annual rental of $25 for the purpose of erecting a mill for sawing and manufacturing soapstone, the roof of which should be covered with metal or slate..."

Big saws installed
Two up and down saws were installed to cut the large blocks into slabs of various thicknesses. Circular saws for cutting the slabs into the desired sizes were set up just beyond the up and down saws. A large revolving polishing bed, on which, with the aid of water and grits of various degrees of fineness, a very fine, smooth surface was produced on the pieces used in their manufactured products.

A large room was occupied by the tubmakers. In this room 10 or 12 men were engaged in the manufacture of laundry set tubs and kitchen sinks. It was an interesting sight to observe these men at their labor. The sides and ends of the tubs and sinks were mortised and tenoned and bolted together in a manner similar to one that would have been used if the material had been wood.

The joints were made leak-proof by a cement, the principle ingredient of which was litharge. The soapstone sink, with its high backboard and carved soap dishes, was an ornament in any kitchen. It was much easier for the housewife to keep clean and free from mars and scratches than the enameled ones in use today.

Make-up of Company
T.N. Wheelock was for many years a resident of Chester. He was at the shop every day, directing the work of the men and looking after the many details connected with the business.

George W. Cummings was connected with the First National Bank of Francess-town, N.H. and he was a cashier. He made weekly trips to Chester, spending two or three days each week at the plant and quarry.

Charles W. Burns of Wilton, N.H., the third member of the firm, used to visit Chester occasionally. He had charge of marketing at Boston. Mr. Burns had a son Charles, who was connected with the Boston end of the business...

First Superintendent
The first superintendent at the shop was a Mr. Phelps. I think he was a son-in-law of T.N. Wheelock. He was brought up from Francess-town where he had become familiar with all phases of the manufacturing of soapstone products in their shops at that place. Mr. Phelps resided on North Street. I think Mr. Phelps died rather suddenly and his job taken over by William O. Davis, a life long resident of the town.

He was an accomplished musician and led the Chester Cornet Band. When the Ladies Aid Society bought a steam fire engine for the South Street Fire District, Will Davis at once took over as its engineer. How well I remember its initial trial! Its operation was a wonderful sight to all of us boys... The sharp staccato noise of the engine's exhaust frightened us...

When the people of South Street reached the conclusion that Steamer Aid No. 1 had reached the end of its usefulness and decided that a reservoir was needed for fire protection and to supply the village with a water supply, W.O. Davis was one of the prime movers in putting the proposition over. No man had more to do with locating and building the reservoir and laying the water lines than he. For many years he was Chief Engineer of the Fire District. Chester owes much to the genius of this man, used in the installation of its water system.

40 Men In Quarry
J. Myron Robbins, who I mentioned in a previous article, informs me that at one time he counted 40 men laboring at the quarry. Thus at the quarry and mill nearly fourscore of men were furnished employment. A long, steep hill had to be negotiated in driving from the mill to the quarry. For many years a six-horse team, with an extra strong wagon was employed to haul the stone to the mill.

The large blocks would weigh from seven to nine tons. The drivers had many hair-raising moments driving down this hill with their heavy loads...

This week's old saying was used when someone had a black eye: "It seems you were talking when you should have been listening."

Preview party for "First Tracks"

LONDONDERRY, Vt. - Don't miss the preview party on Friday, Sept. 1, at 5:30 p.m., at the Londonderry Arts and Historical Society's (LAHS) headquarters, the Custer Sharp House, 2461 Middletown Road. This will be your opportunity to get a sneak preview of "First Tracks: Londonderry and the Birth of Burton." Join the LAHS and mountain towns community for an evening of mingling with people who helped make snowboarding happen, sharing stories of the 70s and 80s, delicious hors d'oeuvres and cocktails. Go to www.lahsvt.org to make your reservation.

The "First Tracks: Londonderry and the Birth of Burton" exhibit explores how, in a small Vermont town, a dynamic young innovator, the late Jake Burton Carpenter, the founder of Burton Snowboards, created not only an industry, but also a culture and international movement. The Londonderry exhibit celebrates the early days of Burton, where the company was based from 1977-1981, and highlights those who worked alongside Jake and Donna Carpenter, testing and perfecting each snowboard iteration. From roadside hills and hidden trails at Snow Valley, to halfpipes built by local enthusiasts, snowboarding history runs deep in southern Vermont, and this special exhibit pays tribute to many Londonderry locals who played a role in the early days of snowboarding.

The exhibit will include memorabilia, photos, videos, and storyboards from the late 70s to early 90s, featuring the snowboarding "pioneers," and those who contributed to the development of the Burton board, many of whom still reside in our area today. The exhibit will also highlight local former pro snowboarders hailing from southern Vermont, including Burton U.S. Open competitors Mark Heingartner, Tara Eberhard, Hobie Chittenden, Mike Hayes, Steve Hayes, Olympians Betsy Shaw, Ludlow native and Olympic gold medalist Kelly Clark, and Ross Powers, who won bronze in 1998 and gold in 2002.

If you can't make the preview party, regular exhibit hours will be posted at the website above.

Charlie Chaplin's "The Gold Rush"

LUDLOW, Vt. - In keeping with its annual tradition, FOLA will offer a great silent movie, "The Gold Rush," starring Charlie Chaplin, on Saturday, Aug. 26, at 7 p.m., at the Heald Auditorium in Ludlow Town Hall.

"The Gold Rush" is a 1925 American silent comedy film written, produced, and directed by Charlie Chaplin. The film also stars Chaplin in his Little Tramp persona.

In this hilarious film, Chaplin, in the role of the Little Tramp, decides he'll go to Alaska and make his fortune in the gold rush.

Chaplin drew inspiration from photographs of the Klondike gold rush, as well as from the story of the Donner party, who, when snowbound in the Sierra Nevada, were driven to cannibalism, or eating leather from their shoes. Chaplin, who believed tragedies and comedies were not far from each other, decided to combine these stories of deprivation and horror in comedy.

He decided that his famous rogue figure should become a gold-digger, who joins a brave optimist determined to face all the pitfalls associated with the search for gold, such as sickness, hunger, cold, loneliness, or the possibility that he may at any time be attacked by a grizzly bear. In the film, scenes like Chaplin cooking and dreaming of his shoe, or how his starving friend Big Jim sees him as a chicken, could be seen.

Jeff Rapsis will be returning to play his original musical background to the movie. Jeff has been a favorite of audiences for his music, as well as his chats with the audience about the history behind the silent movie feature.

Also returning will be Glenn Brown. Glenn will be playing the musical background for the short comedy skit that opens the festival.

The silent movie festival is open to everyone and is free, although donations to support the costs of the productions are appreciated. Water is offered by the United Church of Ludlow. Call 802-855-8883 for information. Doors open at 6:30 p.m.

It was his keen insight that warned my listeners of the 2008 market collapse and how best to position themselves for the turbulent times to follow. An Ode to the Excavator

Please don't judge, or be a hater
But I think I'm in love with the excavator

A hero, warrior, and true gladiator
This star shows up sooner rather than later

Removing debris and filling in craters
Working alongside trucks, dozers, and graders

In short, I don't think you can debate her
It's time we give thanks for the excavator

Rain – July 10 and 11, 2023

The air was very humid and 80 to 90 for days. And we all know that Mother Nature works in very mysterious ways.

It rained and rained and rained and rained. And then it rained some more. And then the floodgates opened up and it began to pour! Stratton, Killington, Okemo, and places way up high, began to feel the wrath of the water from the sky. Water from the rivers where rivers had never been, tore up roads and caused mud slides and then – came down the mountains to the valleys far below. And made it even harder for the traffic there to flow. The river roars on mightily, and right before our eyes go propane tanks and boards and things and trees of every size.

South Londonderry, Londonderry, Weston, Ludlow, towns all in a row. And places all up through Vermont, the news began to show. Of flooding roads and people's cars floating down the streets. The kind of situation we all hope we never meet. Caring people, friends, and kin joined with the rescue crews to help the people from their homes. They all are brave and true. Our son tried to go to work but all the roads were blocked. And people going anywhere were in for quite a shock. Our daughter and granddaughter worked from home that day. They knew that all the problems would not come up their way. Our other daughter lives in Tunbridge way up on a hill. The water did not reach her, but she had problems still. Her daughter, son, their families too said, "Water's deep can we stay with you?" So with his folks, and all their pets it certainly was a crowded mess. But things like this, the push and shove, are always done with so much love.

Ball Mountain and Townsend dams protect the states below, and the workers close the floodgates so the water will not go. So to the states below us, we are glad that we can help. The water here is just the color of dirty chocolate milk. It leaves a coating of mud so rich and thick. It gets inside their homes – they know it won't clean up quick.

The water held back by the dams backs up and blocks our driveway. At times like this, like other times, we know that it won't stay.

We have no way to leave our house, the water it surrounds us. We are happy staying here because we know we must.

Electric, food, and water keeps us in good cheer. And there are lots of little things we can do while we are here. From Monday and through Tuesday was life beyond belief – and then on Wednesday morning, we finally got relief.

The water in our gravel pit is starting to flow out. Which means the flood gates at the dams are letting water out.

There is a very happy note to all that we went through. So many friends and relatives were asking, "How are you?" It's really nice at times like this to know we're not alone. And we appreciate the love and caring that everyone has shown.

Beware of back-to-school scams

REGION – An advertising jingle often heard on TV in August: "It's the most wonderful time of the year!" An office supply vendor is heralding back-to-school sales. It's also one of the most wonderful times of the year for con-artists and criminals, as panic mode sets in for many families. Back-to-school often means last minute shopping for supplies and clothes. For high school and college seniors, it may mean registering for admission test preparation programs. For others, it means shopping for credit cards and apartments.

Online shopping can be overwhelming. While bargains can be found, some sites, particularly those posting on social media, clearly offer deals that are "too good to be true." Double check vendors before providing personal or financial information. It may be easy to identify some scam sites, but criminals are turning to imposter websites to scam shoppers. A network of security bloggers, Blog-Bolster AI, identified over 6,000 fraudulent websites for brand-name vendors and products, including Columbia Sportswear, Converse, Fossil, Guess, North Face, Nike, and Puma. The product or vendor name should appear as the name, immediately followed by ".com." For example, Puma's official website displays "www.puma.com," with nothing appearing between "Puma" and ".com." The imposter websites add words to the address: www.pumashoes.com, www.pumaoutlet.com, etc.

Beware of "free shopping spree" offers. These offers arrive as emails or text messages offering great discounts and opportunities. All you need to do is register by providing your name, email address, physical address, or phone number. Suddenly, you are swamped with marketing emails and phone calls. Before providing any information, conduct an online search of the company name, and include the words "shopping spree." If you find no information, delete the email or text message you received.

Admissions test preparation scams frequently target students entering their senior year of high school or college. The criminals contact students and parents with messages promising high test scores on the ACT, SAT, or GRE admissions tests, which will guarantee admission to select, competitive colleges and universities. In some cases, parents are informed that there is an unpaid bill for test materials ordered by the student, which can be paid by credit card. Never provide credit card information to a company contacting you by phone, text, or email unless you have an existing relationship with the company and are absolutely certain that the contact is legitimate.

Housing scams appear annually for college students seeking apartments. In recent years, students attending schools in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Vermont, as well as other states, have lost money and become victims of identity theft. Criminal activity has been reported in locations such as Hanover, N.H., Burlington and Middlebury, Vt., and Northampton and Williamstown, Mass.

As students head to school, there may be a need to obtain a credit card. Credit card offers frequently appear on social media platforms, and should be viewed with skepticism. Research the offer before providing any personal and financial information. Several organizations such as Consumers Union (Consumer Reports) offer detailed reviews of credit cards.

Finally, if you are a victim of a scam, report it to your state watchdog: in Vermont, call 800-649-2424; in New Hampshire, call 888-468-4454.

If you have questions, contact Elliott Greenblatt at egreenblatt@aarp.org. Greenblatt is a retired educator and coordinator of the AARP Vermont Fraud Watch Network.

Betty L. Frizzell, 1933-2023

CHESTER, Vt. – Betty Louise Frizzell, 89, passed away Friday, Aug. 11, 2023, at Cedar Hill in Windsor, Vt. She was born on Dec. 4, 1933, in Colebrook, N.H., to Ira Noyes and Bessie (Gould) Noyes, and graduated from Colebrook Academy. She married Burton L. Frizzell on Sept. 6, 1951; they remained together until his passing in January 2021.

Betty was a bookkeeper for Snow Cats, Inc., a business she started with Burton, and worked in support of her husband at Adams Funeral Home in Chester, Vt. She enjoyed fishing, especially with her close friend Trudy Emery, at Willoughby Lake, and was an avid reader. She loved nature, bird-watching in particular, and had a flock of hummingbirds that would visit her each spring and summer. She was a volunteer for the March of Dimes and the National Audubon Society, and was a Girl Scout leader in Chester, Vt.

Betty and Buster split their time between Chester and Lemington, Vt., and relocated to Lemington after retirement in 1992. Her greatest joy was sharing her beautiful home on Sims Hill in Lemington with friends and family, with whom they spent many winters in Florida.

Betty is survived by daughters Karen Hammond, Kathryn Frizzell-DeRosia (Mark DeRosia), and Jennifer Frizzell-Shubelka (Mark Shubelka); grandchildren Burton Thurber (Heather), Mark Thurber, Becky Anderson (Jake), Jessie DeRosia (Christopher Pratt), Alexandra DeRosia (Briland Fisher), Justin Shubelka, and Morrigan Shubelka; great-grandchildren Cody, Keaton, Graham, and Pierce; and many nieces and nephews that often referred to her as their "second mom."

She was predeceased by her husband Burton L. Frizzell; siblings Howard Noyes, Shirley Noyes, Carrie Noyes, Raymond Noyes, Harriet Noyes, Edward Noyes, Evelyn Noyes, Marion Irene Patterson, Kathleen Richard, and Wilfred Noyes; and son-in-law Hugh (Chick) Hammond.

Specials thanks to Cedar Hill Assisted Living and their Memory Care Unit for taking wonderful care of Betty and her entire family over the past year. In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the

and so much of said lands will be sold at public auction at Springfield Town Office, 96 Main Street, Springfield, Vermont, a public place in such Town, on the 7th day of September, 2023 at Ten O'clock in the forenoon, as shall be requisite to discharge such taxes with costs, unless previously paid.

You have the right to request in writing, at least 24 hours prior to the tax sale date set forth above, that only a portion of the property be sold to satisfy the delinquent tax bill. Should you wish to proceed with this request, you must follow the procedure set forth in 32 V.S.A. § 5254; clearly identify the portion of the property to be sold, and include a certification from the Act 250 district coordinator and the town zoning administrator that the portion identified may be legally subdivided.

If you qualify under 24 V.S.A. § 1535, you may be able to receive an abatement of the property taxes, interest and collection fees you owe to the town. Abatement means that your taxes could be reduced or eliminated. You have the right to appear before the Board of Abatement and explain why you think your taxes should be abated. To apply for an abatement, you must write to Barbara A. Courchesne, Town Clerk, 96 Main Street, Springfield, Vermont 05156.

Dated at Springfield, County of Windsor and State of Vermont, this 19th day of July, 2023.

Author Kat Vellos on adult friendships

PUTNEY, Vt. – Join Next Stage Arts on Tuesday, Aug. 29, at 7 p.m., for an interactive fireside with author Kat Vellos all about friendship in adulthood. What are the biggest challenges of adult friendship, and how can we overcome them? How do we “make new friends and keep the old?” What is social wellness, and how does it factor into our overall health and well-being? We’ll dig into all this and more. The fireside chat will be followed by a Q&A. The discussion will take place at Next Stage Arts, 15 Kimball Hill in Putney. “Cultivating meaningful relationships can be a challenge,” says Keith Marks, executive director of Next Stage Arts. “Kat Vellos’ work focuses on creating meaningful platonic relationships, and fostering a stronger community dynamic.”

Kat Vellos is a trusted expert on the power of cultivating meaningful friendships. She’s a speaker and author of the book “We Should Get Together: The Secret to Cultivating Better Friendships.” She’s also the creator of the Better than Small Talk conversation cards and the Better Conversations Calendar. She’s happy making life more friendly for the thousands of people and work teams who use her guidance to cultivate fulfilling friendships and collegueships. Kat’s writing is read in over 100 countries, and she’s been interviewed by The New York Times, NPR, Communication Arts, The Good Life Project, and many more.

Best of Vermont Summer Festival information and festivities

LUDLOW, Vt. – The Okemo Valley Regional Chamber of Commerce is again hosting the third annual Best of Vermont Summer Festival, scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 26, and Sunday, Aug. 27 in Ludlow, Vt. The event will take place at Okemo Field on Route 103.

This festival is another great opportunity for everyone, including locals, new residents, second homeowners, and visitors. Some of the program highlights include live music, craft beverage producers (beer, wine, distilleries), artisan products, specialty foods, fine art, antique tractors and vintage equipment, Kids Zone, and more.

ACTIVITIES:

Throughout the weekend, attendees will have the opportunity to participate in the following special family-friendly activities:

- New this year, Dan Moore of Barker Farm will be showcasing his antique tractors and vintage machines. Barker Farm is known for hosting their annual Autumn Roundup show in Ludlow in September. This is a showcase of Vermont-made engines and machinery, including working exhibits from the 1900s.

- Kids Zone, sponsored by Mary W. Davis Realtor and Associates, including Troy Wunderle of Big Top Adventures, offering clowning and circus fun and face painters.

- Food tent, sponsored by Diamond Realty, featuring Mount Holly Beer, Calcutta's wagyu burgers, Coleman Brook Tavern at Okemo, Crowley Cheese, and more.

- Wine Tasting, sponsored by Meiom Wines and Constellation Brands.

- Yarn Spinning with Six Loose Ladies.

- Vendor raffle, with prizes generously donated by vendors.

Diana Alvarez and Olivia Nied at Stage 33 —

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. — Multi-instrumentalist singer-songwriter Olivia Nied has been performing since she was nine years old as a soloist, ensemble leader, and side person in styles ranging from edgy pop, to jazz fusion, to hip hop, and straight up rock and roll. Her solo performances often utilize looping and multiple instruments. As a transgender/queer musician, Olivia often incorporates LGBTQ+ lyrical themes in her work, and believes in creating safe spaces at her shows for gender diverse individuals. She was awarded a merit scholarship to Berklee College of Music's Summer Jazz Program, where she received honors. She has also studied at the Vermont Jazz Center, and studied music and film at Hampshire College in Amherst, Mass., graduating with a bachelor's degree in 2020. While at Hampshire College, Olivia studied music at Goldsmiths University in London, and filmmaking in Paris.

Doctora Xingona Diana Alvarez's ancestors bloom in her/their voice, roaring an otherworldly fire against oppression, exalting queer love and liberation, and creating a gripping atmosphere for healing in poetic songs that live in-between, where borders are a myth. An expansive multimedia artist and educator, Doctora Xingona's music, poetry, performances, films, and gatherings center transcendence, kinship, and the co-liberation and nourishment of queer and trans artists of color. Doctora Xingona is the composer and filmmaker behind the award-winning "Quiero Volver: A Xicanx Ritual Opera," a multimedia performance altar for queer and trans BIPOC artists to convene and manifest futures, described in the press as an "acoustically stunning performance." Doctora Xingona's new album, "Ser Artista," is a roaring, genderqueer, extraterrestrial, Xicanx collection. Dr. Alvarez earned her doctorate in electronic arts at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, mentored by groundbreaking composer Pauline Oliveros, and is an invited performer, guest lecturer, workshop facilitator, and keynote speaker at venues and schools across the U.S. and worldwide.

Diana Alvarez and Olivia Nied will co-headline Stage 33 Live, 33 Bridge Street in Bellows Falls, Vt., on Sunday, Aug. 27, in a 3 p.m. matinee. Tickets can be purchased online in advance at www.stage33live.com, or at the door for an additional fee. There is limited seating for this event, and it will be recorded and filmed.

Masks are required at this event, as one of the performers is immunocompromised. The venue will have disposable masks available. The performers will remove their masks while performing. A pair of high-capacity air purifiers will be placed between the stage and the audience. All seating will be a minimum of 10 feet from the stage. Please do not attend if feeling ill.

Murder Mystery Dinner at the Sumner House —

CHARLESTOWN, N.H. — On Aug. 31, at 7 p.m., St. Luke's Mission Theatre is sponsoring a Murder Mystery Dinner, entitled "Charles Hoyt's Lost Manuscript." This original play is written and performed by local artists.

Help Inspector Barnaby Darius, played by David Zucker, identify the murderer of Professor Upton Garrulous, who claims to have discovered a lost Charles Hoyt play. The play is entitled "Judge Sumner's Revenge," referring to another famous 19th century Charlestown resident, and the namesake of the restaurant. But before he can finish his presentation, he is killed. Whodunit?

The diners are introduced to five suspects — two men and three women — who have a motive for murder. Inspector Barnaby Darius must sort through the clues, and each table of diners is encouraged to help identify the murderer. The original play, written by Brian Marsh, is orchestrated around a delicious three-course meal at the Sumner House, appropriately enough.

Come and enjoy a delightful evening together, and compete to be the winning table.

Tickets are available online at www.eventbrite.com. The show is almost sold out, so hurry to place your order.

The VAULT welcomes Adam Karle and Aly Nickerson —

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. — Gallery at the VAULT welcomes Adam Karle of Green Mountain Backyard, LLC, with his vintage solar sap buckets, and new "For Such A Time" artist Aly Nickerson, with her hand-stamped vintage silverware.

Adam has a background in fine arts from Castleton State College. He is attracted to galvanized metals, and has experimented with a number of different vessel creations. His passion for sugar making, combined with his love of art, brought him to create these amazing vintage art sap buckets, which give new life and honor to the past process of sugaring. He also has wired some, to create uniquely wonderful lamps.

For Such A Time Designs began with a lucky find at one of Aly's favorite antique shops in Sterling, Mass. — it was an old metal stamping set in a custom dovetail box. Thinking it would be good for gifts, it was a must have item. Since then, Aly has specialized in carefully designed hand-stamped silverware to serve all of life's moments. When she first began her business journey, she had no idea she would be shipping off her hand-stamped creations to places all around the world.

For more information, please call 802-885-7111, email gallervault@vermontel.net, or come into Gallery at the VAULT, 68 Main Street in Springfield. The gallery is open Wednesday and Saturday, 11 a.m. — 5 p.m., and Friday, 11 a.m. — 7 p.m. The gallery is online at www.gallervault.org, or on Facebook.

Sway Wild at Next Stage Arts —

PUTNEY, Vt. — Next Stage Arts presents indie folk-rock duo Sway Wild on Thursday, Aug. 31, at 7 p.m., at Next Stage Arts, 15 Kimball Hill in Putney, Vt.

Sway Wild was born on a small island in the Salish Sea. Following a two-month sailing voyage through the remote anchorages of British Columbia, acclaimed indie-folk duo Dave McGraw and Mandy Fer returned to their San Juan Island, Wash., home still hungry to explore. The result was nothing short of an artistic epiphany — an evolution of sound that called out loudly for a new name. Sway Wild released its self-titled debut album worldwide in 2019.

Sway Wild's infectious sound explores the corners of rock, pop, funk, and folk, but at its nucleus it is undeniably a music full of joy. It can squeeze the heart in your chest, it can draw tears from your eyes, and it can force you to get up and move your body. Over and over, it somehow manages to do all three at once. Fer and McGraw's gorgeous harmonies, paired with moving lyrics, serve to both process and share their jubilation, grief, and frustration with a complex and deeply imperfect society.

Perhaps most remarkable is Fer's astonishing electric guitar work. Using her beloved Fender Stratocaster for both lead guitar pyrotechnics and chordal rhythms, often at the same time, Fer challenges the listener to comprehend how she manages to extract so much feeling from six strings and an amplifier.

For Fer and McGraw, the sailing expedition served as a kind of sabbatical from seven years of heavy international touring, sharing stages with the likes of Iron & Wine, Gregory Alan Isakov, and Mandolin Orange.

With Fer refocused on electric guitar, and McGraw behind a drum kit for the first time in over a decade, they allowed themselves to rediscover everything they loved about making music. This soon gave birth to a creative torrent of new songs, organically and unexpectedly, with a fresh sense of purpose, the new material was honed on tours across the U.S. and in Europe, performing alongside Lake Street Dive, Rising Appalachia, Charlie Hunter Trio, and others.

Mandy Fer also tours as the lead guitarist for Grammy nominated Allison Russell, and recently performed with Brandi Carlile and Jason Isbell.

Tickets can be purchased online in advance, or at the gate for an additional fee. There is also a livestream option. Next Stage will provide a cash bar. Advance tickets are available at www.nextstagearts.org. For information, call 802-387-0102 or visit the website above.
