Tri-board wraps up summer projects

BY PAULA BENSON
The Shopper

ROCKINGHAM, Vt. – Library Board Chair Carol Blackwood and library director Ian Graham addressed the Rockingham/Bellows Falls/Saxtons River tri-board meeting on Tuesday, Sept. 26.

Blackwood thanked the joint board for their interest in hearing updates from the library, remarking that Graham's term as director was approaching two years. "Things are going along quite well," Blackwood reported. "We've got a lot of great, new programs."

Graham explained that the library puts together their fiscal year budget every October and November, then presents it to the selectboard to review and include on the December town meeting agenda.

Graham said there were no significant changes to mention, and he had some good news for the board. A pricey budget item they had discussed last year, failing door locks, had been "fixed for nothing," according to Graham, sparing the town the expense.

Graham suggested they consider a "reasonable, annual" library budget, mostly for maintenance of the historic building. The most recent renovation was completed 10 years ago, and the yearly budget for upkeep was never really established, but "would save money down the road," Graham stated, "by tending to the things that need to be cared for in real time."

One such project is the restoration of the library steps, which were removed during the renovation and not properly reinstalled at the time. Graham felt that because of the building's historical significance, they could apply for grant money to help cover some of the repair costs. Designed by Boston architects McLean and Wright in 1909, in the Classical Revival style, the building is one of only four Carnegie libraries in the state of Vermont.

Municipal Manager Scott Pickup reported on summer projects that were wrapping up, including work on Pine Street, to be completed by the end of the month, the last of the sidewalk improvement projects scheduled for this year.

Kati Gallagher, sustainable communities program director at the Vermont Natural Resources Council (VNRC), gave a presentation on walkability and community connectivity. She began by saying she was there wearing two hats, one for VNRC, and the other for Transportation for Vermonters (T4VT). Gallagher leads the VNRC program in their support of downtown revitalization, and increasing opportunities for housing, transportation, and infrastructure.

"T4VT is a group of service providers in the transportation sphere, other advocates, and folks working on transportation across the state," Gallagher detailed. "Their goal is to create an accessible and sustainable transportation system, in a place that we know has some pretty real challenges related to living in a rural state with small communities."

In addition to stimulating the local economy by providing pedestrian access to local businesses, increasing the walkability of a neighborhood helps support social connections, a sense of community, reduces crime rates, and boosts individual physical health.

Continuing discussion on the topic, Walk/Bike Committee Chair Marsha Stern was in attendance to give a progress update. Stern stated that the committee's goals were to increase access for pedestrians and cyclists to local business communities, create trails connecting towns and villages to one another, and reduce the overall number of cars on the roads.

The committee was formed about one and a half years ago, and since then has spent time compiling research and collaborating with other organizations like the highway department, the Bellows Falls Downtown Development Association (BFDDA), the Rockingham Incremental Development Working Group (RIDWG), trails organizations, the historical society, and Local Motion, a Burlington-based group dedicated to making it "safe, accessible, and fun for everyone to bike, walk, and roll in Vermont."

The committee is currently looking into the best ways to interact with, and get input from, the public, and meanwhile is moving ahead to apply for a municipal planning grant to fund a traffic study and create a safety plan for the entire town of Rockingham. One priority for the committee is to install a crosswalk where the Arch Bridge reaches the Vermont side of the Connecticut River.

Stern mentioned the approved Riverfront Park scoping study, and said the committee will be working with the Saxtons River group formed to oversee the park improvements. Stern's committee will share their research with the Saxtons River group and consult on the design and construction. "The trail will be inclusive of bikes, walkers, and will be ADA compliant," Stern explained. "It's quite a project, but it's going to be a crucial link."

There was a brief conversation about whether the town had reached out to the railroad and the Great River Hydro Plant, since much of Rockingham's riverfront real estate belongs to these two entities. Pickup remarked that they had and continued to do so.

The Rockingham Regional Planning Commission has acquired money from the state to start to study sidewalk conditions, specifically ADA accessibility, crosswalk locations, and connectivity between towns. They plan to report their findings "in the next couple months" to the joint boards.

Discussion of proposed revisions to town personnel policies and procedures continued, which would enable a much more efficient approach to handling any employee related issue, concern, or question, according to Pickup.

Progress on the fire department feasibility study is continuing in a positive direction, reported Pickup, and the departments now share the same interface with regards to fire information data. That system can eventually expand to include neighboring towns. Pickup is hoping to have a more fully formed presentation ready for the next tri-board meeting, scheduled for Nov. 28.

The very idea of the value of holding town meetings was debated, as presented by board members Rick Cowan and Bonnie North. Cowan and North suggested they poll town residents about how effective they felt town meetings were, and said they'd collaborated on ten "simple questions, or prompts" as part of a survey.

Cowan pointed out the value of "direct democracy" is diminished by the underwhelming attendance of most town meetings, and touted the value of reaching out to residents to see what other options they might be comfortable with. He suggested getting feedback via various websites, like Facebook, and said he would issue a press release in The Shopper Newspaper and the Brattleboro Reformer, to get as much input as possible.

North commented, "It doesn't seem right to make big decisions with only 30 to 40 people in the room, in a town of almost 5,000."

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. – Located on the ground floor of the newly renovated Bellows Falls Garage Building at 115 Rockingham Street, sisters Sue Barnett-Brandon and Cheryl Hudson are excited to have recently opened the doors for business at their new variety store, called Random Finds.

"I originally started my jewelry design business, Spotter Designs, on Etsy," Sue Barnett-Brandon said in a recent interview. "And as my business gained momentum, I always wanted to expand the operation by opening a local retail store."

When the newly-renovated Bellows Falls Garage Building apartments were recently opened near The Square, the street-level floor of the complex was specifically designed to accommodate a local business venture.

"When the new Garage Building retail space became available, my sister and I decided to put our business plans together – my jewelry design/retail business along with her new variety store business concept – and acquired the space and opened Random Finds a few weeks ago," Barnett-Brandon said.

Random Finds offers a variety of jewelry and housewares, wall décor, vintage signs, healing bracelets, essential oils and candles, Pampered Chef, and a "wood item" selection of Ouija and other spiritual items. The inventory often changes and evolves from month to month, and they always strive to find unique and appealing items at affordable prices. They also offer various office and media printing services as well.

"Yes, we offer select office and print services such as photocopying, flyers, custom vinyl, business cards, brochures, invitations, and phone chargers. We are looking forward to creating relationships with not only our individual patrons, but also other local businesses and shops in the area.

"We are also currently carrying Halloween costumes, and a wide assortment of Halloween decorations, as well as hosting a 'Kid's Coloring Contest' in which coloring pages will be available at the store for three age groups to participate. Winners will then be chosen in each group, and awarded prizes for their creative efforts."

The Random Finds business hours are Thursday, 3:30-6 p.m., Friday, 1-6 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday, 10 a.m. – 2 p.m. For more information, call 802-384-0891, or email randomfindsvt@yahoo.com.

Overflow the Opera House success

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. – The food came rolling in recently, as Our Place Drop-in Center almost doubled the amount it collected over last year's Overflow the Opera House food drive.

"The generous people of this area dropped off 2,238 pounds of food for our pantry," said Our Place director Dave Billings. "They also donated almost $12,500 in cash that we can use to purchase food."

With the help of the employees of Chroma Technology and Sonnax, and a design by Charlie Hunter, promotion for this year's drive included a banner across The Square, T-shirts worn by volunteers, and special bags left at Lisa's Market to remind shoppers to pick up items to donate. A few Chroma employees also created at Super Mario-themed construction for the window at Edward Jones.

Those same employees, plus the Bellows Falls Rotary Club and the Bellows Falls Woman's Club, also ran on-site food drives that added to the haul and showed up to wave signs in The Square.

Also on hand were Peter "Fish" Case of Peak radio, assisted by Radio Bob, who broadcast throughout the day. The volunteers also appreciated the pizza donated by Athens Pizza, and the anonymous drop-off of coffee and doughnuts on the chilly morning.

"We owe a big thank you to everyone who donated, volunteered, or helped in some way, including Jen and her staff at the Opera House," said Billings. "We now have a good basis to continue our mission of connecting people to food and each other."

Our Place is located at 4 Island Street, and offers boxes of food to prepare at home, plus breakfast and lunch each weekday. Further information can be found at www.ourplacevermont.org, on Facebook, by contacting info@ourplacevermont.org, or by calling 802-463-2217.

Speak Out in Comtu Park

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. – Springfield will host a heartfelt and empowering event this October to celebrate National Coming Out Day. Sponsored by VINE Sanctuary and the Springfield Library, the Speak Out event invites members of the LGBTQ+ community to share their personal coming-out stories in front of the community, promoting love, acceptance, and unity.

The event will be held on Oct. 11, 5-6:30 p.m., at Comtu Cascade Park in Springfield, Vt., and is free and open to the public.

National Coming Out Day, observed annually on Oct. 11, is dedicated to raising awareness of the LGBTQ+ community's struggles and celebrating the courage it takes to come out as LGBTQ+. It's a day of unity and acceptance, and the Speak Out event aims to be a shining example of these values.

The event will feature a diverse lineup of speakers sharing their unique coming-out experiences, offering insights, encouragement, and support to those considering or navigating their journey. Attendees can listen to personal stories of triumph, resilience, and the power of authenticity.

Last year's Speak Out event was an incredible success that left a lasting impact on the town of Springfield. People from all walks of life, including youth, gathered at Comtu Cascade Park to participate with heartfelt stories. The event provided a safe and welcoming platform for individuals to openly share their coming out experiences, fostering a sense of unity and understanding within the community. The overwhelming support and empathy expressed during last year's event reinforced the importance of creating a space where LGBTQ+ voices are heard and celebrated. This year's event aims to build upon that success.

Walter Martone, selectboard member of the town of Springfield, said about the Speak Out event, "When I was a young man

I'd dream that all the protests, marches, campaigning, fundraising, and more would result in LGBTQ individuals having the same rights and opportunities as all Americans. Now we have same-sex marriage, protections against discrimination in employment and housing, openly LGBTQ individuals elected to public offices, and serving in important positions in the government and private sector. My new dream is that this next generation will realize how fragile these wins are, and how important it is to fight to preserve them. A woman's right to choose was taken away – our rights could be next. Be aware, get involved, and don't let them undo what we worked so hard to achieve."

The Speak Out is a collaborative effort between VINE Sanctuary and the Springfield Library, two organizations deeply committed to promoting inclusivity, diversity, and acceptance within the community.

For more information about the "Coming Out Speak Out" event, please follow VINE Sanctuary on social media (@VINESanctuary) for updates and announcements leading up to the event.

The Nature Museum biodiversity events

GRAFTON, Vt. – On Saturday, Oct. 7, from 9 a.m. – 12 p.m., at the Nature Museum in Grafton, there will be a hands-on workshop on the management of invasive alien plants with professionals from Long View Forest. Learn to identify numerous common invasive species; why they should be removed to enhance ecosystem function; the best removal techniques by species, age, concentration, and season; and disposal techniques and considerations.

Bring pruners and tree saws (we will have extra if you need them), work gloves, water, insect repellent, sunscreen, and wear tick clothing if you have it. We will learn and do together on-site and prepare you to execute these techniques on your own property.

Then on Tuesday, Oct. 10, at 7 p.m., we will offer a webinar with Professor Douglas Tallamy, a leading expert on biodiversity and ecosystem function. Once you've removed your alien invasive plants, with what do you replace them? Doug Tallamy has the answers. The author of several books, including "Bringing Nature Home," "The Living Landscape" (with Rick Darke), "Nature's Best Hope," and "The Nature of Oaks," Tallamy is advocating for each of us to become part of the "Home-Grown National Park," as one of the most powerful ways to address the 6th great extinction that is decimating species everywhere.

The health of nature is critical for the continued health of the human species – Doug Tallamy will help you help nature with simple steps that are available to everyone. Register for both events at www.nature-museum.org/events-calendar.

Bellows Falls Woman's Club

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. – Bellows Falls Woman's Club members will gather on Oct. 10 at the United Church, School Street, beginning at 1:30 p.m. A representative of the Women's Freedom Center will address the members on the mission of this women's shelter. Club members may bring travel-sized personal care items such as toothpaste and toothbrushes, body wash, shampoo, conditioner, and a face cloth, to be donated to the shelter.

At the Sept. 12 opening meeting, members and guests were welcomed and presented with information about Our Place Drop-in Center, the local food pantry and day shelter. David Billings, executive director, cited many statistics regarding the pervasive feeling of food insecurity within our area. The program was part of the club's response to the General Federation of Women's Club's Sept. 30 National Day of Service focusing on hunger and food insecurity. Club members donated bags and boxes of non-perishable food to the Drop-in Center's "Overflow the Opera House" food and cash drive held on Sept. 21.

On Oct. 14-15, the club will participate at the Flannel Festival, offering cotton candy and candied apples. Club members will hold their annual food sale in conjunction with the Friends of the Walpole Library book sale on Oct. 28, at Walpole Middle School.

The local club is a member of the General Federation of Women's Clubs (GFWC). GFWC-VT will hold its fall meeting in Ludlow, on Oct. 14.

Adult Day Service, home away from home

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. – Do you know an adult family member, neighbor, or friend who could benefit from engaging activities, nutritious meals, nursing oversight, or personal care or social assistance? If so, Springfield Area Adult Day Service has many services available to assist those who may be frail, isolated, or have physical and/or cognitive impairment.

Adult Day is a carefully planned program that includes health, social, and supportive services in a safe, protective environment. Their programming infuses skilled services with a lot of fun. Games and puzzles, music and singing, dance, arts and crafts, interactive video games, exercise programs, outdoor recreation, and gardening are just some of the many daily delights that are planned to make days both educational and enjoyable. For example, a visit to the center may find folks enjoying a friendly match at the pool table, sharing a game of cards, or socializing with friends.

The daily program, fully certified by the Vermont Department of Disabilities, Aging, and Independent Living, includes a team of skilled professionals, including a director, nurses, aides, and other multidisciplinary services from Springfield Hospital, along with a number of caring and devoted volunteers.

The nursing staff work closely with area agencies to coordinate transportation, case management, programming and care, and financial assistance as needed. For caregivers, the program provides respite, and educational and emotional support.

Enhancing the wellness of participants is an important part of the program. This is achieved by planning daily programming that reflects participants' personal choices and promotes independence and autonomy. If personal care is needed, showers, shampoos, nail care, and shaving services are available. Aides are also on site to assist with and supervise exercises as prescribed by physical therapists.

This special program may be of assistance if your family or friends need any of the following: a safe, secure environment; social activities; assistance with eating, walking, toileting, and medication management; group therapies; nutritious meals or a special diet; weight, blood pressure, or food/liquid intake monitoring; exercise; personal care, such as bathing or shampooing; or mental stimulation.

Sue Pollard, director of Adult Day, says, "I want to express my sincere gratitude to the entire staff of Springfield Area Adult Day Services. The quality and sincerity of care is evident in everything we do here, and our wonderful clients make providing that care a pleasure. Our team approach keeps us all engaged in the daily care, and is something we are proud to provide."

The Adult Day Service is located at 266 River Street in Springfield, Vt., and is available Monday-Friday, from 7:30 a.m. – 4:30 p.m. For more information, please contact Sue Pollard, RN, director, at 802-885-9881, or email spollard@springfieldhospital.org.

Secrets, mushrooms, and peanuts

BY RON PATCH

802-374-0119
ronpatch27@gmail.com

I write my articles on weekends. This past weekend I was distracted by the weather. Sunday morning I had a brain cramp and couldn't think of anything to write about. This is what I came up with.

If you asked a fisherman where a good beaver pond to fish was, he wouldn't tell you his secret beaver pond. Oh, he might tell you where there's a fished out pond. We closely guard these locations. Mushroom pickers are the same way.

For three weeks now, I have been watching for matsutake mushrooms. I have two secret locations where I find them. This past Saturday I went looking. One location is up Lovers Lane.

I parked the car to go look. The flood this past July tore down through the valley. There will be no matsies at this location for a long time. I need to find another location this week.

At my second location, I found two matsies. One had just broken through the leaves, exposing its crown. The other was just pushing up through the leaves and hemlock needles. I carefully extracted them from the soil.

I gave one to John DeBenedetti, and kept the other. They will weigh a quarter pound each. John is one of the friends I give them to. John has a dehydrator. He slices and dries them to enjoy all winter. In a saucer with a little water, add the dried slices and place in the refrigerator overnight. When you add them to whatever you are preparing, add the water in the saucer too. More flavor.

Sunday morning, I made a three-egg omelet with Crowley rat trap cheese, Scarface in Lee Decatur's hand. Something else bit Lee's thumb off.

vidalia onion, and green pepper. I sautéed the veggies and matsies, and added them to the omelet. It was the best.

Sinful
By the middle of this week, there should be dozens of matsies exposing themselves. One year I got 30 pounds. I gave away many, but kept enough for myself. I feasted on them. It's almost sinful the way I devour them.

Where to look Matsies grow under hemlock trees, often within 100 feet of a brook. They tend to grow on a steep bank on the northwesterly side. Sometimes it is so steep I have to wear clamp-on cleats. There is no way of knowing how plentiful they will be this year. But with all the rain, it could be a record year. John will get the most. During the winter, he gives me baggies of dried matsies. So he's a priority.

I know a couple shroomers who are not familiar with matsies, so I want to turn them on to this delicacy. The lady at the bank wants to try them. Danny and others will take some.

There's an unknown underground of local people doing things the old way. My sharing matsies will be reciprocated. Some make wines or applejack in small batches. I am given venison, bear sausage, and different kinds of jams and jellies. It is an honor to be included.

Stonewall panthers
On Sept. 3, I had an antiques sale at my place. The stonewall panthers, aka chipmunks, entertained those who came. I was putting out sunflower seeds for them. I saw one lady taking a picture of Harriet. The next week I came home to find a container near the entry. I picked it up and brought it in. On the cover, it said, "Peanuts for the chipmunks. Charles Wright." Charlie must have seen the panthers when he was at my sale. Nice touch.

At first, Harriet liked the peanuts. But now she smells them, but doesn't eat them. She'll sit by the front door waiting. I'll take a handful of sunflower seeds out. How she does pack them in her mouth. When they are gone, she will then take the peanuts!

This week's old saying I heard at an auction about 40 years ago. The auctioneer sensed the crowd wasn't paying attention: "My first wife died eating poison mushrooms. My second wife died of a concussion. She wouldn't eat the mushrooms." Everyone laughed and paid attention.

SBA expands incident period for July storms

REGION - The U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) announced today that it has expanded the incident period for the July severe storms and flooding, making additional damages eligible to be covered by an SBA low-interest disaster loan. The incident period has been expanded to cover damages incurred from July 7-July 21, 2023. Previously, the incident period was July 7-17.

Private, nonprofit organizations (PNP) that provide non-critical services of a governmental nature that applied for a physical disaster loan by the filing deadline of Sept. 12, and which suffered damages from July 18-21, can seek a modification of their open application or approved loan to provide additional funds to address the additional damages.

PNP organizations in the following Vermont counties with additional eligible damages may apply for additional funds: Addison, Bennington, Caledonia, Chittenden, Essex, Lamoille, Orange, Orleans, Rutland, Washington, Windham, and Windsor. Examples of eligible, non-critical PNP organizations include, but are not limited to, food kitchens, homeless shelters, museums, libraries, community centers, schools and colleges.

PNP organizations may borrow up to $2 million to repair or replace damaged or destroyed real estate, machinery and equipment, inventory, and other business assets. The interest rate is 2.37%, with terms up to 30 years.

Applicants may be eligible for a loan amount increase of up to 20% of their physical damages, as verified by the SBA, for mitigation purposes. Eligible mitigation improvements might include insulating pipes, walls and attics, weather stripping doors and windows, and installing storm windows to help protect property and occupants from future damage caused by a similar disaster.

The SBA also offers Economic Injury Disaster Loans (EIDL) to help meet working capital needs, such as ongoing operating expenses for PNP organizations. EIDL assistance is available regardless of whether the organization suffered any physical property damage.

PNP organizations are urged to contact their county's emergency manager to provide information about their organization. The information will be submitted to FEMA to determine eligibility for a Public Assistance grant, or whether the PNP should be referred to SBA for disaster loan assistance. Applicants may apply online using the Electronic Loan Application (ELA) via the SBA's secure website at www.disasterloanassistance.sba.gov/ela/s, and should apply under SBA declaration #18026.

Disaster loan information and application forms may also be obtained by calling the SBA's customer service center at 800-659-2955 (if you are deaf, hard of hearing, or have a speech disability, please dial 7-1-1 to access telecommunications relay services), or by sending an email to DisasterCustomerService@sba.gov. Loan applications can be downloaded from the SBA's website at www.sba.gov/disaster. Completed applications should be mailed to U.S. Small Business Administration, Processing and Disbursement Center, 14925 Kingsport Road, Fort Worth, TX 76155. The filing deadline to submit applications for physical property damage was Sept. 12. The deadline to submit economic injury applications is April 15, 2024.

Memory Café comes to Ludlow

LUDLOW, Vt. - According to Vermont Public Health Department statistics, there are more than 13,000 Vermonters aged 65 and older who have been diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease, the most common cause of dementia, and another 30,000 Vermonters who care for them. Caring for someone with dementia is a meaningful and important role, but it is also highly demanding, and has significant impacts. Caregivers of someone with dementia often feel isolated, stressed, exhausted, and financially burdened.

Caregivers are more likely to experience anxiety, depression, and lower quality of life than caregivers of people with other conditions. About one in four are known as "sandwich" caregivers, meaning they are both caring for an older adult and a child. More than half (57%) who are employed report having to take time off, go in late, or leave early, and 16% had to go from full to part time. Eighty-three percent of the help provided to older adults in the United States comes from family members, friends, or other unpaid caregivers. In 2021, 37 million unpaid hours, an estimated worth of $758 million, were provided by family caregivers of people with dementia in Vermont.

Black River Good Neighbor Services has recognized the need caregivers have for social opportunities that provide a chance to improve the quality of their lives, and have established what is known as a Memory Café, taking place on the second Thursday of each month at the Ludlow Community Center, 37 Main Street. This event provides an opportunity to address isolation and loneliness experienced by caregivers and their loved ones within a communal, welcoming, and nonjudgmental setting, lifting caregivers' spirits by giving them a place to go with their family members. A variety of activities are offered that include peer interaction, education on caregiver support, music, games, and snacks.

For anyone interested in attending the Memory Café or wanting more information, please contact Joan Franciose at 802-228-4145, or visit www.memorycafe-directory.com/what-is-a-memory-cafe.

community/opinion OBITUARY

Dear Editor,

With a successful Fall Rummage Sale behind us, Black River Good Neighbor Services (BRGNS) extends a warm and most sincere thank you to our community and beyond for supporting this fundraising effort. Your generous support has been overwhelming. This year we were especially aware that many folks shopped to supplement their family's needs, particularly winter clothing, and we intentionally kept prices level to help in supporting our neighbors in need.

To ensure that all of this comes together smoothly and efficiently, we rely upon many dedicated volunteers. An outstanding group comes together weeks in advance of the sale, meticulously setting up tents, clothing racks, department inventory, and ultimately working throughout the entire two-day sale. Devoted and hardworking, volunteers keep the wheels turning throughout BRGNS rummage sales and beyond. They are engaged year-round to further our mission, lending skills, support, and resources, and all in their free time. We are most grateful for such an active volunteer force.

The result of these efforts keeps BRGNS programs available and strong, and includes our food shelf, financial assistance, monthly community meals, and flood assistance. We remain dedicated to serving the community, which includes the towns of Ludlow, Mount Holly, Bellmont, Cavendish, Proctorsville, and Plymouth.

Sincerely,
Krey Kellington
Executive Director

Jennifer Scott, 1966-2023

WALPOLE, N.H. – Born and raised in Rye, N.Y., Jen made many friends attending public and private schools. Jen had no problem making it through the strict halls of academia up to graduation. A little wild and a little straight laced, she was a student when at school and a groupie with the band when not.

Jen grew up seeing and smelling the ocean – never taking it for granted, knowing that she would be close to it throughout her life. Having met Jen at Sapphire Beach on St. Thomas, she quickly informed us that she grew up at the beach and did not need SPF anything to avoid a burn. The zinc oxide ring around her lips and smothered on her nose at breakfast the next morning said otherwise. It was great fodder for many years to come – yes, we picked on her, and we all laughed together in remembrance. Jen was a good sport; she could receive some good ribbing, as well as dish it out with the best of them when needed. I am sure that Matt and Finnegan have been blessed with a great sense of humor.

Having a fair share of loss in life, Jen kept her closest things glued to her heart, even taking on hobbies such as fishing, sledding, and snowmobiling – which would have been a solid “no” if not for her two boys wanting her to come with them. I would even venture to guess that, to this day, Jen could still name more than a few Pokémon characters.

Many, many days, mornings, afternoons, evenings, sitting on the bleachers or in a comfy lawn chair, first watching a young Matty play, then watching Finnegan play, and a lot of time throughout the years watching them both play. All through it, Jen absolutely loved it – wouldn't have missed it for the world. Jen spent countless hours talking, planning, gossiping, travelling, eating, and confessing to her best friend Mel, with whom the time spent was made even more special. It didn't matter if they went on short trips or long trips. It also didn't matter what the trips were for – some for baseball, some for shopping, holidays, birthdays, all that mattered was they were together – Mel was the epitome of a best friend in Jen's eyes.

Beaches, sunsets, oceans, and warm sand, many vacations down to the Caribbean for wining and dining, songs with steel drums, and even dancing. I would not have pegged Jen as a get up and dance kind of girl, Jen was even overheard saying that she'd dance with Roland anytime. You don't hear that very often – what we heard more often than not was “Matty, where's your brother?” More than once we'd all form a search party and head off in different directions to find Finnegan, he'd be waiting for Matty to shoot hoops with at the court, or playing with some crabs found on the beach, and even once he was at the taxi stand trying to hail a cab into town – mind you he was 5 at the time.

First and foremost was everyone's safety and security. That being said, Jen and Mel were at their best putting together all the driveway parties for Matty and Finnegan's friends and teams – or just having friends and family over for a feast of food and drink. getter, the ear to share a story with, or just a person to share a piece of cake with. Jen loved her cake, no reason needed – just a fork.

Trump has “The Art of the Deal,” Jen has the Art of Getting A Deal – a great deal. Shopping was not an activity, but an all-out sport, I think Jen had her own mouth guard (pink of course) which she would put in for those storewide clearance days at T.J. Maxx and Mr. G's before lunch, and the trifecta of Target, Kohl's, and Home Goods in the afternoon. It was not about the take for the day, it was more about the deal for the take. No deal, no take.

Jen also had an incredible love and knack for decorating and design; if you have ever been inside Jen's home then you know what I am talking about. Along the same lines, how could any of us look at another Lily Pulitzer clothing section again and not think of Jen. I will, as many of you will, smile every time I see someone wearing that type of fashion (color scheme) for many years to come.

Overcast rainy days are the best. Most brides would have been devastated with a forecast of rain on their wedding day. It poured on the morning of Jen and Sheldon's wedding, and the bride couldn't have been happier about it. Afternoon and mid-morning naps were only made better with the spattering of rain hitting the roof and falling to the ground. Jen would use the time prior to falling asleep, as well as the time just waking up from a nap, to catch up and reconnect by texting with family and friends. Unfortunately, the texts, and especially the loving emojis, became fewer and further apart. I sent lots of pictures and emojis in the hopes that Jen was looking forward to powering up her phone anticipating that some messages awaited.

Jen is undoubtedly lounging on the beach, in a hammock, with SPF 35 and 50 generously applied, just waking up from a nap and having a piece of cake – no fork needed.

Jennie passed peacefully at home on Sept. 4, 2023, with her family by her side. She is survived by her husband Sheldon Scott of Walpole, N.H., their two sons Matthew Wood and Finnegan Scott, her sister Suzanne Szemplinski, and nephews Taylor and Reed Szemplinski of Fairfield, Conn.

In lieu of flowers, Jen requested that memorial donations be made to Kurn Hattin Homes for Children, 708 Kurn Hattin Road, Westminster, VT 05158. Jen was very passionate about helping the children of Kurn Hattin.

There will be a Celebration of Life at Tempesta's Restaurant and teams – or just having friends and family over for a feast of food and drink. Jen was the bartender, the food-from-the-grill

Floridians speak at Living Hope Fellowship in Bellows Falls

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. – Two guest ministers from Florida will be speaking at Living Hope Fellowship on Sunday, Oct. 8, at 10:30 a.m. Both graduates of Rhema Bible Training Center, Olivia Moore and her father Stan Moore will lead the church service at 582 Rockingham Road, about two miles north of Bellows Falls.

As a traveling minister and author, Olivia Moore passionately lives to see people be set free to enjoy the fullness and the newness that is found in Jesus. She grew up in a ministry family in southern Florida, and began preaching at the young age of 15. Olivia has traveled to 34 nations sharing the Good News.

Stan Moore has served in various fields of ministry ever since his graduation from Rhema in 1980. Along with his wife of 42 years Teresa, and his parents, he helped to found Words of Life Fellowship Church in North Miami, where he currently serves as an associate pastor. With a heart full of passion to see the lost saved and the broken restored, he brings healing and hope wherever he goes.

St. Francis Celebration at St. Mark's

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. – Now that Covid is mostly behind us and church restrictions lifted, St. Mark's Episcopal Church in Springfield will be reintroducing an ancient custom. It is the celebration of the Feast Day of St. Francis of Assisi. Although the actual feast day falls on Oct. 4, St. Mark's celebration will be on Sunday, Oct. 8.

On St. Francis Day it is the tradition that animals and pets be blessed by the parish priest. At St. Mark's, it is the Rev. Betty Berlenbach. This year's blessing will happen after a service of Holy Eucharist, which starts at 8:30 a.m. People and pets are welcome to arrive for the service at 8:30 a.m., or at 10:00 a.m. for the blessing only, which will happen on the church lawn. In case of rain, the blessing will take place in the Parish Hall. Please do not leave any pets in your vehicle. We ask that all dogs be leashed, and cats and smaller animals in carriers; fish, turtles, and other pets of this type in their usual containers. Large beasts are also welcome, providing they are of gentle persuasion. This entire event is free, but if folks are as so inclined, they may bring pet foods, which will then be donated to the Springfield Humane Society. There will be light refreshments for both man and beast.

History tells us that St. Francis was born in Italy in 1181, to “privileged” parents. He was somewhat of a “hell-raiser” and “ladies-man” in his younger years, and it wasn't until he was in his 20s that he realized his calling, and took a vow of poverty. He is now one of the most popular saints.

Peter N. Johnson, 1955-2023

MUNSONVILLE, N.H. – Peter Niles Johnson, beloved husband and father, died suddenly on Sunday, Sept. 17, at his summer house on Granite Lake in Munsonville, N.H. Pete was a kind and loving man known for his generosity in countless ways.

Pete spent many years as a human resource recruiter in Maine, New Hampshire, and Massachusetts. Together with his wife Susan they raised their daughter Rachel in Sudbury, Mass., until their move to Walpole, N.H. in 2019, to be closer to Susan’s aging parents. Leaving his corporate life behind, Pete was gifted the opportunity to embark on his first love, home renovations. He bought and renovated several properties in West Swanzey, their home in Sudbury, Mass., a family homestead in Maine, their home in Walpole, N.H., and most recently a summer house on Granite Lake, with his dear friend Derek MacAllister. The 1823 colonial house on Fanny Mason Lane in Walpole needed complete renovations, including all new plumbing, electric, beams, floors, and more; but no project was too large for Pete. He had a wonderful vision for bringing each property back to its historic significance.

Among his passions, Pete was the chairman of the renovation committee for Whitcomb Hall in Swanzey, N.H. Under Pete’s watch, the first floor of Whitcomb Hall reopened in 2016, in time for the 100th anniversary of this community meeting house. Funds were raised from donations and grants with his committee’s efforts, and the second floor was reopened in 2020. He also proudly led the steeple renovation of the Community Church of West Swanzey.

Pete will be remembered as an extremely generous friend who was always lending a hand whenever needed; a genuine Christian who believed in giving back to his community. His warmth and love will be forever remembered.

Pete was born on May 19, 1955, in Keene, N.H. In 1992 he married Susan Hubbard Johnson of Walpole, N.H., and in 1999 they welcomed Rachel to their family. Pete leaves behind his wife of 31 years Susan, daughter Rachel, brother David and his wife Patricia of Swanzey, N.H., brother Dale and his wife Ann of Belcher-town, Mass., niece Sandra Mitaly of Embden, Maine, nephew Brian Johnson of Surry, N.H., along with numerous great-nieces, nephews, cousins, and close family friends. He was predeceased by his parents Rachel and Frank Johnson.

A memorial service will be held at the Community Church of West Swanzey on Saturday, Oct. 7, at 2 p.m., with a reception following at the Johnsons’ mountain retreat at 792 Route 12A in Surry. The burial will be private.

In lieu of flowers, donations in Pete’s memory should be sent to The Community Church of West Swanzey (P.O. Box 5, West Swanzey, NH, 03469) or the Chill Foundation (www.chill.org/donate), or 180 Queen City Park Road, Burlington, VT 05401).

Pete will be greatly missed. Arrangements have been entrusted to the care of the Fenton and Hennessey Funeral Home, 55 Westminster Street, Bellows Falls, Vt.

Spencer Lewis at Grafton Meeting House

GRAFTON, Vt. – Spencer Lewis, a mainstay of the Vermont music scene, offers a soothing and meditative concert with solo guitar and violin at Grafton's historic Brick Meeting House on Saturday, Oct. 7, playing three sets from 1-4 p.m.

Lewis' music has been described by critics as "music that paints the rural landscape and quiets the mind." The Times Argus describes it as "a soothing blend of folk, pop, and classical influences, where guitar and violin merge into an ambience of melody, with sounds building from ripples to brooks to rivers ending in oceans of music." Lewis' fans tell him that they listen to his music when they drive around Vermont, describing it as "pure Vermont."

Lewis currently has 21 instrumental albums in the digital pipeline of iTunes and Spotify. He started out as a folk singer-songwriter in the early 70s in Wilmington, Vt., playing The Old Red Mill and Fat City, and he was the first one to play at The Common Ground in Brattleboro after convincing them that they needed music.

His career has blossomed over the years, gracing many a farmers' market, town green, wedding reception, or summer festival with his signature sound that reflects his love of Vermont and its rural traditions. His music is uplifting, soulful, and might be described as a soundtrack to his own life living and growing up in Vermont. When he's not playing music or recording albums in his home studio, he works as a stonewaller based in Bethel, Vt.

In addition to the Spencer Lewis Concert at the Brick Meeting House, one of three Grafton buildings listed on the National Register of Historic Places, other activities during Indigenous Peoples' Weekend include the Grafton Firefighters 42nd Tag Sale, a Community Pig Roast, and the Grafton Coronet Band Concert.

Admission to the Spencer Lewis Concert is free. The Brick Meeting House is ADA compliant.

For more information, please go to www.facebook.com/graftonbrickmeetinghouse, or call 323-627-4625.

Creative Aging Open House on Oct 14

SAXTONS RIVER, Vt. – Creativity is for everyone, including older adults. Whether you have been a lifelong artist, are returning to creative activities after a hiatus during your career, or are brand new to developing creative skills, Senior Solutions recognizes creative aging as an integral part of healthy aging. In pursuit of that, we have partnered with Main Street Arts in Saxtons River to provide arts opportunities for seniors, by instructors who are registered with the Vermont Arts Council and trained in working with our senior population.

On Saturday, Oct. 14, from 12-2 p.m., Main Street Arts will have an Open House to allow seniors to preview classes such as Memory Boxes, Art Journals, Mosaics, Photography, and more. The artists will be present, as will a string band for your entertainment. And to top it off, lunch will be provided to all seniors.

Humans have an innate desire for expression and creation. Arts projects help us communicate the human experience in fun, meaningful, and impactful ways. Sharing our creative work is a great way to connect with others and build new connections. The arts can also help people achieve a sense of purpose and personal growth, and can have a positive impact on social, emotional, mental, and physical health.

Traditional barn dance in Weston

WESTON, Vt. – A traditional New England barn dance is a community dance for young and old, singles and families, enthusiasts and skeptics. Live fiddle music is a must; a barn is bonus. At a community dance, no prior experience is necessary. Several simple moves are taught as the evening progresses, and they are used in various combinations. Each dance is taught in a walk-through first. In some dances partners progress together, but in others one's partner changes, often in fun ways.

On Oct. 8, 6:30-8 p.m., such a dance is being held in Weston, in an old barn. Jill Newton's band is providing foot-tapping live music. "Hootin' and Holleran" (Ruth Holleran) is teaching and calling the dances.

Space is limited, so please email Rob Fisher at wildtemple@aol.com to get on the list and get details. Wear layers, bring a water bottle, and come with finger food for the snack table.

Flat foot clogging and open mic at WTCS

TOWNSHEND, Vt. – Liana Gabel will be returning to the West Townshend Country Store (WTCS) to do a flat foot clogging workshop and host an open mic and concert on Saturday, Oct. 7. Liana is a percussive dance teacher and performer, who first came to West Townshend to help build our pizza pavilion.

Flat foot clogging is a traditional form of step dancing, related to tap dancing, which is usually done to old time fiddle tunes. As you will see with Liana, it can be done to different types of music, anything with a good beat. It is lots of fun and very energetic. The workshop will be from 3:30-4:30 p.m., and there is a suggested donation.

Liana is also a singer, musician, and songwriter. From 5:30-7, during pizza night, she will host an open mic. She will begin with performing a few of her own songs, where she often sings, plays guitar, and dances at the same time, then invite other musicians to share their music. The flat footing workshop and concert/open mic will be held outdoors behind the WTCS if the weather is nice, and inside if it is rainy or too cold.

This is the last Saturday pizza night of the season. Come and learn to flat foot, then kick up your heels a bit during the open mic if you want to stay for pizza night. Bring instruments and voices to share a song or two with your neighbors during the open mic, or just eat pizza and listen. It should be a really enjoyable evening.

If you want to attend the workshop, email sally.newton123@gmail.com.

Big Buzz Chainsaw Carving Festival

CHESTER, Vt. – The 14th annual Big Buzz Chainsaw Carving Festival will take place Oct. 6-9, from 10 a.m. – 4 p.m. each day, at 1126 Route 103 in Chester, Vt. There is a small price for admission.

The Big Buzz is produced by Chester artist Barre Pinsky, who started his chainsaw carving career in Minnesota 40 years ago. Pinsky is considered by many of his peers to be a pioneer of the craft. As an example of that fact, Pinsky thought up the idea of the Quick Carve event way back in 1984. During a Quick Carve event, artists create an artwork in an hour, then the pieces are auctioned off. Quick Carves are now done at carving festivals all around the world. Artists at the Big Buzz will be doing a Quick Carve at 1:30 p.m. each day.

If you are looking for an interesting fall event, the Big Buzz will check that box. Carvers will be creating and selling work, and the Chester Andover Snowmobile Club will be providing food for festivalgoers. For more information, see the Big Buzz Facebook page.

Felipe Salles at Next Stage Arts

PUTNEY, Vt. – Next Stage Arts presents internationally renowned composer and 2018 Guggenheim Fellow Felipe Salles' groundbreaking multimedia work, "The New Immigrant Experience," on Friday, Oct. 13, at 7:30 p.m., at Next Stage Arts, 15 Kimball Hill in Putney, Vt.

"The New Immigrant Experience," Salles' remarkable eighth release, is a powerful multimedia work inspired by the lives of "Dreamers," the almost seven hundred thousand individuals currently protected by DACA, the Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals program.

Written by Salles – who emigrated from Brazil to the United States in 1995 – and developed with the aid of a John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation fellowship, the work uses speech cadences and melodic motifs based on key words as its main source of musical material.

It's an emotional musical journey through beautiful orchestral textures, carefully developed motifs, and intense solo features that combine the power of a big band recording and the dramatic landscape of a soundtrack.

Since its inception in 2016, The Felipe Salles Interconnections Ensemble has brought together modern large jazz ensemble writing, contemporary classical textures, and Latin American rhythmic influences in a unique way. The music represents the interconnection between many cultural influences, ranging from Brazilian, American, Argentinean, and European musical sources. The approach to composition, using layers of melodic and rhythmic counterpoint, also expresses the interconnectivity behind the musical product. In addition, the exploration of individual improvisation, as a contrast to collective playing, adds another dimension to the ensemble's sound.

Tickets can be purchased online in advance, or at the doors for an additional fee. There is also a livestream option. Next Stage will provide a cash bar. Advance tickets are available at www.nextstagearts.org. For more information, call 802-387-0102, or visit the website above.

Ludlow back on track and open for business

BY NICK GIBERTI

The Vermont Journal

LUDLOW, Vt. – By now, everyone knows what happened in Ludlow on July 10; the sudden, devastating flooding that put people out of their homes, and shuttered businesses. That afternoon, as Main Street was temporarily part of the Black River streambed, it was difficult to envision how the town would return from the unfolding disaster.

Yet now, through the ceaseless efforts of the community over the three months since the waters receded, the prevailing feeling is that Ludlow is not only ready, but eager for the coming fall and winter seasons, when the town annually plays host to thousands of leaf peepers, skiers, and snowboarders.

“The town is ready with open arms,” says Ludlow town manager Brendan McNamara, expressing optimism for the months ahead. In the wake of the flooding, McNamara explained, many businesses in Ludlow suffered a double blow, being affected not only by the physical repercussions of flood damage, but losing out on summer business as well. However, despite the relatively short time that has passed, McNamara describes the situation in Ludlow as “all systems go.”

“Visitors aren’t going to notice any difference” in the town’s infrastructure, McNamara said, noting that most businesses are either open now, or on track to reopen by the height of the tourist season. In light of the town’s rapid recovery, McNamara told The Journal that, “We hope to see everyone for the fall and winter season.”

Greg Hart, who owns Blue Sky Trading Co. on Main Street, echoed McNamara’s sentiments. “July was slow, but things picked up in August,” Hart explained, saying reactions from recent visitors has varied, and the formerly unavoidable flood damage is now often going unnoticed. “Some people come into town knowing all about what’s happened; other people are like, ‘there was a flood?’” Hart expressed a positive outlook as the foliage season approaches, and hoped that the steady increase in visitors would continue into the traditional tourist time.

The Book Nook owner Scott Stearns also spoke to the uptick in business since the late summer. “Sales have slowly ramped up after the flooding,” Stearns said. “The late summer has been busy as we head into foliage, so we hope for a good winter season.”

Weston Nicoll, owner of the restaurant GameBird, said that he was lucky, with minimal water damage and only a small amount of food stock lost. Nicoll also spoke of lost business, but reiterated what others have said, saying he has seen a steady increase since July, and that he hopes for a snowy winter.

In the wake of the flooding, GameBird provided free meals to workers who were helping to dig out and reconstruct Ludlow’s roads and buildings. However, Nicoll expressed a sentiment that many in Ludlow share when he said, “I don’t want anyone thinking we feel like we did something grand here. We just did what folks do in times like this.” That feeling is widespread in the community, and has contributed to Ludlow’s speedy comeback.

Though the town still does not have a post office or grocery store, there is hope that residents and visitors will not have to go without much longer. As of now, the Ludlow Post Office is physically ready, and awaiting official approval to open its doors, which they hope to do in the next week. As for Shaw’s, at the recent Ludlow Selectboard meeting on Oct. 2, McNamara said that “signs point to” the grocery chain opening “before the ski season.”

Undoubtedly, there is still work to be done. However, in spite of the hardships of the summer, the resounding attitude in Ludlow is that the town, its residents, and its businesses are prepared and excited to welcome the influx of activity, which accompanies the Vermont winter in this small ski town.
