Ludlow hears recovery updates, talks reappraisal

BY NICK GIBERTI

The Vermont Journal

LUDLOW, Vt. – The Ludlow Selectboard met Monday, Jan. 8, for their regular monthly meeting.

As he has since July's flood, town manager Brendan McNamara updated the board on the town's progress working with FEMA to recover money spent on repairs and reconstruction. According to McNamara, Ludlow has spent nearly $1.9 million to date on flood recovery, a number which does not include repairs to the town's heavily-damaged wastewater plant. Despite assuring the board that Ludlow was on track to recover the money it is owed, McNamara expressed some frustration with the federal agency's lack of consistency. "We are on our fourth project manager from FEMA since the event," he informed the board, noting that each change of project manager slows the process considerably as the new project manager is brought up to speed. However, McNamara expressed his belief that the town would see its full 75% FEMA reimbursement for all relevant expenditures. The State of Vermont is also contributing 12.5% to reimbursement, leaving Ludlow footing the bill for the remaining 12.5%.

The board also began discussions of an upcoming town reappraisal, which would happen in 2026. Ryan Silvestri of the Ludlow Planning Commission spoke to the board, saying that this would most likely be a "statistical appraisal," in which town records and construction and renovation data are used in place of active inspection of all parcels in town. This would, Silvestri said, necessitate 10% of properties or "about 360 parcels" to undergo full inspections, to assess whether the town's records were accurate, though he was confident that they were.

Ludlow has seen significant appreciation of property values since the last appraisal in 2021, and Silvestri explained to the board that, as a result, the state's calculation of Ludlow's share of the education tax had increased. The problem, as Silvestri explained, is that, "If we're underassessing properties versus what they're selling for, [the state] is going to make sure they get everything [they are owed]." This means the increased cost is distributed evenly among all Ludlow residents, rather than being apportioned based on property values, "so that's where it really becomes inequitable," Silvestri said.

Moving on, the board then heard updates from McNamara about the repairs to several waterways and dams throughout town through the Emergency Watershed Program. Specifically, Jewell Brook Dam sites 3 and 5 have recently generated concern due to visible damage to their spillways. McNamara said that Ludlow has been approved for 75% funding through the USDA to make repairs to those dams' spillways, as well as to an area of the Black River abutting the back of the fire station, and two locations along Route 100 South where the river is "jeopardizing land that will ultimately jeopardize town infrastructure." McNamara also explained that he is investigating whether all or part of the remaining 25% of the cost can be funded through FEMA reimbursement or state programs, though this remains unclear. He expected work on the repairs to begin in the spring, after project engineering has been completed and the project has gone out to bid.

The Ludlow Selectboard's next meeting will be a special meeting held Jan. 24, to determine what, if any, action to take on the long-discussed possibility of a short-term rental registry.

Cavendish talks ARPA and school funding

BY LORIEN STRANGE

The Vermont Journal

CAVENDISH, Vt. – At their Jan. 8 meeting, the Cavendish Selectboard dissolved the town's American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) committee, approved the use of the Australian ballot system for this year's Town Meeting, and decided to create a committee to finish the Local Hazard Mitigation Plan. They also authorized town manager Rick Chambers to waive certain regulations on the sale of the Academy Building if given the town attorney's approval.

Before its dissolution later in the meeting, the ARPA committee gave the selectboard its recommendations for how to spend the remaining money from the $421,000 Cavendish received. These recommendations were based on questionnaires distributed throughout the town and individual applications by projects for funding. In total, the committee approved 11 applications for funding, which will not exceed Cavendish's ARPA allotment if the list is approved by the selectboard.

The selectboard also heard from the Cavendish representatives of the Green Mountain Unified School District (GMUSD) about a potential budget change. Representative Lisa Sanders said that the state is changing how it counts pupils to try to prioritize funding for districts with more higher-needs students. According to this new formula, GMUSD would qualify to receive more funding for special education, but only if the district demonstrates the need for this funding by raising its budget. Sanders said that raising the budget by up to 10% would likely only require a 4.1% property tax increase (beyond 10% the state would need to conduct a more thorough examination of the GMUSD budget). This would be in addition to the statewide forecasted increase of 18.5% in property tax rates driven by state spending on education. Sanders said that the Cavendish representatives are in favor of raising the budget to receive these funds, and would work to ensure that they were spent on special education.

The selectboard approved voting by Australian ballot for this year, but changing to Australian ballot permanently would require a Town Meeting vote. The selectboard agreed to add such a vote to the Town Meeting warning. If the town voted against this change, regular floor voting would resume next year. In safety news, Chambers proposed creating refrigerator magnets with town emergency information, including the location of the town shelter. He presented a draft of a design for the magnets, adding that he might change some of the information on it to minimize confusion. The selectboard authorized Chambers to do this, and to print the magnets.

Currently the town office has to call VT Alerts to add updates on town emergencies. However, if Chambers, the town safety coordinator, and the fire chiefs go through a 90-minute training program, they could start posting updates to the software themselves. They are waiting until this training becomes available remotely rather than in-person.

Chambers requested that photos of damage from this summer's floods be texted to 802-738-6445. This will help the town to get FEMA aid.

The selectboard observed a moment of silence for Roger Sheehan, who recently passed away.

The Cavendish Selectboard has a budget meeting on Jan. 18. Their normal meetings are held on the second Monday of each month, at 6:30 p.m., at the town office.

Ludlow and Mount Holly school upgrades

MOUNT HOLLY, Vt. – On Monday, Jan. 8, Eric Lafayette, an engineer with Energy Efficient Investments Inc., presented the results of the firm's yearlong examination of the Ludlow and Mount Holly school buildings and their recommendations at a public forum in Mount Holly. Members of the public offered their opinions and suggestions.

Lafayette emphasized that some components of both schools are old and need replacement. No major upgrades have been done at either school for more than 20 years. The Ludlow roof is leaking and has little insulation, with an R-value of 2.5 compared with code of R-40. The oil boilers are 50 years old, in need of constant repairs, and terribly inefficient. Many aspects of the buildings do not meet current codes. In addition, the Mount Holly School is crowded, with the nurse's office on the stage separated from the gym only by a curtain; speech, occupational, and physical therapy in the cafeteria; and music instruction in the gym.

The major elements of his proposal include replacing the oil boilers at both schools with efficient wood pellet boilers with liquid propane backup, and ventilation systems with electronic controls; replacing the Ludlow roof and increasing the insulation from R-2.5 to R-40; building a 2,000 square foot addition behind the Mount Holly School with a nurse's office, space for special education, and a music room; and enhancing security by rebuilding the schools' entrances and vestibules to make them secure and visible from the office, replacing doors and windows, upgrading fire alarms, and other improvements to comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act and other code issues.

The estimated cost of the proposals is $9,268,045. Of that amount, $3.6 million is for replacing the boilers, ventilation systems, controls, and associated electrical upgrades at the two schools. Replacing Ludlow's roof will cost $1.1 million. The Mount Holly addition will cost $1.4 million. The remaining $3.1 million will include fire alarms, secured entrances, asbestos abatement, ADA and code work, LED lighting, siding, and windows. The work in Ludlow would cost $5.1 million, while Mount Holly would cost $4.2 million. The work would be paid with a 20-year bond.

Following his report, members of the public offered comments and suggestions. Everyone who spoke supported replacing the old oil boilers, replacing the Ludlow roof, and the actions to enhance security and bring the buildings up to code.

Some questioned the proposal for the 2,000 square foot addition in Mount Holly, asking whether it needs to be that big and whether there are alternative ways to give the nurse a proper office and provide appropriate space for speech, hearing, and occupational and physical therapy instruction. Mount Holly School Principal Craig Hutt Vater pointed out that they had already taken closets and converted them to instruction spaces, and that there was no other space available. Others spoke of the importance of having appropriate space for these activities, saying that 2,000 square feet is not unreasonable for a nurse's office, a therapy room, three small offices for individual instruction, and a music room.

One sixth grade student made an eloquent appeal for support to give students better spaces for their work. Some residents highlighted that Mount Holly and Ludlow are in competition for young families, and that the quality of our schools is often an important factor in their decisions about where to live. Administrators said that it can be difficult to hire qualified professionals, and that potential employees consider the condition of school facilities in making their decisions about where to work.

On Jan. 17, the Ludlow-Mount Holly Unified Union School District will consider adopting a warrant to ask voters to approve this bond in March. Additional public meetings will be held in the coming months, to offer opportunities for residents to have their questions answered and offer suggestions regarding the work. If the voters approve, then work will begin this summer and expect to be completed in the summer of 2025.

Calvin Coolidge

BY RON PATCH

802-374-0119
ronpatch27@gmail.com

The photo with this article is a real photo postcard from Danny Clemons. Danny and I spent a year going through a collection of thousands of Vermont postcards.

While Danny and I share common collecting interests, we each buy cards the other doesn't. Danny collects Plymouth and Calvin Coolidge cards, which leads us to this article. Danny had not seen this card for sale before.

The postcard

In the left foreground in white letters, "Erecting phone over which President Coolidge gave his first official message to Washington Aug 3-1923." This date is important.

The day before, Aug. 2, 1923, President Harding died of a heart attack in San Francisco. Vice President Coolidge was in Plymouth. Coolidge had neither electricity nor telephone. A telegraph was sent to Ludlow announcing Harding's death, and that Coolidge was now president. A messenger was sent to Plymouth to inform Coolidge. There was no other way. The next day, a phone was installed in the Coolidge home. A real rush job!

At right is a new car. On the driver's door is a round logo for the telephone company. This is the company car. Standing center is a man holding a coil of telephone wire. A man can be seen on the pole at left. Another man stands at the base of the pole at right.

On the reverse of the card these men are identified. Charles Sawyer is holding the wire, Ed Blakley is on the pole, John Mcnamera stands at right of the pole. The 1923 Vermont license plate is number 1671.

Hugh and Bunni Putnam

of the Springfield Art and Historical Society helped with this article. Bunni found the following news article.

"Vermont Tribune, August 10, 1923

Handicapped by Lack of Facilities

An almost total lack of telephone facilities at Plymouth had so handicapped Coolidge, the press and other officials in keeping in communication with the world, shut out by hills from sleepy little Plymouth, that an emergency call had been sent to Rutland and W. T. Durfee, superintendent of the plant of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company, had hastened a gang of men to the village.

By 3:30 o'clock a telephone had been installed in the Coolidge home, wires having been tapped onto the main trunk line 500 or 600 feet away, a telegraph instrument had been installed in the store across the street for the use of the Associated Press and the United Press, and another telephone had been placed on a pole by the wayside for the use of the two syndicates."

Another card Danny has is Coolidge with Henry Ford, Thomas Edison, Harvey Firestone, and others. This photo was taken at the Coolidge home in 1924. Bunni also found a news article regarding this card.

Henry Ford developed the Henry Ford Museum in an attempt to collect and preserve historical artifacts. In this card Coolidge is signing the bottom of a wooden bucket for Ford. Was it for the Ford Museum?

The second article

"Plymouth, Aug. 19 - President Coolidge was host today to Henry Ford, Thomas Edison, and Harvey Firestone..."

Visit on the porch

The three tourists made a short visit on the porch, during which the President presented Mr. Ford with a bucket which his forefathers used on their trips to Plymouth's only establishment, a cheese factory..."

This week's old saying: "A man leaves when he has no reason to stay."

Abenaki tribal recognition celebration

WESTMINSTER WEST, Vt. - Living Earth Action Group and the Atowi Project are thrilled to announce a captivating presentation that is set to shed light on the complex dynamics at play among the Abenaki First Nations Grand Council in Quebec, Canada, and the four Vermont state-recognized Abenaki bands. With the recent recognition of all four Vermont tribes, this event couldn't come at a more significant time.

In 2012, a historic moment occurred when then Vermont Governor Peter Shumlin signed two bills officially recognizing the Koasek and Mississquoi Abenaki tribes. These two bands joined the Nulhegan Abenaki and Elnu Abenaki, marking the formal recognition of all four tribes in Vermont. This achievement was the result of a 36-year-long struggle by these tribes to reclaim their Abenaki identity, a victory that brought joy and validation to their communities.

Fast forward to 2024, and Living Earth Action Group and Atowi Project are hosting an enlightening presentation by Brattleboro/Wantastegok resident and Atowi Project co-director Rich Holschuh, along with other potential guests. This presentation is scheduled for Sunday, Jan. 21, at 6:30 p.m., at the Congregational Church of Westminster

West.

Recently, prominent media outlets like UVM, Vermont Public, and VT Digger have provided platforms for the First Nations Abenaki to question the standing of the Vermont Abenaki. To those unfamiliar with the deep-seated place-based Abenaki histories and cultures, and the complex native-settler politics that persist to this day, these apparent disputes may appear puzzling or confusing.

During this thought-provoking presentation, attendees will have the opportunity to delve into questions such as what is being said, and by whom? What is the context surrounding these discussions? What might be the underlying purpose behind these dialogues? Are there root causes of these differences, and how might they be addressed or engaged?

Living Earth Action Group and the Atowi Project encourages everyone, regardless of their familiarity with the subject, to join the discussion, learn more about the Abenaki culture, and gain a deeper understanding of the ongoing dynamics within the Abenaki community.

For more information about the event, please contact Guy Payne at gpaynevt@gmail.com, or visit www.livingearthaction.net or www.atowi.org.

Vermont native publishes "War Tears"

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. - Following many years of research, John Swanson has published a new historical fiction novel dealing with a young Springfield boy's journey into the Civil War, entitled "War Tears: A Journey from Vermont to Gettysburg and Related Stories."

The book details how a 16-year-old farming boy from Springfield, Vt. joins the state regiments, initially as a fifer, later as a foot soldier, and the journey from being an innocent young boy to a veteran soldier who faces the enemy at Gettysburg. It details the conditions of military life then, along with the medical care, or lack of it, the stubborn resistance of the Confederate forces he faced, and the coming of age of a man.

The author spent many years doing research on Civil War history at the Gettysburg Civil War Institute of Gettysburg College, enabling him to describe with accuracy the events that the Vermont regiments participated in during this conflict. He also researched the Confederacy's military involvement, which is plainly clear in the chapters dealing with the historic Gettysburg battle.

While romance is not the primary focus of this opus, Swanson does illustrate how the young lad became involved with a neighboring girl, and how the romance was carried out while the boy was on the battlefield.

Using a flashback technique, "War Tears" outlines how a Civil War veteran recalls his experiences during the war, the effect the war had on the family, and its subsequent impact on future generations.

"War Tears" also contains several short stories related to both the war and its significance to future generations. One story relates how a Union soldier spent time with a Confederate soldier on guard duty, illustrating the common values shared by both sides.

Swanson, born in Springfield, currently living in The Gables in Rutland, Vt., was a social studies teacher at Riverside Middle School in Springfield before retiring. He currently is involved in writing at The Gables. Information on both the book and the author may be obtained by calling 802-855-8883. The book may be downloaded from Amazon's Kindle Store.

Vermont State Representative

Dear Editor,

On Jan. 3, at 10 a.m., the Vermont Legislature opened its 2024 legislative session. As it is the second half of a two-year biennium, we spend far less time on the formalities, pomp, and circumstance of a new biennium. And, with committees and leadership in place, we got right to work. Which is good, as we have a huge amount on our plate.

Every legislator has their own priorities shaped by the communities they represent, their committee work, and their individual passions. And people work on these during the session. However, as we head into this session, I would say that our collective priorities coalesce around four or five major themes which won't surprise you. They are flood recovery and additional disaster preparedness, housing, climate change mitigation and resilience, community health, and public safety. My job as majority leader in the Vermont Senate is to help create agreement to enable passage of legislation addressing these priorities.

In many ways the July flooding has both set and reinforced a number of our top priorities for this session. The impacts, both financial and physical, of the flooding of 2023 will be huge drivers in our budget and policy work. The requirement to set aside state dollars to match the federal aid to Vermont will squeeze many other needs already articulated, and the efforts to mitigate future flooding will influence our climate policy, in addition to our land planning, housing, and zoning work.

A top priority for the legislature is to address flood recovery and how we can continue to improve on our disaster preparedness. The good news is that many of the investments we made in the aftermath of Tropical Storm Irene made a significant difference to this year's flooding impact. The flood plains created in Brattleboro and the work in Waterbury saved their downtowns from greater damage this year. The bad news and major financial challenge for Vermont is that the costs of the flooding in 2023 to public and private infrastructure, property, and business are almost double those of Irene: $239 million after Irene, and to date over $500 million for the floods in 2023. Vermont is required to match 25% of our federal aid from state dollars – which will be an enormous challenge as we also work to finance our other urgent needs. Our work this session will be to continue to help Vermont rebuild and recover, and to enhance our future disaster preparedness.

Our housing crisis is being felt by many of us in one way or another. Whether you are a business trying to find a home for a new employee, or a young person trying to find an affordable starter home or rental, or a seasonal worker trying to find housing – it's a brutal housing market. Before the flooding of 2023, we were experiencing a less than 1% vacancy rate here in the Upper Valley. The loss of housing due to the flooding has further exacerbated our housing and homelessness crisis, especially for low- and moderate-income Vermonters. All of us understand the need to build more housing for a wide range of needs: affordable, mixed income, downsizing, and market value housing. And, with inflation, the loss in workforce, the loss of rental units to short-term rentals, and the loss of full-time residential housing to seasonal ownership have resulted in a housing shortage which is a challenge to fix in the short term. While incomes have risen, so have rents and the cost of houses. A top priority for the legislature this session will be to continue our work reducing barriers to building affordable housing, preventing the trauma and challenges which drive people into homelessness, and incentivizing resilient housing in our downtowns and village centers.

Preventing further devastation to Vermont by both mitigating the impacts of future weather disasters and reducing climate change by reining in our use of fossil fuels is another top priority. We need to make Vermont more resilient, and to reduce our contributions to what is causing these disasters – global warming. Much of our work will be focused on this dual challenge – addressing climate risks and rebuilding with a resilient value – smarter and stronger. With a record number of opioid overdose deaths and an increase in gun violence and homicides in Vermont, community health and public safety are critically important priorities for us to address. In addition, we face ongoing mental health needs in our schools and communities, educational equity in school policy and funding, and the need to support Vermonters' well-being. Investing more effectively in prevention (from trauma to homelessness) seems a critically important priority now.

Session 2024 promises to be stimulating, challenging, and productive.

I appreciate hearing from you. I can be reached by email at aclarkson@leg.state.vt.us, or by phone at the Statehouse Tuesday-Friday at 802-828-2228, or at home Saturday-Monday at 802-457-4627. Jean L. Chatfield, 2023

KEENE, N.H. – Jean Louise Chatfield, 78, formerly of Seymour, Conn., and Chester, Vt., passed away in Keene, N.H., on Dec. 28, 2023, after recent age-related health setbacks. She had been a resident at Covenant Living retirement community in Keene since 2019, and was just one month shy of her 79th birthday.

Jean was raised in Seymour, Conn., and spent summers in Weston, Vt., with her family. After graduating from Seymour High School in 1962, she went on to Lake Erie College in Ohio, where she received a degree in education and enjoyed perfecting her musical skills, taking lessons on the college organ.

Following graduation in 1966, she returned to Seymour to teach high school math for three years, and then moved to the family home in Weston after securing a teaching position in Springfield, Vt. While in Weston, she enjoyed riding and caring for her horses, Tasha and baby Tanya. She also served as organist for Weston's Old Parish Church, and in later years played for several churches and weddings in southern Vermont.

In 1987 the family home in Weston was sold to the owners of the Vermont Country Store, and Jean relocated to Chester to be closer to work and to shorten the driving distance in the snowy winters. She made many friends in Chester, where she retired from teaching after 30 years.

Jean then spent several years working for the Vermont Country Store in Weston, and volunteered annually as an usher at the Weston Playhouse summer theater, where she donated many hours of her time in coordinating the schedule of ushers for the weekly performances.

Jean and her mother both enjoyed quilting, and they attended summer classes together at the Fletcher Farm School for the Arts and Crafts in Ludlow. Jean joined local quilting groups and continued to develop her skills, learning new techniques in a variety of classes. Always a giving person, she shared many of her beautiful quilts and projects as presents for friends.

Leaving her home in Chester in 2019 when it became harder to maintain, especially in winter, Jean moved to a retirement community in Keene, N.H., where she continued her quilting, sharing her expertise with others and gifting many of the beautiful products of her skills.

Jean is survived by her two sisters Carol Ann Chatfield also of Keene, and Betty Chatfield Brosius of Downingtown, Pa.; and sisters-in-law Marcia Chatfield of Hingham, Mass., and Judy Chatfield of Southington, Conn. She is also survived by five nieces and their families. She was predeceased by her parents Henry Treat Chatfield and Beryl Burmaster Chatfield of Seymour, and two half-brothers George Allan Chatfield of Seymour, and Henry Oliver Chatfield of Bethany, Conn.

Sisters Carol and Betty would like to thank the residents and friends of Covenant Living in Keene for their help and assistance in finding uses for Jean's vast supply of quilting materials and supplies, which have been donated to quilting and sewing groups who will carry on the gifting of handmade products made with love for seniors, children, and others.

A private ceremony for burial of the ashes will be held for the family at the Pines Bridge Cemetery in Beacon Falls, Conn., in the spring.

Gary E. Pike, 2024

MOUNT HOLLY, Vt. – Gary E. Pike, 75, of Mount Holly, passed away Jan. 8, at the Vermont Veterans Home, with his wife and daughter at his side.

Gary was born in Springfield to Donald and Emma (Clokey) Pike. He grew up and attended school in Ludlow, completing his final year and graduating from Springfield High School in 1966.

Gary served four years – or "364 days, but I didn't keep count," as he was fond of saying – in the U.S. Air Force as a jet engine mechanic, traveling to several foreign countries including a TDY assignment at Cam Ranh Bay, Vietnam.

On July 21, 1973, he married Carol Ann Hastings in Ludlow. Gary worked at several area businesses, including machine shops at GE and Fellows Gear Shaper. He obtained his CDL and drove for Idlenot, Seward Dairy, HA Eddy/Irving, and Ethier Trucking, among others. He also owned his own dump truck, and was self-employed. Gary was a previous member of both the Ludlow and Mount Holly Fire Departments, and a past president and member of the Killington Sports Car Club. He enjoyed working on his own race cars to drive in Hillclimbs at several Vermont mountains. Gary joined softball, bowling, and golf teams in earlier years. He also enjoyed getting together with friends and family to play cards, and was especially fond of trips to his grandfather's farm, and to his brother's home in Maine for deer hunting season.

Gary is survived by his wife, his daughter Jessica Pike (Mark Revesz), his sister Sharon (Warren) Raymond, brother Robert (Cheryl) Pike, grandsons Myles and Marshall Revesz, brother-in-law Larry Rogers, and several nieces, nephews, and cousins. He was predeceased by his parents, nephew Jason Raymond, and sister-in-law Sue Rogers.

The family would like to thank the staff at the Vermont Veterans Home for the compassionate care they showed to Gary and his family. A Celebration of his Life will be held in the spring.

Gloria A. Leven, 2024

CAVENDISH, Vt. – It is with heavy hearts that we share that Gloria Ann Leven, the radiant and oh-so-beloved human that she was, passed peacefully on New Years Day.

She loved flowers, art, babies, books, the theater, sunshine, black coffee, meeting new people, her home, her family, her community – she loved her life, all 100 years of it, and she found joy even in mundanity and simplicity. To know Gloria was to know joyfulness, and right up until the end she remained her sunny self. She will be missed fiercely.

Gloria was predeceased by her beloved husband Seymour and son Thomas. She is survived by brother Burt and wife Joan, sons Robert and Andrew, their wives Kim and Mary, granddaughter Jade and partner Justin, and great-grandsons Jasper and Oliver.

A Celebration of her Life will be held at a later date, with details to come.

Robert J. Smith, 1926-2024

LUDLOW, Vt. – Robert J. "Bob" Smith, 97, died peacefully in his Myrtle Beach home on Jan. 3, 2024, with his son John and John's wife Liz, as well as a close family friend by his side. He was born April 29, 1926, at his aunt's home in Ludlow, Vt., and attended Black River Academy until it closed, and graduated from Black River High School in 1942.

Bob had an incredible and interesting life. In the 1940s he was in the Air Force, stationed at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, when the war ended. After returning home he met his first wife Phyllis Pelkey, and they had two children Barbara and John Smith. Bob bulldozed trails at what would become Okemo Ski Area, where he later became a ski instructor and eventually the mountain manager. He left Okemo to become the New England dealer for Tucker Sno-Cats. During this time he also bought an airplane, built an airstrip, and then got his pilots license.

In 1978, he retired, and with his second wife Jean Brough, they traveled back and forth between Vermont, Colorado, and South Carolina. After extensive traveling, in his late 70s he went back to logging on his land, as well as selling firewood and rough-cut lumber that he milled on his property. This was his passion, along with mowing, and he did this until he was 97, when the numerous accidents he had in the woods and his age finally caught up to him.

Bob loved sports, most of which he began later in life. He began skiing in his 20s; took up tennis at 47; and snow mobiling, horseback riding, and golf in his 60s. He was an avid hunter, and at one time or another shot deer, bear, elk, moose, caribou, and wild boar all over the country.

Bob is predeceased by his first wife Phyllis and brother Bill, Jack Nash husband of Barbara Nash, and John's first wife Lynn. Bob is survived by his wife Jean; his daughter Barbara Nash and her daughter Laura; his son John and his wife Liz; John's two children Jeremy Smith and wife Joelle, and Zach Smith and wife Amy; great-grandchildren Eliana, Dylan, Maxwell, and Otto; stepchildren Randy Benson and wife Kitty, Marty Benson and wife Roxi, and SueAnne Starr; along with four step-grandchildren.

In lieu of flowers, contributions can be made to the Alzheimer's Association. A Celebration of Life will take place in Ludlow, Vt., in the spring. May he rest in peace.

Scammers and the internet of things

REGION – My wife and I were making our way to the exit of a “warehouse club” store when she came to a stop, her voice was one of “puzzlement.” Her cell phone received a message from a refrigerator displayed near the store exit asking if she forgot to purchase milk or eggs. That was our first public encounter with the internet of things (IOT). According to the consulting firm McKinsey and Company, IOT “describes physical objects embedded with sensors and actuators that communicate with computing systems via wired or wireless networks – allowing the physical world to be digitally monitored or even controlled.” Simply put, IOT is all that “smart” stuff we have that is in some way connected to the internet: cameras, phones, watches, health monitors, televisions, appliances, vehicles, and much more. By the end of 2023, there were over 14 billion IOT devices in use, and the number will likely triple by the end of this decade.

The technology goes beyond convenience, and is rapidly becoming a necessity. Home monitoring, heart or diabetic monitoring, functionality of appliances, and communications are all part of the IOT world. But with the benefits come many risks, similar to the risks faced by computer and tablet users posed by hackers, but there is a major difference: computers, tablets, and smart phones are designed and constantly updated with security in mind. Most IOT devices are not, and generally incapable of updating the operating software.

The risks also vary by device, and include the following: accessing home cameras, climate control, lighting, appliances, garage door, and more; tracking and disabling vehicles; and accessing critical medical systems such as a pacemaker.

If you maintain a home Wi-Fi network, one of the most critical and vulnerable devices that is internet-connected is your router. It is an almost invisible piece of internet life with which all you need to do is, in the words of a television advertisement, “set it and forget it!” It is critical because it connects all wireless devices to the outside world. It is vulnerable for that reason, and because older routers were not well-designed to cope with hackers. It is the ultimate plug-and-play device, and many users do not alter the default password setting. As a criminal hacker, I know the router password, I can access any connected device on the network: TV, camera, computer, coffee maker, thermostat.

Protecting yourself from hackers. Begin with your Wi-Fi router. Purchase a replacement if it is more than five years old. Change the device password regularly, regardless of if it is a default password or one you created.

Don't enable an internet connection unless it is necessary for the device to function. For example, most flat-screen televisions allow you to connect directly with the manufacturer via the internet. While the connection allows you to receive information and troubleshoot any problems, it allows the manufacturer to collect data on your viewing habits and more.

Use multi-factor authentication (MFA) if allowed by the device. With MFA, access to the device requires an additional step, often involving email or text messaging.

Conduct personal research to discover what personal information is collected by your service provider or the device manufacturer, and what is done with that information. Many providers collect personal information for marketing products and services, or to create a separate income stream by selling your data.

Finally, don't connect to public Wi-Fi networks with portable devices. When possible, use a secure channel by creating a personal hotspot on your cellular phone.

If you have questions or comments, email egreenblott@aarp.org. Elliott Greenblott is a retired educator and coordinator of the AARP Vermont Fraud Watch Network. He hosts a CATV program, “Mr. Scammer,” distributed by GNAT-TV in Sunderland, Vt., www.gnat-tv.org.

OLLI spring programs

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. – Osher Lifelong Learning Institute (OLLI) is pleased to announce its spring 2024 programs. Sponsored by the University of Vermont (UVM), OLLI is run by local volunteer members, and is geared mainly towards seniors who are 50 years of age and older who enjoy learning for the fun of it.

The programs are held Tuesday afternoons at 2 p.m., and last about an hour and a half, at the Nolin Murray Center on Pleasant Street, next to St. Mary's Catholic Church in Springfield, Vt.

Following is the listing of programs for the spring 2024 semester.

On Feb. 27, Ian Clark, steam train enthusiast and professional photographer, will present "Under Steam." We will view his extensive photographic collection of steam locomotives in museums, and those used for excursions, taken on his travels across the United States.

On March 12, Mike Clough, director of Southern Vermont Natural History Museum, will present "Vermont Raptors," cosponsored by the Ascutney Mountain Audubon Society. Using rehabilitated, non-releasable live hawks, owls, and falcons, we will learn the specific amazing adaptations of these magnificent birds of prey.

On March 26, Amanda Gustin of the Vermont Historical Society will present "Justin Morgan's Horse: Making an American Myth." All Morgan horses today trace their lineage back to a single horse: a mystery stallion named Figure, owned by singing teacher Justin Morgan in the late 18th century. We'll explore this fascinating story, and how it is tied up with the idea of Vermont identity.

On April 9, John Snell, Montpelier Tree Board director, will present "So Many Reasons to Love Trees," cosponsored by the Springfield Garden Club. We'll enjoy photographs of trees while looking closely at many of the things we don't always pay attention to – from bark and leaves to shade and shapes, from seeds and fruits to wood and carbon dioxide.

On April 23, author, inspirational speaker, and mentalist Dr. Steve Taubman will present "Mind Magic." We'll be treated to a healthy dose of psychology and theater, drawing on Dr. Taubman's laser-sharp observational skills, and his refined sense of the absurd, as he combines elements of comedy and mindreading, all while he delivers timeless wisdom about leadership, resilience, and success.

On May 7, professor

Wolfgang Mieder, University of Vermont German and Proverb professor emeritus, will present "Freedom is Indivisible: John F. Kennedy's Reliance on Proverbs." Enjoy professor Mieder weaving the story of how President John F. Kennedy effectively used Biblical and folk proverbs to rhetorical effect in his speeches.

Thanks go out to our local benefactor, Barbara Sanderson.

Lonnie Holley and Mourning [A] BLKstar

PUTNEY, Vt. – Next Stage Arts presents improvisational artist and musician Lonnie Holley, in performance with Afrofuturist collective Mourning [A] BLKstar at Next Stage on Friday, Jan. 19, at 7:30 p.m.

"Lonnie's work over the past few decades has been a shining example of an outsider artist's work becoming so meaningful that the establishment has to take notice," says Keith Marks, executive director of Next Stage. "The pairing of Lonnie's work backed by Mourning [A] BLKstar is one of those once-in-a-lifetime opportunities - Afrofuturism at its best."

Since 1979, Lonnie Holley has devoted his life to the practice of improvisational creativity. His art and music, born out of struggle, hardship, but perhaps more importantly, out of furious curiosity and biological necessity, has manifested itself in drawing, painting, sculpture, photography, performance, music, and filmmaking. Holley's sculptures are constructed from found materials in the oldest tradition of African American sculpture. Objects, already imbued with cultural and artistic metaphor, are combined into narrative sculptures that commemorate places, people, and events. His work is now in collections of major museums throughout the world – The Museums of Fine Arts in San Francisco, The Metropolitan Museum of Art, The Philadelphia Museum of Art, The Smithsonian American Art Museum, The National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., and many others – on permanent display in the United Nations, and has been displayed in the White House Rose Garden.

Holley did not start making and performing music in a studio, nor does his creative process mirror that of the typical musician. His music and lyrics are improvised on the spot, and morph and evolve with every event, concert, and recording. In Holley's original art environment, he would construct and deconstruct his visual works, repurposing their elements for new pieces. This often led to the transfer of individual narratives into the new work, creating a cumulative composite image that has depth and purpose beyond its original singular meaning. The layers of sound in Holley's music, likewise, are the result of decades of evolving experimentation.

A multi-generational, gender, and genre non-conforming amalgam of Black culture, Mourning [A] BLKstar is dedicated to sharing stories and songs of America's unfolding apocalypse. Their music melds live instrumentation with hip-hop production, creating sonic frequencies that illuminate the African diaspora. Founded in Cleveland, the U.S.-based Afrofuturist collective continues touring their music globally across Europe and the U.S., playing festivals from Crossing Border in Berlin with Lonnie Holley, to Big Ears Festival and Le Guess Who? in Utrecht.

Next Stage is located at 15 Kimball Hill in downtown Putney, Vt. Tickets are discounted in advance at www.nextstagearts.org. There is also a livestream option. Next Stage will provide a beer, wine, and cocktail cash bar. For information, call 802-387-0102 or visit the website above.

Reed Foehl with Tommy Crawford at Stage 33 Live

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. – Grammy-nominated songwriter Reed Foehl will perform at Stage 33 Live in Bellows Falls, Vt., on Sunday, Jan. 28, at 7 p.m., with singer-songwriter Tommy Crawford opening.

of Heathens in Austin, Texas. He now resides in the Green Mountains of Vermont, and continues to tour across the globe. Foehl was nominated for a Grammy Award for the song “Fly,” co-written with southern artist Brent Cobb, which country legend Lee Ann Womack recorded.

Crawford is a multi-instrumentalist singer-songwriter. A talented solo musician, Crawford is better known for his work in live theater and independent film as an actor, composer, lyricist, arranger, and music director. He is a founding member and director of NYC-based band/songwriting/theater collective The Lobbyists, which often explores the intersection between musical performance and theatrical storytelling. His most recent studio album “Athena and

Chinese Calligraphy at the VAULT —

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. – Back by popular demand, Gallery at the VAULT is very pleased to offer Chinese Calligraphy with Jonathan Root on Saturday, Feb. 17, from 11 a.m. – 2 p.m. This is a relaxing and most enjoyable class.

You will study Chinese calligraphy with brush, introducing you to standard works of calligraphy as seen throughout Chinese history, with a particular emphasis on the great calligraphers of the Tang dynasty, in particular Ou Yang Xun.

You will learn the foundations of character development, including strokes, stroke order, and Lin Tie, which is a method of modeling specific characters from a tablet of a great calligrapher. You will place the character in a square, typically with grids, which allows you to copy and imitate the character itself. This will give you an understanding of the stroke order. A focus will be on regular script, however both cursive script and grass script will be considered. Jonathan will also consider the famous Orchid

Pavilion.

Jonathan Root grew up in Chester, Vt. He learned Chinese calligraphy in China, where he lived for two years, and has been studying and practicing ever since. Jonathan received his bachelor's in mathematics from the College of the Holy Cross, and his doctorate in mathematics from Boston University.

Brush, ink, paper weight, and felt mat will be provided, but bring your own if you have them. The registration fee is discounted for gallery members. Please register by Wednesday, Feb. 14.

Gallery at the VAULT is located at 68 Main Street in Springfield. The gallery is open Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, from 11 a.m. – 5 p.m., and Fridays, from 11 a.m. – 7 p.m. For more information, call 802-885-7111, email galleryvault@vermontel.net, or visit www.galleryvault.org or the gallery's Facebook page. Canal Street Art Gallery opens free Community Art Studio —

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. – Canal Street Art Gallery presents the Community Art Studio Program, providing a free to use space within the gallery, including artist grade supplies, for the public to make art while overlooking the Bellows Falls Canal. The Community Art Studio Program is now open through Feb. 24. All ages are welcome to use the studio on a walk-in basis during gallery hours, Tuesday-Saturday, from 10 a.m. – 5 p.m. Artwork made may be donated and hung on the walls of the program. Donated artwork is then mounted and given in clear sleeves by mail as rewards to supporters of the program. Artists also have the option to mount and take their work home with them in a clear sleeve, allowing visitors to create finished pieces ready to transport and frame.

A campaign launched by the gallery using the Kickstarter crowdfunding platform, if successful, will fund the building of a permanent space to keep the free Community Art Studio Program. The all-or-nothing goal of $1,500 must be met by Feb. 3, at 8 p.m. Of this amount, $1,032 will build and paint movable walls, and provide more lighting. To donate, please go to www.kickstarter.com/projects/canalstreetart/help-us-keep-our-free-community-art-studio.

The fundraiser, if successful, will pay to build a permanent space to keep the Community Art Studio Program at Canal Street Art Gallery. The creation of this program directly addresses a need and desire for additional and financially accessible creative outlets.

The space is well equipped, and art supplies include graphite and charcoal pencils, ink pens, sumi ink, oil pastels, and watercolor paints. A professional variety of watercolor and ink wash brushes, along with palettes and drawing tools, are provided. Visitors may choose to work on Bristol board, drawing, watercolor, or rice papers. The program plans to add acrylic, acrylic gouache, and pastel paints, cold wax and matte mediums, collage supplies, primed boards, and primed canvases.

If the campaign to keep the Community Art Studio Program achieves its fundraising goal, and a permanent space is created for the studio, the gallery will then be responsible for the costs to maintain the program as free and open for the community to use. The gallery already has a third fundraising campaign planned to make the Community Art Studio Program a long-term success. This will use the Patreon crowdfunding platform to create a committed group of patrons who will pledge an initial total goal of $250 per month. The gallery will also accept donations of new or unused (only) artist-grade art supplies, and preowned professional artist studio furniture, during regular hours, Tuesday-Saturday, from 10 a.m. – 5 p.m.

The gallery continues to work toward fulfilling its promises of more outreach, accessibility, programming, and events, all made possible by public support.

KHH Charles Albert Dickinson awards, new staff

WESTMINSTER, Vt. – New England Kurn Hattin Homes for Children (KHH) has named Laura Duquette and Ivan Villavicencio of Essex Junction, Vt., as the 2023 recipients of its Charles Albert Dickinson Award at a ceremony held in December.

The award was named in honor of the Rev. Charles Albert Dickinson, who founded Kurn Hattin Homes in 1894, and has been presented annually since 2013 to recognize those who make a significant contribution to the field of child welfare and assistance.

Laura and Ivan became involved with Kurn Hattin Homes several years ago through their work with The St. Nicholas Project, and their associations with Father Lance Harlow. This award recognizes their selfless dedication to the St. Nicholas Project in support of Kurn Hattin Homes, their untiring support of the children, their spirit of graciousness in all matters, and their wonderful efforts in spreading the good news of Kurn Hattin Homes throughout the state of Vermont and beyond.

The St. Nicholas Project is named after St. Nicholas, the patron saint of children, who was renowned for his charity toward children and families in need. While the aim of the project is to provide financial and material aid, it also serves to disseminate information to potential benefactors. Laura and

Ivan have been the Project's champions, dedicated to the children of Kurn Hattin Homes. They have worked incredibly hard, traversing the state and visiting almost every Catholic church in Vermont on behalf of the Homes. Laura and Ivan have also spent countless hours at the Champlain Valley Fair and Expo over the last several years, in addition to using their own personal finances for mailings to donors, travel expenses, and more. In their words of appreciation, Laura and Ivan stated, "In times of need, we believe the more the community supports each other, the better off we'll be. That's especially important when it comes to children who depend on a safe environment to learn, to grow, and to thrive. Our goal during our many interactions with people over the years has been to inspire them to do what they can to help the children, to help Kurn Hattin and [its] mission. The more we put into helping somebody else, the more we get in return."

Kurn Hattin Homes for Children is also pleased to announce several new staff additions during the final quarter of 2023. These changes represent a continuous focus on developing and strengthening the team that provides service to the children who live and learn at the Homes.

Sonja Anderson has joined the Homes' residential staff as a houseparent. The responsibility of a houseparent is to provide a safe, homelike environment for the children living in her cottage, and to help them with day-to-day needs. Sonja comes to the Homes all the way from Juneau, Alaska, where she lived for the past 19 years.

Matthew "Matt" Kobel has joined the Homes' food service team as a utility cook in the Watson Dining Hall. He is a welcome addition, whose skill in the kitchen contributes to the quality meals served to the children and staff.

Irmagard "Irma" Lasalle, the newest member of the Homes' maintenance team, grew up on a dairy farm in Bavaria, Germany, and helped keep the house clean while her mother tended to the cows. She was on a mission to keep things "spic and span" then, and she looks forward to doing the same at Kurn Hattin Homes now.

Since 1894, Kurn Hattin Homes for Children has helped thousands of children and their families by offering a safe home and quality education in a nurturing environment.
