Local family donates to 24 Main Free Food Pantry

SAXTONS RIVER, Vt. – In 2002, Vermont resident Charlie Williams passed away and left a huge hole in his large family and in the community. Through the years his family has sought a meaningful way to remember him, and to honor the fact that he loved the Village of Saxtons River so much. He was an active community member, in a quiet way, contributing labor with no fanfare to local causes such as the Saxtons River Recreation Area and the local soccer/baseball fields there. In 2016, a member of his family heard about a holiday practice called “The White Envelope.”

In short, this idea started decades ago when a woman’s husband disliked Christmas. She noticed that a local student wrestling team had no safety helmets or good equipment for their team, and lost every match. She went to a local sporting goods store and bought the equipment they needed, and anonymously donated it to the team. Then she wrote up what she had done, and put it in a white envelope pinned to the Christmas tree that year. When her husband opened and read aloud the description of the gift for the family to hear, he was deeply touched. Christmas took on a new and beautiful meaning for him. Each year following, the woman anonymously gave to a different cause that she knew her husband would appreciate. After he passed away, his children, on their own, continued the tradition each year in his honor.

Charlie Williams’ family decided to do a version of this practice in honor/memory of their father and have done so since 2016. Family members pool their donations, giving what they can, and a small group of family members chooses the local charity that will be the recipient each year. Past recipients have included the Saxtons River Elementary School Winter Sports Program, the Saxtons River Fire Department Building Fund, and The Village Early Learning Center.

This year, the family has made a $1000 donation to the 24 Main Free Pantry on Main Street in Saxtons River. The pantry provides a 24/7, accessible food shelf for neighbors facing food insecurity. Community members place food, hygiene, or paper items in the pantry as they can, and people in need can help themselves at any time.

The Saxtons River 24 Main Free Pantry was established in 2021 by Berta Martin, a Saxtons River resident and teacher in the local school system. Martin loved the way that pantries such as these could provide an uncomplicated, Covid-safe way to help local families: open all the time, neighbors helping neighbors, meaningful, simple, and anonymous. With the support of the board of the 24 Main Community Building, the pantry was installed on Main Street in Saxtons River in Aug. of 2021.

The Williams family explored local options and needs for their 2022 holiday ‘White Envelope’ donation, and chose the 24 Main Free Pantry as this year’s recipient. The Williams’ are truly an inspiration of community support for the Village of Saxtons River. Most importantly, they are an inspiration for the true spirit of the winter holidays, giving what they can out of love for their father, and in honor of his deep connection to this special Vermont community.

Springfield Library receives ARSL grant

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. – The Springfield Town Library has been awarded $8580 by the Association of Rural and Small Libraries (ARSL) to increase its role as an active and intentional participant in building community resilience. The library’s mission includes serving as the heart of the town, connecting people, ideas, and endeavors of all kinds in order to transform lives. The ARSL Sustainable and Resilient New England Libraries Grant will allow the library to provide more of these vital services to the community.

What does it mean to be a sustainable and resilient library? It doesn’t mean the library stays the same as it has always been – it means keeping the important core values of the library while changing what and how things are done. Being sustainable means meeting the community members’ present and future needs, paying attention to the impact of the library’s work on the community, and ensuring the library does all it can to help its residents be more resilient.

Many Springfield families struggle and the library is ready to help. The town’s poverty rate is 21% (compared to 10% statewide) and one-third of residents are food insecure. When basic needs aren’t met, it’s difficult to reach for educational opportunities. The ARSL grant will allow the library to provide more food for the community and for the Springfield Family Center by adding hydroponics inside the library for year-round growth. With the help of Woodbury Florists, its outdoor gardens will be redesigned to include pollinators, vegetables, and fruit bushes or dwarf trees. To ensure everyone can enjoy the library’s side garden, a gate will be installed from the ramp to improve its accessibility.

Gardening partners affiliated with local social service agencies will be invited to help with the planting and garden maintenance. To provide additional support to those in need, the grant will fund Springfield Food Co-op gift cards or container vegetable plants for the gardening partners to take home in appreciation of their services.

The library’s essential services have always included literacy. The ARSL grant will fund three additional “little libraries” to be added to those created by the Rotary Club and auctioned off by the Friends of Springfield Town Library last year. Springfield Housing Authority residents and Family Center clients will be invited to submit designs to be judged by the Springfield Art Gym. The contest winners will be provided with paint supplies and other materials to decorate their masterpieces. These ‘take-a-book’ boxes will provide 24/7 access to reading materials at the Family Center, Mountain View Apartments, and the Westview Terrace.

In conjunction with the ARSL grant, the library will pursue Sustainable Libraries Initiative Certification in 2023. This two-year certification program, endorsed by the American Library Association, provides a tested, structured path forward to increase the library’s commitment to environmental stewardship, economic feasibility, and social equity. Through these three lenses, the library staff and trustees will evaluate library practices and policies.

The Association for Rural and Small Libraries (ARSL) builds strong communities through professional development and elevating the impact of rural and small libraries. ARSL recognizes the uniqueness of small and rural libraries and is committed to providing an environment that encourages excellence within this community of practice, supporting their goals of service and speaking on behalf of this important constituency. Since one in three public libraries in the U.S. serves a population of fewer than 2,500 people.

ARSL believes in the value of rural and small libraries and strives to create resources and services that address national, state, and local priorities for libraries situated in rural communities. The Springfield Town Library thanks ARSL for this grant, which was made possible through the generosity of a regional partner foundation.

January vegan potluck —

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. — The Food for Life Vegan Potluck will take place on Sunday Jan. 8, 2023, from 3:30-5:30 p.m. at the Springfield Vermont Community Center, 139 Main St., Springfield, Vt.

Everyone is welcome and you don't have to be vegetarian or vegan to enjoy the food and company. Just bring a plant-based dish to share. Bringing dishes to eat from is also helpful. While we exclude meat, dairy, eggs, and honey in a plant-based diet, we include many other delicious foods and enjoy a sense of abundance and variety that is greater than in the traditional meat and dairy diet.

Some people come for the company, others to learn how to eat healthier, others to expand their vegetarian cooking repertoire. Eating a whole foods plant-based diet reduces risk of heart disease, stroke, cancer, diabetes, and dementia, and can even help reverse health problems after they are diagnosed. It also makes it possible to feed more people on fewer acres and with less input of petrochemicals and other limited resources. Many people choose to be vegan because they prefer not to kill animals or have them be cruelly treated as they often are in the food industry.

The potlucks we have had so far have been fun and well attended. If you have questions, call 802-624-6116. Come join us.

Happy New Year —

I can well recall 65 New Years in my life. But what was it like 65 years ago? I can only address this question based on my own experiences.

Some years, our neighbors, John and Florence Pierce came to our house for New Year's Eve. They always brought their daughter Shirley, who was younger than me.

John was a construction boss for one of the major construction companies in the area. Florence, "Big Floss" as my mother called her, ran a taxi. They lived off the intersection of High Street and Dodge Road.

Celebrations were meager by today's standards. I don't recall anything like shrimp, but we did have potato chips and different dips. Ma made clam dip with Philadelphia cream cheese and a can of minced clams. There was a limited selection of alcohol. Us kids drank soda.

I was talking with Jo-Anne DeBenedetti about how her family celebrated New Year's. Jo's father had three siblings who brought their kids. Jo had eight cousins, along with aunts and uncles.

The adults sat down at the dining table at 2 p.m. and began eating at 3 p.m. The kids sat in the kitchen. Dips, chips, olives, pickles, and other munchies were served first. The food kept coming throughout the day. Lasagna or other pasta was the main course. Sometimes a roast was served. Wine was readily available. Jo said they would sit at the table and eat into the evening. The salad was eaten last.

Jo told me they would have their New Year's Eve celebration at an aunt's house, stay up, watch Guy Lombardo and the ball drop, drive an hour home, and return the next day to do it all over again. Christmas and New Years were two-day holidays.

A few years ago Sue Kibbe invited me down for Seven Fishes one Christmas Eve. I had never heard of it. I took an Italian lady friend with me. I had never seen such a feast, nor was I ready for it. My Italian lady friend knew what to do and how to pace herself.

I ate the first course and was full. The food kept coming for hours, lobster, shrimp, and other shellfish. And lots of garlic! I was so sick after. Italians are accustomed to eating like this. It was so foreign to me. I watched in awe as everyone feasted. "They must have hollow legs" as my father used to say.

From Wikipedia
"Guy Lombardo's first New Year's Eve radio broadcast was in 1928; within a few years, they were heard live on the CBS Radio Network before midnight Eastern Time, then on the NBC Radio Network after midnight.

On Dec. 31, 1956, the Lombardo band did their first New Year's TV special on CBS; the program (and Lombardo's 20 subsequent New Year's Eve TV shows) included a live segment from Times Square. Although CBS carried most of the Lombardo New Year's specials, from 1965 to 1970, the special was syndicated live to individual TV stations instead of broadcast on a network. By the middle 1970s, the Lombardo TV show was facing competition, especially for younger viewers, from Dick Clark's New Year's Rockin' Eve, but Lombardo remained famous among viewers, especially older ones.

Even after Lombardo's death, the band's New Year's specials continued for two more years on CBS before Dick Clark's New Year's Rockin' Eve came into prominence. The Royal Canadians' recording of the traditional song "Auld Lang Syne" still plays as the first song of the New Year in Times Square."

I remember Guy Lombardo and Lawrence Welk. Ma says, "Arn, (Arnold) Guy Lombardo is going to be on Channel-8 this New Year's." "We've got to have a get together!" And so it was.

I can still see the adults toasting each other with a glass of cheap champagne, while singing Auld Lang Syne.

Dick Clark
American Bandstand was a popular television show when I was young. Dick Clark hosted the weekly show. Most of us kids watched it as teenagers.

On Dec. 31, 1972 Clark hosted the first "Dick Clark's New Year's Rockin' Eve." I remember staying up and watching Clark and the ball drop. This was much better than Guy Lombardo, I thought.

I stayed up this New Year's Eve till 1 a.m. I didn't watch the ball drop but instead watched reruns of Barney Miller.

This week's old saying is from Martin Scorsese: "If your mother cooks Italian food, why should you go to a restaurant?"

Senior Solutions turns 50

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. – What an exciting time of year. I hope that you have all been able to share cultural and religious traditions with those you love and care for most. As we enter 2023, we have the chance to look over our shoulders and observe what went well and where we can improve. Senior Solutions turns 50 It was 50 years ago that we were established under the Older Americans Act to coordinate and lead the efforts to serve older adults in southeastern Vermont. Our mission, to promote the well-being and dignity of older adults, has remained firm throughout the years. Programs and budgets have changed over time, but we remain steadfast in our belief that people should be able to age in the place of their choice with the support they need and the opportunity for meaningful relationships and active engagement in their community. As our staff has grown, under the guidance of dedicated board members, we have worked hard to embody our founding values. Some issues may feel overwhelming, but if we all work together toward solutions, we will prevail in the end. So, help us celebrate. We are planning fun events to mark our Golden Anniversary, including a "Senior Prom" this spring. Contests, games, special programs, and more will mark the months as we identify 50 ways that Senior Solutions can help us all age successfully. Let this be the beginning of the next 50 years of outstanding service. Terrific volunteer opportunity Speaking of service, we invite you to go to our website www.seniorsolutionsvt.org and apply to become a member of the Public Health AmeriCorps project here in southeastern Vermont. We can connect you with families all over the region who will benefit from this trained "army" of volunteers. A nice stipend, education credits, and mileage reimbursement, plus the knowledge that you are making a real impact on the lives of families who are caring for a loved one, makes this call to duty personally rewarding. Donate to support Meals on Wheels While you are on the web site www.seniorsolutionsvt.org, remember to sign up for our monthly newsletter that is distributed by email. Right now, you can make a big impact by hitting the donate button. Whatever was donated up to Dec. 31 was matched by a generous donor. We are earmarking these donations for our Meals on Wheels providers. Hopefully, the federal government will start making better decisions and increase their allocations to a program that benefits a very vulnerable segment of our population. However, we can't wait for that, and hope you will help us ensure that those who cannot provide for themselves don't go hungry. While we're talking about living on tight budgets in these inflationary times, don't forget that our HelpLine staff are ready and waiting to help you access all the government benefits you deserve.

Dear Editor,

In a letter to the editor on Dec. 21, 2022, Jon Hochschartner of Granby, Conn., the author of a number of books on animal-rights history, pleaded his case for "cultivated meat," i.e. meat created in a laboratory. He links "cultivated meat" to promoting animal welfare because it's "grown from livestock cells, without slaughter." Then he urges legislative action in Washington, because "it has the potential to do so much good." The "good" is that animals are not slaughtered, he says.

Here's another viewpoint: What is called "cultivated meat" cannot be defined as food. It's an amalgam of genetically engineered cells that may look like food. But these cells are conjured up with chemicals and derivatives of real food – such as citric acid, monosodium glutamate (aka natural flavors), dextrose, and a many other sugars and words you cannot pronounce. In the long run – let's say decades – this onslaught of unknowns causes serious harm to all body systems.

The human body requires sustenance from plants and animals grown in soil as well as in the sun and rain. There is simply no substitute.

Regarding animal welfare, here's what individuals can do: purchase humanely produced meat – free-range chickens, and pasture-grazed beef, lamb, and pork – from your local farmer, and be thankful for the animals' service to humans. Even in suburban Connecticut there are local farmers who'd love to sell you their produce.

For more information about real food, farming, and the healing arts, check out the Weston A. Price Foundation, its educational information, and local chapters at www.westonaprice.org.

Sincerely,
Betsy Thomason

Dear Editor,

Voters in Plymouth are going to be asked to give the selectboard another million dollars. We are also being asked to get rid of the right to vote for Town Clerk, Tax Collector, and Treasurer. Since we have no council, no manager, and no mayor, Plymouth's Selectboard wants to turn most of the few remaining elected positions into appointed ones.

Plymouth isn't having much luck in attracting candidates for these elected positions. Many of Plymouth's elected positions are filled with only one candidate on the ballot. The voters don't have a reliable Public Information

Program, and "information meetings" are held the day before elections with no printed material available before or during these meetings.

Our mail-in ballots do not come with envelopes that allow secret ballots. The return envelopes must be opened to identify the voter on required sign-in sheets. This is an open book ballot system.

There are too many reasons not to incur more debt for voters. Senator Leahy will no longer represent Vermont in Washington, and the federal dollars that have been generously flowing into Vermont will dry up within a year.

My mortgage escrow has just risen by $50 a month. Homeowners and renters can expect a rising cost of living. Last week, Bloomberg TV shared its predictions that America's financial outlook in 2023 doesn't look good. Home values are falling and interest rates are rising. 2022's last week showed a downward trend in the market.

I encourage Plymouth's voters to require its selectboard to use the money that it has available to make the improvements that it can afford, and not put its residents in more debt.

Sincerely,
Nancy Kessler

Feurzeig's Play Every Town in Ludlow next —

LUDLOW, Vt. — “Like so much of our everyday life, routine jet-plane touring is unsustainable—which means something, it’s literally not possible to keep doing. I want to model a performance culture that doesn’t require hopping on a plane and flying all over the world.”

Last May, composer-pianist David Feurzeig embarked on “Play Every Town: 252 free concerts” in each of Vermont’s 252 towns to combat climate change through the power of community and music. With this project David will become the first musician to perform in every Vermont municipality. He is traveling in his solar-charged electric vehicle throughout the state, offering free concerts to bring attention to the interrelated issues of climate and community, while bringing the joy of music to his audiences.

“I want to support Vermont’s local communities with live performance in village centers and down-towns, while fulfilling UVM’s mission to serve as a resource for the whole state.”

Feurzeig, a professor of music at UVM since 2008, specializes in genre-defying recitals that bring together music of an astonishing variety of styles, from ancient and classical to jazz, avant-garde, and popular traditions. These striking juxtapositions, peppered with informative and humorous commentary, create eye- and ear-opening programs that will change how you hear all kinds of music.

Each program includes local customization. At this concert, on Sunday, Jan. 15 at 2 p.m. at the United Church of Ludlow, 48 Pleasant St., Ludlow, tenor George Thomson will sing. The program will also include “Happy Birthday Martin,” Feurzeig’s tribute to Martin Luther King, born this day in 1929, and other solo piano works from classics and ragtime to modern works.

Feurzeig finds his approach attracts new audiences to so-called “classical” concerts and brings new insight to existing fans. “Classical music culture puts the ‘Great Composers’ on an almost religious pedestal. Once this was an indication of the audience’s love and respect, but it distances people from the music. It turns away new listeners, who feel like they’re in a stuffy museum instead of a live concert. Sure, the music can be serious, but there’s no reason anyone should feel intimidated. And if I don’t get a laugh from the audience in the first two minutes, I get worried!”

Follow David on his journey on Instagram, find up-to-date events for your town via Facebook, or visit the website at www.PlayEveryTown.com.

“Not just for stars, but in academia as well there are pressures on musicians to travel far and wide, to maintain an international presence. We take this and a thousand similar practices for granted – but they’re simply not compatible with a livable world.”

Memoir workshops with Pam Bernard —

WALPOLE, N.H. — New sessions of this popular eight-week workshop are beginning the week of Jan. 16. Days and times vary from session to session. As well, new daylong workshops begin Jan. 7 and will continue on intermittent Saturdays. All workshops are hybrid so that writers who are not local can join in.

Crucial issues of craft are explored in these workshops, such as narrative stance and tone, while fresh work is generated each week from prompts.

mately honor their lives. “One need not be working on a full-length memoir,” Bernard says. “We draft short narratives from prompts, which may or may not be woven together at some future time. As material accumulates, you begin to understand the past that emerges, sometimes unbidden, and make of it a story that conveys your deepest intentions.”

“Pam’s workshop is the highlight of my week,” Patti Whalen, of Westminister, Vt., a long-time participant, says. “Pam leads each session with skill and warmth, bringing the process of memoir writing alive with support and creativity.”

Katherine Clarke, Professor Emeritus, Antioch University New England, another long-time participant, says: “Pam’s special gift is listening for the authentic voice of a writer to emerge. Her groups are designed to welcome and nourish this voice. When I began to write from my life, she heard me before I did.”

“Pam has a powerful way of helping participants tease out and uncover emotional truths in the telling of our stories,” says Yvette Yeager, of Keene, N.H. “Her passion is contagious. I have tremendous admiration and respect for who Pam is and all that she has to offer. She’s a gift to this area and a warm, funny, lovely human being.”

Pam Bernard, writer, painter, teacher, and writing mentor is the author of four books, the most recent a verse novel titled “Esther.” She received her MFA in Creative Writing from Warren Wilson College Program for Writers and BA from Harvard University. Her awards include fellowships from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Massachusetts Cultural Council. “Nimrod,” “Cimarron Review,” and “Valparaiso,” are among the many literary works that have published her work.
