Go to summer camp

BY KYLE LAURITA-BONOMETTI

The Vermont Journal

Drawing on personal experience, I can't say that summer camp is all fun and games. I remember my grandmother picking me up from Tanglewood, a summer camp in Maine, when I was ten years old, muttering obscenities as she examined my mosquito-ravaged skin, a real impressionist painting of insect bites. I remember making friends, but also meeting kids I didn't like; I remember not getting into the activity group I wanted; I remember not enjoying the food. But I wouldn't trade that experience for anything, because, in my opinion, that's exactly the point of summer camp: It's a dose of life away from home.

In a report conducted by the American Camp Association in 2005, results indicated that children who attend camp experience significant growth in self-esteem, independence, social comfort, adventure and exploration, and values and decisions, to name a few. I think most would agree - it makes sense. Kids need time away from home in new environments to develop and grow. New situations give rise to new skills, unfamiliar challenges establish character.

I don't think I can say that ten-year-old me particularly relished the idea of making new friends, but in a situation where you're surrounded by people your own age and you don't know anyone, it's bound to happen. Experience encourages confidence in one's abilities and instinct, and that's not something that can be taught. While I may have been embarrassed at first when I accidentally put mayonnaise on my peanut butter and jelly instead of fluff, it certainly made for a fun story as I entered fifth grade.

Be it fishing camp, theater, aviation, crafts, or what-have-you, summer camp provides a chance for children to step outside of their comfort zone in a safe, nurturing environment. In the 2005 ACA report, 92% of campers reported that "Camp helped me feel good about myself." In this sense, summer camp is an invaluable tool in fostering self-confidence in children. Like school, summer camp is an environment outside of the home where kids can get to know themselves, along with others, by overcoming challenges.

No, I didn't want to wake up the camp counselor to ask for bug spray at ten o'clock at night, but I did it anyway. Yes, I would have preferred to be in the "River" activity group over the "Trail" group, but I learned I could have fun wherever I was. And, honestly, I still enjoy pizza bagels to this day. The point is, we all need to stretch ourselves. Why not give your child the opportunity this summer?

Ludlow approves all articles at in-person Town Meeting

BY SHARON HUNTLEY

The Vermont Journal

LUDLOW, Vt. - The April 4 Ludlow Town Meeting, following their traditional in-person format with voting on the floor, lasted just shy of two hours with voters ultimately approving all 12 articles including the town budget for $4,253,412. The original town meeting date in early March had been delayed in hopes that Covid restrictions would lift to allow for in-person participation.

Town Moderator Marty Nitka directed the proceedings that included 90 attendees, 79 of which were registered Ludlow voters.

During the discussion on Article 6, which concerned setting the tax rate and approving the $14 million town budget, Board Chairman Bruce Schmidt spoke briefly to the considerations that led to the approximate 3% budget increase, which include pay increases for town employees and the addition of a building and grounds department support position. "In this town, employees are our biggest asset," he said. Schmidt also added that the Board and municipal manager had worked extremely hard to keep to a budget that the town could support. There was little follow up discussion and the article was approved quickly.

Three of the articles took up the bulk of discussion: Article 7, over how the $25,000 designated for the Recreation Department should be spent; Article 9, over the $312,085 of additional funding being requested for the Ludlow ambulance service; and Article 11, concerning whether to approve the proposed Town Charter.

Article 7 outlined the proposed amount of $112,500 to be put into the Capital Fund to support vehicle and equipment purchases, town building maintenance and repairs, and fund programs. The bulk of the assigned amounts went unquestioned, including the $30,000 each for the highway equipment fund and fire equipment fund, and various smaller amounts for building maintenance of the Ludlow Community Center, Black River Senior Center, former Black River High School Building, and Ludlow Town Hall. The article also included $25,000 allocated for the Ludlow Recreation Department, which brought the most scrutiny.

Ludlow resident Gary McIntyre made note that in prior selectboard discussions, that $25,000 had been specified for dredging the pond and putting in sand for a beach at the West Hill area. He made an amendment to the motion to include that the funds be used specifically for that purpose.

Recreation Committee member Marissa Selleck spoke to the fact that this was part of a much larger project but it had been broken down into phases, and expected the dredging and sanding to cost approximately $20,000 with the additional $5,000 to cover costs for a possible access to get the proper equipment to the site.

Schmidt said that although he had critiqued the timing of the larger project, which was presented right before the budget came out, he praised the committee for their hard work. He said did not feel they had all the information to put the entire project to the voters this year, but the Selectboard put the $25,000 in this year, so that initial amount would be available.

Additional discussion questioned whether, once dredged, the pond would need to be dredged again and when, but those details were not certain according to Selleck.

McIntyre said that his intention was to make sure the project went ahead, and remembering what a nice place West Hill had been when the swimming pond was in use affirmed to Selleck, "I'm on your side."

Several community members, including Sharon Bixby, suggested that they approve the funds as proposed, and to put trust in the Selectboard and committee who understand what they're talking about and have a plan.

The amendment to the article was defeated. Discussion on whether to introduce a different version of an amendment was brought up but found no traction. Finally, the original article was approved as originally written.

Article 9, which asked the town to fund $312,085 to help the ambulance service with overall operations, met with some pushback with residents questioning the high costs and suggesting the town again look for a regional solution, asking more from surrounding towns and suggesting that Okemo/Vail should help pay for the expense so taxpayers weren't absorbing all the costs.

Municipal Manager Scott Murphy said emergency service discussions had been happening recently with Chester and Springfield on the regional ambulance service discussion but that the state had not given clear direction particularly on funding from the state level. He also said that the town was working to provide the best ambulance service they can with what they've got but that it was difficult to attract and retain people.

Ambulance Chief Stephanie Glover spoke, saying that the Ludlow Ambulance services provide 24/7 coverage, and later said that the starting EMT salary was $14.95 an hour making it difficult to retain staff.

When asked about volunteers, Murphy said that the days of volunteers were dwindling and that the equipment and training needed for volunteers was not a successful model. Ludlow Fire Chief Peter Kolenda suggested having volunteers manning a second ambulance might be something to look into.

Other residents spoke glowingly of the

All articles pass in Cavendish; Gross is successful in loss

BY SHARON HUNTLEY

The Vermont Journal

CAVENDISH, Vt. - Following a brief hybrid Cavendish Town Meeting on Monday night, just 111 Cavendish residents, out of approximately 1,000 registered voters, cast their ballots the following day on Tuesday, March 29, passing all four articles, including the town budget with 104 "yes" votes, six "no," and one blank.

One closely watched race was for the three-year Green Mountain Unified School District Board position. Leading up to the election, current GMUSD board member Abe Gross urged Cavendish voters to vote for his opponent Steve Perani by driving around town with, or holding up a sign outside of the elementary school that read, "Please vote for Steve. Don't vote for me." Perani often joined him on school grounds with his own smaller sign that read "(I'm Steve.)" Those efforts, that spanned several weeks, proved successful with Perani receiving 97 votes versus 12 for Gross.

Of the other contested elected positions, George Timko defeated Michael Kell for a three-year term on the Cavendish Selectboard with 59 votes versus 46 votes. Theresa McNamara defeated Eric Krasnauskas 92 votes versus 16 votes for Town Grand Juror. Doris Eddy defeated Wendy Regier for Trustee of Public Funds 73 to 29 votes.

For the uncontested elected positions: Mike Ripley was elected as Town Moderator with 97 votes; Sandra Russo and Stephen Plunkard were both elected to one-year Selectboard positions with 91 votes and 87 votes respectively; Dan Churchill was elected as Trustee of Public Funds with 92 votes; Eric Krasnauskas was elected as Town Agent with 86 votes; and Julia Gignoux was elected as GMUSD Director for a one-year position with 95 votes.

Londonderry proposes Williams Dam removal

LONDONDERRY, Vt. - At its meeting on March 24, 2022, the Town of Londonderry Selectboard voted unanimously to recommend to the community that the Town pursue removal of the Williams Dam, and placed on the annual Town Meeting warning an article seeking to raise $40,000 for engineering costs for the removal process.

The Williams Dam was constructed in the 1880s and is located on the West River in close proximity to VT Route 11, just east of the intersection of VT Route 100. A State of Vermont inspection from 2015 noted that the dam was in poor condition and was continuing to worsen, and recommended that the Town "retain a professional engineer qualified in dam safety to evaluate the dam and prepare plans for repair, replacement, or removal."

In November of 2021 the Town hired the engineering firm of DuBois & King Inc. to perform the study, which was presented to the Town in final form on March 24, 2022.

Removal of the dam was previously recommended in June of 2008, when the Vermont Agency of Natural Resources issued a plan which outlined that the Williams Dam be considered for removal due to deteriorating conditions, blocking of fish passage, sediment accumulation, and potential for safety hazards.

In early March of 2022, the Vermont Department of Environmental Conservation's Dam Safety program reclassified the hazard classification of the Williams Dam from "Low Hazard Potential Dam" to "Significant Hazard Potential Dam," further emphasizing the Town's need to act on one of the alternatives to address the condition of the dam. Because of new dam safety rules promulgated by the Vermont Department of Environmental Conservation, the deteriorated condition of the dam will require some action on the part of the Town and a "no-action" alternative is not feasible.

The recent DuBois & King Inc. study estimates the costs of the various alternatives as follows:

• Removal - $425,000
The study notes that the rehabilitation alternative could receive some historic preservation grant funds. But according to staff of the Connecticut River Conservancy and the Vermont Department of Environmental Conservation's Watershed Planning Program, the removal alternative can be covered at little or no cost to the Town, as there are earmarked funds for such removal projects.

Town Administrator Shane O'Keefe said that, "The Town clearly needs to act on one of the alternatives as the dam is in very poor shape and poses a risk to the community; the option to have it removed at little or no cost to the taxpayers appears to be the most prudent and environmentally sound way forward."

The public is invited to review the study, copies of which can be viewed at the Town Office or online at www.londonderryvt.org, and should do so to best be prepared to consider the dam removal proposal at the upcoming Town Meeting. The Town Meeting for Londonderry will be held on Saturday, April 30, 2022 at 9:30 a.m. at the Town Hall.

FOLA changes movie screening schedule

LUDLOW, Vt. – At a special meeting of Friends of Ludlow Auditorium on Saturday, March 26, 2022, the board members decided to cancel a major portion of its 2022 movie schedule due to “very poor attendance” according to Jim Alic, FOLA chairman.

In discussing the attendance decline, Alic indicated that the board would cancel all movies scheduled for April through July.

While much of the cause of the drop in attendance may be attributed to the Covid pandemic, Scott Stearns, Program Director for FOLA, believed that a “much more basic factor was at play.” He noted a recent Gallup survey that showed that movie attendance had decreased three-fold in 2021 compared to 2019. This level of decrease was even greater for non-urban areas of the country.

He further commented that the impact of streaming on the internet probably was the single most significant driving force in this decrease.

As a result of this decision, the tentative revised schedule, according to Stearns, will include:

- Aug. 20 – Silent Movie Festival (featuring Alfred Hitchcock’s “The Lodger”)
- Sep. 17 – “Moscow on the Hudson”
- Oct. 8 – “Good Morning, Vietnam”
- Oct. 29 – “Awakenings”

Dec. 17 – “It’s a Wonderful Life”

The September and October movies will be part of a Robin Williams series that will begin with a presentation by Rick Winston, a film historian, who will discuss the background of the films and Williams’ roles.

In addition to the revised movie schedule, FOLA has tentatively planned on conducting two candidate forums for the primary and general elections. The primary forum is tentatively scheduled for Thursday, July 21 and the general election forum for Thursday, Oct. 13.

Neighborhood Connections offers bra fitting

LONDONDERRY, Vt. – Research has shown that most women are wearing the wrong bra size, which can lead to a variety of problems. While it is suggested that we get fitted every six months to a year, because breast size fluctuates continually throughout our life, most have never been measured by a professional.

On Thursday, April 28 at 4 p.m., Julie Isaacs, owner of La Peche Lingerie in Manchester, will be at Neighborhood Connections to offer professional bra fitting. Space is limited, so please register by calling 802-824-4343.

Chester during the growing season, is offering an easy way for individuals to beautify their own properties. Hanging baskets 10-inches wide, designed by Allen Brothers Nursery, feature mixed flowers that will do well in a variety of conditions and complement any color scheme. The baskets are available by pre-order, and the form may be downloaded from www.chestervt.gov/chester-towncape.html.

The order form should be mailed to Chester Townscape at P.O. Box 561, Chester, VT 05143. It must include payment by check or credit card and be received by Thursday, April 21. Pick up will take place on Saturday, May 28 from 10 a.m. – 4 p.m. at the Information Booth on Main Street across from the Chester Village Green. Diaper Drive donations

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. – Chroma Technology and Parks Place Community Resource Center are partnering to host a month-long diaper drive in April to stock up on much needed diaper sizes for the Time for a Change Diaper Bank.

Decorated donation boxes will be available inside Chroma for employees to donate diapers and wipes, and a box for public donations will be available during business hours on Parks Place’s front porch, located at 44 School St. Ext., next to Central Elementary School in Bellows Falls.

The Time for a Change Diaper Bank was founded in 2016 by a Vermont Community Foundation Spark Grant, and is a collaborative effort between Building Bright Futures, Youth Services, the Springfield Area Parent Child Center, WNESU, and Parks Place. Housed in the Parks Place building, it provides community members access to free diapers and wipes and was heavily utilized during the pandemic lockdown. Because of this, the drive is seeking to replenish diapers in larger sizes, specifically sizes 4–6, along with pull-ups and wipes.

ambulance service and encouraged approval of the article, with one resident saying that $312,000 wasn’t much money to save your life.

After discussion wrapped up, the article was approved followed by the quick approval of Article 10 which asked for $255,206 for the purchase of a new ambulance.

Article 11 asked for the adoption of a proposed Town Charter, which bestows the Selectboard with the authority to decide if an issue should be voted on by Australian ballot, and not on the floor. Murphy explained that this does not provide for the reverse, having an Australian ballot vote being decided on the floor.

Schmidt explained that the Selectboard had made the decision in the past to move an issue, especially if it was a sensitive subject or contentious issue, to a vote by Australian ballot but recently discovered that they didn’t have the authority to do so. This charter would give them that authority.

Resident and attorney Andrea Goldman challenged the language of the article and suggested the wording be amended to clarify that the reverse, going from Australian ballot to a floor vote, would not be allowed.

Murphy confirmed that the language had come from the town attorney and had been based on other town charters. Several residents cautioned whether changing the language might impact whether or not the state approved the charter when it went to legislature for final approval. Ludlow State Representative Logan Nicoll said that the fact that the language has been passed in other town charters, that may lend a little more weight when being reviewed for approval.

After the discussion, Goldman tried to withdraw her amendment but Nitka advised that the amendment needed to be voted on, and was subsequently defeated. The article was then approved with its original wording.

Voting for elected positions in the town will be voted on Tuesday, April 6 at the Ludlow Town Hall from 10 a.m. – 7 p.m.

Gov. Scott and VOREC fund outdoor projects

REGION – Governor Phil Scott and the Vermont Outdoor Recreation Economic Collaborative announced on Monday, March 28 the twenty-four recipients of the VOREC Community Grant Program. In announcing this round of grant recipients, the Governor restated his support for outdoor recreation as an important means for economic recovery and development.

The grant recipients, announced at an event in Danville on March 28, joined the nine other communities who have received funding through the program since it was established by Act 194 in 2018. A historic investment from the Governor in 2021 grew the grant program from a granting capacity of $100,000 – $200,000 to a total of $5 million. This investment has allowed the program to nearly triple the number of communities who are benefiting from the program and spurred some notable changes to grant program requirements. Changes included expanding eligibility from only municipal entities to include nonprofit organizations and setting a $50,000 minimum with no maximum potential award. The two projects to gain funding in Windsor County are Ascutney Outdoors, awarded $262,088 to fund the development of new trails, free equipment rentals, and other projects, and the Town of Ludlow, awarded $190,500 to fund the redevelopment of the Dorsey Park Skatepark.

New Sandy MacGillivray Memorial Scholarship

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. – The Springfield Garden Club would like to announce a scholarship now available to graduating seniors from Springfield River Valley Technical Center, Class of 2022. The $1,000 scholarship will be given to one student per year for the next five years. A large portion of the scholarship's funds have been donated in memory of Sandy MacGillivray to the Garden Club by friends and family, SGC friends, and those in the community who recognized Sandy's dedicated commitment to her hometown.

This scholarship is being offered in honor of Sandy's long commitment to serving her community in a variety of ways. For over twenty years she was an active member of the Garden Club, serving as President in 2006–2008 and again in 2011–2013. She produced the members' program book for many years and was Co-chair of the Festival of Trees fundraiser. In recent years, she also served as the Civic Beautification Chair. She was actively involved in other groups and committees, all with the intent of improving and beautifying the town of Springfield. She was a very positive person who saw the best in people. She carried out her duties, always with a smile and an encouraging word for everyone.

Mrs. MacGillivray taught business courses at Springfield High School Tech Center for many years. She was extremely organized and applied herself diligently to any task given to her. She loved to work with students, encouraging them and guiding them into living productive lives. Her scholarship will be offered to a promising student who has been known to demonstrate similar qualities of work ethic and character.

The scholarship is open to students who have successfully completed two years of study at RVTC. Seniors may be going on to post-secondary educational institutions or to further training in the workplace, which may require monetary assistance. Interested candidates should visit the guidance office at RVTC to apply. Completed applications are due Friday, May 13, 2022.

This scholarship is in addition to the normal scholarship program offered by the Garden Club to students from Springfield High School, Green Mountain High School, and RVTC who are pursuing further education in the field of horticulture, forestry, or environmental science.

Things I know

My article on water pipe last week generated a lot of questions and comments about balsam pump logs. I know balsam trees well. My father and I cut a lot of pulpwood in the early 1960s in Shrewsbury.

I was a scrawny kid, but that didn't stop Arnold from working me. Dad limbed and cut the balsam trees into 4-foot lengths. My job, with the aid of two pulp hooks and a peavey, was to stack the 4-foot lengths in long rows.

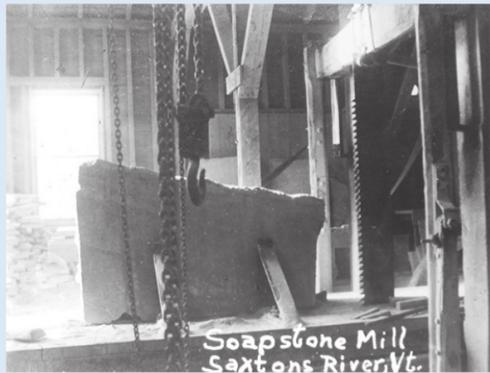

A pulp hook is held in each hand. Pulp hooks have a very sharp point that you stick into each pulp end, and lift.

A cord of wood is 4 feet deep, 4 feet high, and 8 feet long. Once, I had 20 cords stacked on the landing. Some butts of the balsam were 2 feet or more in diameter and 4 feet long.

These butts were more than a scrawny kid could handle. This is when I used a peavey. A peavey is a tool used for rolling logs. A peavey has a round wooden handle maybe 3 feet long. The business end is two parts affixed together. The main end is pointed. Attached to the peavey head is an iron, half-round hook that swivels, with a sharp point to bite into the log.

I used the peavey with the curved hook-point biting on the underside of the pulp. With the long handle on my shoulder, I would push forward as hard as I could. The pulp would roll forward. After a while I got pretty good at it.

Because I've handled so much balsam and have seen many stands of balsam while hunting, I know how pump logs were selected. When balsam is growing in a stand fairly close together, the first 20 feet or so of the trees will be straight as an arrow with the smallest branches. Because the trees grow close together, branches don't get very large until the upper half, where tips of branches have less competition for sunlight from neighboring trees. If you selected an 8-foot log from a 9-inch diameter butt log, there would be the slightest taper in the log, making it ideal for a pump log. Further, because of the small branches, knots were small, making boring with the pod auger possible.

For those who don't know, a knot in a board is where a branch was on the tree. Small branches equal small knots. These smaller knots tend not to grow into the center of the tree where the pod auger did its work.

More on soapstone
The photo with this article is a real photo postcard. It shows a slab of soapstone about to be cut. On the right you'll notice a vertical saw with coarse teeth. The saw cuts with an up-and-down motion. Each downward pass of the saw blade would rip a half-inch or more deep. Notice the heavy chain falls in the center foreground for lifting large pieces of soapstone on to the table.

I know
I know I have eaten just about everything that crawls, walks, flies, or swims at one time or another. I've eaten woodchuck, rattlesnake, hedgehog, squirrels, and believe it or not, I have eaten some crow. I have eaten muskrat, but had never eaten any beaver. I recently inherited a beaver back strap. I was surprised how bright red the meat was. There's a thin membrane you need to remove before cooking.

I fried it in a little butter in the cast iron skillet for a few minutes on each side. I baked a potato with broccoli for a veggie. I was impressed with the meat. It didn't have a strong gamey taste at all and very lean.

I know both baseball and trout fishing start soon. There's a little brook I like to fish for trout. These are small trout, averaging 3 or 4 inches in length. What fun they are to catch. I did catch a lunker there last summer. He was 6 inches. Too big, so I threw him back.

I caught my limit of these short trout. What I like about these little trout is they are so small you can eat bones, tail, the crispy skin and all as a finger food. I sprinkle them with flour and fry in butter in the cast iron skillet. I have a lady friend to whom I sometimes give the days catch. She's hooked.

This week's old saying is meant to confuse: "Let those going out first."

Dear Editor,

A "third place," a term coined by sociologist Ray Oldenburg in his 1989 book "The Great Good Place," refers to a location where people spend the majority of their time after home and work - their first and second places.

Third places are informal public gathering places that serve as social anchors and safe places. They are a home away from home, a place where people feel that they belong.

Fans of the fictional Springfield of "The Simpsons" will recognize that Moe's is definitely Homer's third place. And those of us who watched the television show, "Cheers," know that Sam and Coach provided such a space - "where everybody knows your name" - to their regulars. In Vermont, general stores may have historically played this role.

A third place should be comfortable and approachable - like a living room for the community. It is a reprieve from home and work, which are often structured and require a time commitment.

Oldenburg suggests that third places are the heart of a community's social vitality and the foundation of a functioning democracy. They promote social equality, provide a setting for grassroots activities, create habits of public association, and offer support to both individuals and communities. Status and class, which can be major points of stress or contention in our first or second place, are simply not relevant at our third place.

In contrast to the structured social experiences of home and work, third places offer a neutral public space for a community to connect and establish bonds. Third places, according to Oldenburg, "host the regular, voluntary, informal, and happily anticipated gatherings of individuals beyond the realms of home and work."

Oldenburg defines the following characteristics for a third place: It is a neutral ground, a leveling place, conversation is the focus, it's accessible and accommodating, has a playful atmosphere, and there are regulars.

A third place is a powerful antidote to isolation and exclusion. It restores our connection to others and to our community. It is haven for nurturing strong relationships, which are our greatest social asset and vital to our individual health and happiness.

In Springfield, do we have third places? Perhaps the fraternal organizations like the Moose and Elks and veterans organizations like the VFW, or American Legion? The Town Library, especially with its varied programs, could certainly fill this role. For young people, the Community Center and The SPACE are here. Some research even suggests that a local McDonalds can become the equivalent of the English pub or public house for gatherings.

Strengthening social networks is a crucial step to reviving our neighborhoods and addressing social problems. Having third places can do much to help stabilize the Springfield community and reduce its social problems.

Third places are critical components of a neighborhood or of a town like Springfield. The creation of these spaces, however, is not accidental. They are the result of careful consideration, intention, and planning.

Our town planners and leaders need to help foster and encourage third places in Springfield. And citizens need to support them. Because, in the end, having a third place may be the key to reviving our connection to each other and to our town.

Sincerely,
Larry Kraft

Bitcoin: Fad or the Future?

REGION - If someone told you about an investment that has made some people millionaires overnight, would you be tempted to invest? What if you were told that the same investment could lose most or all of its value overnight? This is the debate surrounding the digital phenomenon known as Bitcoin. Bitcoin is an alternative currency that exists strictly as digital code, and has received a lot of attention. If you're wondering what all the fuss is about, here's a brief introduction to Bitcoin, how it works, and some of the potential pitfalls it presents.

Bitcoin as currency
Bitcoin isn't a company, but rather a virtual currency supported by a peer-to-peer, computer-based electronic cash system first outlined in 2009 by an anonymous person or group. Bitcoin is created by "mining," using complex software to solve mathematical computations. Solving these problems creates so-called "blocks," and the computer that solved it is rewarded with digital bitcoins. The number of solutions that can be discovered globally per hour is limited by the system's software code. The eventual total number of bitcoins available to be mined is said to be limited to 21 million. However, most users acquire bitcoins by buying them with physical currencies or accepting them as payment for goods and services.

Advocates of Bitcoin argue that the advantages of the system are that, one, it's not controlled by any government's central bank, two, a global virtual currency facilitates global commercial transactions, three, every Bitcoin transaction is recorded in a public ledger, and four, the payer and payee are anonymous. However, some say that it is because of that anonymity that it is dangerous, as it has attracted charges that its chief use so far has been for illegal activities such as money laundering.

Just as a physical wallet holds paper money, a digital wallet stores the private software keys that are bitcoins. It makes or receives payments by communicating with the network of other Bitcoin wallets. In fact, some well-known merchants and services now accept Bitcoin as payment.

Speculating in Bitcoin
To say that Bitcoin as an investment is volatile is an understatement. Its value has fluctuated wildly as speculation and confidence in it have ebbed and surged. At the beginning of 2017, one bitcoin was worth about $1,000, and in March 2021, the price topped $60,000. In between, Bitcoin investors have experienced gut-wrenching price declines. As a result, the amount in your virtual wallet can fluctuate from enough to buy a Tesla or enough to buy a tank of gas.

Obviously, virtual currency still faces a lot of challenges. If you're considering exploring Bitcoin, either for transactions or as a speculative investment, you should become far more familiar with it than simply relying on this discussion. And because of the issues outlined above, you should be prepared for dramatic price swings and only use money that you aren't relying on for something else.

Walter Stewart Allbee, 1943-2022

WESTMINSTER, Vt. – Walter Stewart Allbee, 78, passed away March 25, 2022. Walt was the son of Stewart and Margaret (Perry) Allbee, born Sept. 26, 1943 in Bellows Falls, Vt. He was a graduate of Bellows Falls Union High School Class of 1962.

On Nov. 30, 1968, he married his wife Priscilla (Cote) in Saint Johnsbury, Vt. They were married for nearly 54 years. They made their home in Westminster, Vt. and enjoyed summers together at Miles Pond in Concord, Vt.

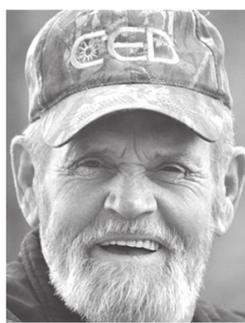

Walt had very fond memories of growing up on his family's farm in Westminster. He raised pairs of oxen and told many stories of life on the farm, his horses, and working in the woods with his Father and Grandfather. As a teenager, Walt worked at Brooks Sales Stables getting horses off the train and caring for them. He loved animals, and they loved him.

Walt was a lover of the outdoors. He enjoyed hunting, fishing, and riding his ATV. He loved spending time at his favorite place, Miles Pond in Concord, Vt. He loved to work with his hands and could fix anything. He made beautiful birdhouses and loved to tinker in his shop.

Walt was an active member of the Top of the World ATV Club in Concord, Vt. He enjoyed working on the trails and riding all over the Northeast Kingdom. He loved a good burn out! He loved diesel pickups, loud Harleys, and big rigs with lots of chrome.

Walt worked summers building and maintaining pools. When pool season was over, he was a school bus driver for the Windham Northeast Supervisory Union for forty years.

Walt was always there with a chuckle, a mischievous grin, and a joke. He tooted his bus horn at different places around town every morning and afternoon. He loved to laugh, loved a good story, and had an old Yankee sense of humor. He loved good food and lots of it, especially Cilla's homemade bread.

Walter will be dearly missed by his family and friends. He had no idea in life how loved he was by so many. He will also be missed by the thousands of kids that grew up riding his bus.

Walter is survived by his wife, Priscilla, a son Jason Allbee and wife Andrea (Brattleboro, Vt.), a daughter Alisa and her husband Andy Daigneault (Westminster, Vt.), his brother David and wife Claude Allbee (Westminster, Vt.), sister-in-law Lori and husband Dick Miller (Westminster, Vt.), sister-in-law Linda and husband Gerry Villeux (Charlotte, Vt.), brother-in-law Paul Cote (Concord, Vt.), and several nieces and nephews that thought the world of him. He is also survived by his dog, Patchie, and cat, Molly, whom he adored. He was predeceased by his parents and his sister, Ginny.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests sending a donation to Westminster Cares, 3534 US-5, Westminster, VT 05158.

Arrangements were made at the Fenton and Hennessey Funeral Home, 55 Westminster St., Bellows Falls, VT 05101.

Services were held Saturday April 2, 2022 at the Westminster Congregational Church.

Florence Lindgren, 1924-2022

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. – Florence M. Lindgren, 97, passed away on March 26, 2022 at Springfield Hospital. She was born on July 28, 1924 in Concord N.H., daughter of John and Helen Morrison.

She moved to Springfield, Vt. as a child and graduated from Springfield High School in 1942. She was married to her high school sweetheart, Theodore "Ted" Lindgren, for over 77 years. She worked for Jones & Lamson Machine Tool Company as a panel wiper for 22 years, including three years during World War II while her husband was overseas.

HELP WANTED

Springfield Hospital accepting scholarship applications

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. – Springfield Hospital is now accepting applications for the 17th Annual Eileen Austin Neal Nursing Scholarship of $1,000. This scholarship is open to any student who has been accepted into a nursing program of study. Applicants will be judged on interest in and commitment to the field of nursing. Determination will be based on merit and need.

Eileen Austin Neal was a registered nurse at Springfield Hospital for 64 years, retiring in 2005. She was the first recipient of Springfield Hospital's Community Health Award in 2003. In 2004, the Hospital established the Spirit of Nursing Award in recognition of her many years of dedicated service.

Upon her death in February 2006, at the request of Eileen's family, Springfield Hospital established a nursing scholarship fund in her name with the gifts received in her memory. "This scholarship continues the positive influence Eileen had on both nursing and the community," said Lyndsy McIntyre, VP of Patient Care Services at Springfield Hospital.

The application deadline is June 24, 2022. Scholarship applications are available by visiting www.springfieldhospital.org. If you would like more information, please contact Sandy Peplau in the Marketing & Development office by emailing speplau@springfieldhospital.org, or call 802-885-7686.

Senior Solutions receives grant for pet programming

REGION – Senior Solutions has been awarded a $20,000 grant from Meals on Wheels America and PetSmart Charities to expand their existing "Foxy Fund" to provide emergency veterinary care and pet food for Meals on Wheels recipients with pets. Senior Solutions was one of only 27 grants awarded nationally, and the only one in the northeast.

"We are incredibly excited about this opportunity," said Outreach Specialist Thom Simmons. "In April we will be working out the logistics in a test pilot with the Springfield Meals Center, so clients in Andover, Chester, Perkinsville, and Springfield with pets should keep watch for information in their meal deliveries. Once it is operating smoothly, we will offer to expand it to other towns across southeastern Vermont by working with the other meals centers. This will greatly transform our existing Foxy Fund program and help many of our clients keep and care for their pets."

Vermonters have the highest pet-ownership rate in the country at 71%, and many think of their pets as family members. Studies have shown that pets positively impact both the physical and emotional health of seniors in significant ways, especially those at risk of social isolation. Pet ownership may not only stave off loneliness, but can also reduce blood pressure, provide mental health benefits, and offer unconditional love and acceptance. Unfortunately, many people on fixed incomes have difficulty keeping up with the rising costs of owning a pet.

The Foxy Fund was established in 2019 as a result of a bequest by a client whose life was changed by having a pet. To read more about this story or donate to the fund, please visit www.seniorsolutionsvt.org/giving/the-foxy-fund/.

Next Stage Arts presents “Into the Woods”

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. – Join the Wild Goose Players as they present Stephen Sondheim’s masterpiece musical, “Into the Woods,” April 22, 23, 29, and 30 at 7:30 p.m., and April 23, 24, 30, and May 1 at 2 p.m. at the Bellows Falls Opera House.

Nominated for ten Tony Awards and winning three, this epic musical adaptation of the Grimms’ Fairy Tales covers multiple themes: growing up, parents and children, accepting responsibility, morality, and finally, wish-fulfillment and its consequences. Time Magazine reviewers wrote that the play’s “basic insight... is that at heart, most fairy tales are about the loving yet embattled relationship between parents and children. Almost everything that goes wrong – which is to say, almost everything that can – arises from a failure of parental or filial duty, despite the best intentions.” Stephen Holden wrote that the themes of the show include parent-child relationships and the individual’s responsibility to the community. The witch isn’t just a scowling old hag, but a key symbol of moral ambivalence. James Lapine said that the most unpleasant person, that is, the Witch, would have the truest things to say and the “nicer” people would be less honest. In the Witch’s words, “I’m not good; I’m not nice; I’m just right.”

Featuring haunting music, fantastical sets and costumes, giants and witches and more, this show will keep you spellbound from start to finish. The production includes the creative team and company that brought Chicago, The Secret Garden, and Jesus Christ Superstar to the Opera House Stage.

Due to continuing Covid concerns, masks will be required. For tickets and reservations visit www.bellowsfallsoperahouse.com. For further information, email dstern@wildgooseplayers.com.

Climb, swim, and explore at Edgar May

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. – The Edgar May Health and Recreation Center invites children ages 7–14 to participate in our 2022 Adventure Summer Camp, which will run five days a week from 9 a.m. – 4 p.m. Adventure Camp is available for six weeks this summer: July 5–8, July 11–15, July 18–22, Aug 8–12, Aug 15–19, or Aug 22–26. Each week has an option for after camp care, which is available from 4–5 p.m.

“We’re really excited to offer this summer program to our community,” says Olivia Satti, Camp Director. “It’s super important that we bring kids back together outside the classroom in an environment where they will work on important life skills such as team work, communication, critical thinking, and self-confidence.”

On Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, campers will get a chance to use our 40-foot rock-climbing wall and learn important skills, terminology, and safety measures. This dynamic activity is a total body workout with many health benefits including increasing range of motion and flexibility, building strength and endurance, and boosting brain function. Campers will also cool down in our pools with engaging water games, swim lessons, and BOGA classes. During their swimming times, they will also develop new skills as well as learn how to be safe in the water.

On Tuesday and Thursday, campers will travel offsite to Vermont State Parks, art exhibits, museums, nature centers, and more. Tuesday’s trips will focus on outdoor education and exploration while Thursday’s trips will be sites full of real-world experience and education. An example of a few of these locations are Vermont Institute of Natural Science in Quechee, Endless Creations in Chester, Billings Farm and Museum in Woodstock, Grafton Nature Museum, Montshire Museum in Norwich, and New England Center for the Circus Arts in Brattleboro.

Students ages 13–15 also have the opportunity to participate in camp as Counselors in Training. CITs will assist counselors with leading activities for the younger campers as well as learn valuable leadership and management skills. “The CITs of this year will develop the skills needed to be the camp counselors of the future,” adds Satti.

Registration and additional information is available at www.edgarmay.org/summer-camps. Scholarships are available. For more information, call 802-885-2568, email info@edgarmay.org, or visit www.edgarmay.org.

LUDLOW, Vt. – For decades now, the Fletcher Farm School for the Arts and Crafts in Ludlow, Vt., has afforded local children and summer visitors from 7–17 years old the opportunity to learn a new skill and socialize with other children in a safe, nurturing environment. This summer, we offer classes in art, clay, silver fabrication, mixed media, creating greeting cards, making “junk journals,” learning hand stitching, working with parents to weave a small stool, and learning to upcycle old clothing with appliqué.

There is plenty of time to play in the fresh air and explore our expansive campus. At the end of each class, students display their work for parents and other students on campus, both children and adults.

All children are welcome in our Young Artist Program.

For local schoolchildren (Ludlow, Cavendish, Chester, Mount Holly, Shrewsbury), we have a scholarship program that offers up to one-half of tuition. The Fletcher Farm Foundation subsidizes the other half of tuition for students from Ludlow or Cavendish. Parents from other communities are responsible for the balance of tuition. Parents are also responsible for our registration fee, and the materials fee of the class. Students bring their own lunches and snacks. Classes generally run from 9 a.m. – 3 p.m.

Scholarship applications will be available through the local schools after April 1, and after parents complete them, the applications are returned to the child’s art teacher for recommendations. The art teachers return the applications to us by May 1. We process applications and notify scholarship recipients by May 16.

Weston Theater Company registration for “TheaterLab”

WESTON, Vt. – Weston Theater Company announces open registration for “TheaterLab,” an immersive technical theater experience for students ages 12–18. Under the instruction of top industry professionals, participants receive an up-close look at creating live theater through backstage tours, tech rehearsals, actor/director talkbacks, and more – they also will attend all of Weston’s summer productions together and meet most Sunday afternoons and an occasional weekday evening between June and August.

Says Director of Education and Engagement, Susan Haefner, “Weston Theater Company is thrilled to offer TheaterLab in person for the first time in two years. I’m so excited to give students an opportunity to experience theater in this unique way.”

Tuition includes: one ticket to all four shows of summer season, one additional ticket per student per production, participation in post-show talks, workshops, and more, and the opportunity to meet other students who share a passion for theater.

Participants should be able to attend at least two of the Sunday matinee performances, workshops, and talkbacks, which will last from approximately 1:30 – 6:30 p.m., and will be expected to share their experiences through conversation, content creation, and social media during the season and when they return to school.
