Public comment on FERC Hydro Relicensing Project extended through May 22

The Shopper

ROCKINGHAM, Vt. -Board Chair Rick Cowan opened Tuesday night's Rockingham Selectboard meeting by thanking those in attendance, and inviting anyone who wished to contact the board to visit the town website for members' email addresses. "We all have email addresses, and we welcome emails from constituents," Cowan announced.

The board voted on a long list of committee appointments, with Cowan stating, "There are over 76 community-spirited people on this list, and 22 different boards, committees, and commissions."

These included the appointment of Diana Jones as town animal control officer, Ray Perry as tree warden, and Elijah Zimmer as selectboard liaison to the Great Falls Regional Chamber of Commerce (GFRCC).

Selectboard member John Dunbar was appointed to the Bellows Falls Area Development Corporation (BFADC), while Zimmer was reappointed to the same. Other positions were confirmed in the cemetery commission, Connecticut River Joint Commission (CRJC), energy commission, conservation commission, design review board, planning commission, and others.

Development director Gary Fox, who had been filling the position of interim E911 coordinator since Chuck Wise stepped down last year, will continue in the role full time, as well as his part-time post with Community Economic Development and Grants Management.

The board voted to designate The Shopper as the official paper of record, and agreed the Brattleboro Reformer would serve as alternate.

Zimmer and Dunbar volunteered to collaborate on updating the Waypoint Center Use Application, which Zimmer described as "convoluted and difficult to understand." The two board members will review and edit the application, then bring their recommendations to the board.

The public comment period for the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) Relicensing Bellows Falls Hydro Project #1855 has been extended through May 22. Fox explained that, since the 2013 Island Revitalization Study, there were requests to mitigate recreation and land use issues on the island, and Cowan made clear that it was important for the town to gather all pertinent information and present their input to Great River Hydro (GRH), the company managing the Bellows Falls facility, and 12 others along the Connecticut and Deerfield rivers.

Pickup had registered Rockingham as a "commenter," allowing the town to have an official voice regarding the project's impact on the town and the Village of Bellows Falls.

Cowan mentioned that he and Pickup looked at what other towns have done, including Lebanon, N.H. and Norwich, Vt. Cowan told the meeting GRH asks for this feedback just once every 40 years, adding, "So, this is our moment."

Cowan admitted in some ways GRH has been very helpful and cooperative, and in other ways, not as much. One example given was that, in their application, GRH stated they do not intend to make any changes to recreation, yet Rockingham will have "pretty extensive recreation requests," Cowan said, "as do many other towns up and down the river."

Discussion continued regarding three upcoming bridge projects the town has planned, all of which will impact the operation of the hydro plant in some way. Pickup agreed to be the point person for any infrastructure concerns, and will facilitate communication between the town, VTrans, and GRH.

One aspect being considered is environmental, and Cowan said, "We've had a lot of great research done by ornithologists Cat Abbott and Colleen Lawlor." Lawlor was at the meeting, and stated that she lives on Darby Hill Road and is a local bird advocate who, since 2018, has been studying grassland nesting birds in the Upper Meadows. She clarified that she is a conservationist, not an ornithologist, and an expert in the conservation of the Upper Valley Meadows area.

The State of Vermont has identified certain birds that nest in the meadows as species of special concern, and Lawlor explained that they would be asking GRH to continue the delayed mow contract that preserves 80 acres for the safe nesting of bobolinks and eastern meadowlarks for the next period of 40 years. The contract is set to expire in 2025 without the extension.

Public comments on environment, infrastructure, and recreation can be directed to developmentassist@rockbf.org or development@rockbf.org.

Town manager Scott Pickup reminded everyone that sidewalk repair work to complete the Pine Street project had begun, and that repairing the sidewalks in Saxtons River would be next up, the job awarded to Springfield Paving for an approved bid of $33,600.

Pickup also reported that the town was currently accepting bids for downtown crosswalk painting and covered bridge repairs, hoping to award those by the end of May.

After receiving multiple bids for the School Street and Atkinson Street paving project at Central Elementary scheduled for 2025, the board voted to award the job to Springfield Paving, for $625,287.

The board scheduled a special meeting for June 22, at 2 p.m., at the Bellows Falls Middle School, to consider the permanent rescheduling of Town Meeting to the Saturday immediately preceding the first Tuesday in March, beginning in 2025. An updated warning for the special meeting will be presented to the board at the next regular selectboard meeting on May 7.

Additional items expected at the May 7 meeting are updates to financials and FERC comments, and a review of selectboard rules and procedures.

Kurn Hattin students tour local businesses

KEENE, N.H. - Kurn was exciting for Hattin Homes for Children the students to is proud to continue their see their vision new Career Awareness Program (CAP) with a visit to the Colonial Performing Arts Center and Showroom, located in downtown Keene, N.H. CAP is designed to introduce the Homes' eighth graders to a diverse array of local businesses and organizations, so that their experiences in real world settings might positively influence and guide future educational choices and professional career paths.

The tour was hosted by the Colonial's Sam Mathewes Clark, director of development, and Greg Pregent, rental manager, who began the visit in the recentlyrenovated main lobby. After visiting the front of the house and learning about the Colonial's 100-year history, the students were ushered to the back of the house, where they had an opportunity to learn about the diverse roles, responsibilities, tools, and technology that go into bringing a live performance to the stage.

Next stop, Showroom. A recently-renovated, smaller venue behind the main building, Showroom is a versatile space that hosts live performances, private functions, and films. On this day, Showroom aired a short film created by students in the Kurn Hattin Homes' SmartLab under the direction of the Homes' SmartLab facilitator Ben Weiner. By all accounts, it become a reality that was projected larger than life onto the big screen.

Vicky Pittman, director of education and community engagement for the Colonial Performing Arts Center, joined Greg and the students in the Showroom balcony for a brief Q and A following the student film and other venue previews. Regarding the visit, she said, "The Colonial is pleased to support educators by giving them access to outreach and engagement that supports curriculum. Our goal is for the students to learn how the careers they're interested in translate into the 'real' world, and how the creative and business end of the business work together to make a project really come to life."

The reviews are in, and it's unanimous...two thumbs up for the Colonial Performing Arts Center and the Career Awareness Program.

The next business tour was to Fireworks Restaurant, located on Main Street in downtown Keene, N.H., hosted by Fireworks' owner Adam Berube and chef Harry Chambers. The tour began in the dining room, quickly became apparent to the students that there was a lot to know in the dining room. The same was true in the kitchen. Chef Harry outlined the detailed task lists that accompany every shift, and explained the process that enables the kitchen team to prepare and deliver multiple food orders in an accurate, timely manner.

When the tour ended, the real fun began. Back at the community table, Adam treated the group to lunch, letting each student create their own individual specialty pizza. A number of students had the opportunity to join chef Harry by the pizza oven, to learn the talent of stretching and tossing the dough.

During lunch, Adam encouraged the students to assess their own personal strengths in order to pursue a position that's the right fit, whether it be out in the dining room, or back in the kitchen. They could also consider working in the business end of the restaurant in accounting and payroll, social media, advertising and marketing, graphic design, or purchasing.

Adam also discussed the intense level of commitment that it takes to make a restaurant successful. "I'm here every day, but I truly believe in the adage that it isn't work if you love what you're doing."

Commitment goes beyond the walls of Adam's restaurants and out into the community. Adam says from his heart, "Keene is a great community, and I love to give back when I can."

In addition to supporting a number of local organizations with in-kind donations, he opens up Fireworks for a number of special events, including Community Giving Night. This gives chosen organizations an opportunity to receive 10% of an evening's proceeds to support their cause.

This day, Adam opened up Fireworks to the students of Kurn Hattin Homes, an investment that shows tremendous promise of being a win-win in the future.

The Career Awareness Program has plans to visit a wide variety of local participating businesses and organizations, including Len-Tex Corporation, Whitney Brothers, Savings Bank of Walpole, Badger Balm, the Keene Beauty Academy, RE/MAX Town and Country, Monadnock Community Hospital, with other destinations in the planning stages. If you would like to discuss adding your organization to the Career Awareness Program, please contact Lorie Rogers at 802-721-6917 or lrogers@ kurnhattin.org.

Kurn Hattin fined for violating water supply rule

WESTMINSTER, Vt. -The Agency of Natural Resources Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) announced today that New England Kurn Hattin Homes, the owner and operator of a public water system in Westminster, was fined $6,750 for violations of the Vermont Water Supply Rule (VWSR), and has been directed to bring the water system into compliance.

Many Vermonters use public community water systems for safe, reliable drinking water. These systems range in size from small condominium associations, to large cities. Owners of public community water systems are responsible for managing and maintaining the systems in accordance with the VWSR. Among many other requirements, owners are required to comply with permit conditions to ensure the system has adequate water treatment, and to maintain an approved, up-to-date operation and maintenance manual for the water system.

"Owning a public drinking water system comes with the responsibility to maintain drinking water standards and protect public health," says Jason Batchelder, DEC commissioner. "It is important for these systems to be established and operated in accordance with the VWSR, to minimize the risk of potential impacts to public drinking water."

New England Kurn Hattin Homes operates a yearround residential home and school serving children. Its public drinking water system, which is subject to permits from the DEC's Drinking Water and Groundwater Protection Division, serves approximately 200 residential users. During a routine sanitary survey in 2022, the agency found that the water system's operation and maintenance manual was not up to date, and that the company had not completed in-plant testing of the water system's filter vessels, as was required by its permits from 2020.

New England Kurn Hattin Homes agreed to a fine of $6,750 for the violations. They also agreed to bring the water system into compliance by conducting required testing and submitting an updated operation and maintenance manual. This agreement was incorporated into a Final Judicial Order of the Vermont Superior Court, Environmental Division on April 15.

For more information about DEC's Drinking Water and Groundwater Protection Division, including information about the Vermont Water Supply Rule, visit www. dec.vermont.gov/water.

Kurn Hattin new staff

WESTMINSTER, Vt. -Kurn Hattin Homes for Children is pleased to announce several new staff additions during the first quarter of 2024. Catherine "Cat" Alexander has joined the residential staff as a houseparent, whose responsibility it is to provide a safe, homelike environment for the children in their care, and to help them with daily needs. Originally from Long Island, N.Y., Cat has always wanted to work with children, and pass along the lessons that she learned from her own childhood mentor, primarily caring for one another and supporting one another whenever possible. Cat says, "The most important lesson as a houseparent that I'd like the girls to learn from me [is] helping others."

Ozzie-Mae Jewett has also joined the homes' residential staff as a houseparent. Ozzie-Mae grew up in Perkinsville, Vt., surrounded by many siblings, which prepared her well for life in a Kurn Hattin Homes cottage. She brings along a life philosophy that focuses on the little things. She wants to encourage children to slow down and love the small things they encounter in their daily life, such as shadows from the sun, or the moment they finally win that game of cards and feel a special sense of pride. According to Ozzie-Mae, "Those simple moments make life so beautiful."

Colleen Sherwood, RN, has accepted a position on the Kurn Hattin Homes nursing staff. In addition to providing care for common illnesses and injuries in the campus health center, Colleen will encourage children to establish healthy habits that can enhance their overall wellbeing for a lifetime. Colleen says, "I've always wanted to work with children. I feel my past experience as a triage nurse has helped prepare me for handling the unexpected. I'm looking forward to getting to know the kids, and I'm excited to see them grow and thrive. I hope to have a positive influence on their lives."

The Chester Students' Miscellany

The masthead for The Chester Students' Miscellany newspaper.

BY RON PATCH

802-374-0119 ronpatch27@gmail.com

Below is from the May 1, 1854, The Chester Students' Miscellany newspaper. It was published by Chester Academy students. This is Route 35. In part, it reads: "The Gulf

...But it was not our object to describe all of the scenery of Chester, but to attempt a description of one of its natural curiosities. 'The Gulf' as it is called is a deep cleft in the hills between Chester and Grafton. It seems to be a place where in some convulsion of nature, the hills have been cleft asunder down to their very base, and some good people say it was made so just on purpose for a road, at least there is a very good road through it now, at no inconsiderable expense.

"As we enter this road from Chester through a pleasant grove of beech trees, a steep cliff towers up on our right some 250 feet; as the snow melts in spring the water flows down the side in several places forming beautiful cascades. Here are numerous clefts in the rocks forming small caverns, where it seems some lonely hermit might pass his days in seclusion, and if we were in sunny Italy instead of Vermont, we might well fancy them the secret home of some ancient bandit.

"Following the road which winds under overhanging rocks on the right side and descending a hill, we find ourselves in the bottom of the Gulf. Steep banks arise on either side, but the most precipitous on the right, these are covered with trees, which overhang the road, and a small brook murmurs along by our side, a belt of blue sky stretches far above our heads, and we look up and around with feeling of sublimity and awe.

"We seem in one of nature's secret chambers, and look around in wonder on her rough architecture. Thus we ramble on for a half a mile with the steep rocks towering on either side, and shut out as it were, from all the world.

"Suddenly we leave the defile and come out on a small open space and find ourselves in Grafton. We look around with feelings of regret, to find the pleasant dream broken, and turn to retrace our steps. As we enter the Gulf again from the Grafton side we are reminded of Virgil's description of the entrance to Hades... "...But here the resemblance ends, for we find none of the horrid shapes which terrified the gaze of Aeneas, nought but the singing of birds, the murmuring of the brook, and the sighing of the wind through the boughs of hemlock and spruce. The Gulf is well known to the students of botany.

"Here bloom nearly all the wildflowers which are found in this vicinity. Many a pleasant ramble have I had in this wild place with some fellow student, in search of some new flower, and almost as often has our search been rewarded by finding something new and beauti-

"This Gulf is often selected by the students for their 'May walk,' and many a bright May morning has found the Gulf alive with boys and girls, searching for the first wild flowers, climbing the rocks on either side and making all resound with shouts and laughter.

"One bright May morning a large company formed in the valley and scaled the steep cliff on the right side to its very summit. This was no easy matter, but perseverance and energy accomplished it, and the glowing cheek and heaving breast, when arrived at the top gave evidence that for once their blood was fairly started.

"Last year we paid our annual visit to the Gulf on May day morning, and after gathering our hands full of flowers around the entrance, went deeper into the Gulf and had a spirited battle with snow-balls, the gentlemen were fairly beaten by the fair sex, and made a safe retreat.

"But darker deeds have been enacted in this pleasant Gulf. A few years ago a wealthy inhabitant of Grafton was returning home late in the evening, and while passing the darkest part of the Gulf, a large stone was thrown, probably with the intention of knocking him from his wagon, but falling a little behind him it struck his wagon, this frightened the horse, and aided by a few sharp blows of the whip he soon bore him from all danger. But enough of Chester Gulf, if any one wishes to pass a pleasant hour, and admire the beauties of nature let them not to forget to visit the Gulf."

Raku pottery workshop –

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. - Gallery at the VAULT is excited to offer a raku pottery workshop with Andrew Berends on two consecutive Saturdays, May 4 and May 11, from 1-5 p.m. each day. Register by Saturday, April 27.

Andrew will be teaching the exciting Japanese firing technique known as raku. Raku is a 16th-century technique developed in Japan for making tea ceremony ware. It has been developed in this country to produce really interesting pottery. The firings take about an hour, and you get a finished piece at the end. Raku is a technique where pots are fired to 1,840 degrees, pulled out of the hot kiln, and manipulated with sawdust and water to change the look of the glazes. The glazes can be metallic and/or have a crackle effect, making each piece unique and one-of-a-kind.

We will also fire pots with a new technique known as "horse hair" raku, which creates interesting designs on the clay. The raku firings can be done indoors, or outdoors depending on the weather.

The class will include wheel throwing, slab making, as well as extruding instruction. The first day will include making all types of clay work, and the second day will be glazing and firing all the pots in the raku tradition. Emphasis will be on being creative and learning the basics of pottery, including making the work, glazing, as well as firing. The class is geared towards teens through adults, and limited to four students.

Andrew Berends has been a master potter for over 30 years, with a Bachelor of Fine Arts from the New York State College of Ceramics at Alfred University, as well as a Master of Fine Arts from Montana State University. Upon moving to Vermont in 1988, he became a professional production/art potter, where he exhibited internationally, as well as being represented by over 180 galleries nationally.

The cost of the class, discounted for gallery members, includes 25 pounds of clay, glazes, and firing costs in a gasfired kiln. Wear old clothing, and bring pottery tools if you have them. Directions to Andrew's studio in Springfield will be given at registration.

Gallery at the VAULT is located at 68 Main Street, Springfield. For more information, call 802-885-7111, email galleryvault@ vermontel.net, or visit www.galleryvault.org.

Cycle of Memory"-

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. - The documentary film "Cycle of Memory" will be shown at the Rockingham Library on Saturday, May 4, at 2 p.m. "Cycle of Memory" follows filmmaker Alex Leff and his younger sibling Koby, as they try to uncover the past and capture the present, in order to be remembered in the future.

Their grandfather Mel Schwartz escaped the Great Depression on a bicycle adventure he'd remember for the rest of his life – until Mel lost his memory to Alzheimer's. Now, over 75 years later, his grandchildren set out to recreate his life-changing journey, and find those memories before they slip away. This film explores the importance of intergenerational connection, healing painful pasts, and leaving a meaningful time capsule for the future. Guided by old photographs of the 1945 trip, they search for places aged by time. But, while searching for Grandpa Mel's past, the two are confronted with their own fraught history. If they're going to complete the turbulent journey, they'll have to face their own emotional potholes and tumultuous relationship.

With the help of a grandmother learning to live alone for the first time, Mel's lifelong friend and coadventurer on the bike trip, and a family collection spanning 1950s film reels to 1990s video tapes, "Cycle of Memory" explores the importance of intergenerational connection, healing painful pasts, and leaving a meaningful time capsule for the future.

"Cycle of Memory" appeals most readily to bicyclists, adventurers of all types, and anyone who is affected by a loved one with Alzheimer's. However, all of us are involved with the cycle of life, which this film adeptly portrays as well. For those who wish to stay, there will be a brief discussion after the film. This event is free and open to the public. For more information, email programming@ rockinghamlibrary.org, call 802-463-4270, or stop by the library at 65 Westminster Street in Bellows Falls

MedQuest Health Careers

Expo —

RUTLAND, Vt. - According to the American Hospital Association (AHA), there will be a shortage of up of 3.2 million healthcare workers by 2026. America will face a shortage of up to 124,000 physicians by 2033, and will need to hire at least 200,000 nurses per year to meet increased demand, and to replace retiring nurses. There are also critical shortages of allied health and behavioral professionals, especially in marginalized rural and urban communities.

Find a career in health care at the MedQuest Career Expo.

The mission of Southern Vermont Area Health Education Center (AHEC) is to enhance community efforts to grow and sustain the health workforce in southern Vermont. One of the ways we do this is by delivering pathway programs, which connect students to health careers.

Southern Vermont AHEC, in partnership with Come Alive Outside, is hosting its first MedQuest Health Careers Expo for students 14-21 years of age on Wednesday, May 8, from 3-7 p.m., at the Rutland Recreation and Community Center, 134 Community Drive in Rutland. This event also coincides with Southern Vermont AHEC's 25th anniversary celebration. Admission to the expo is free and open to the public.

There will be more than 20 Vermont health careers represented, ranging from clinical and nonclinical roles in medicine, oral health, mental and behavioral health, public health, emergency response, and much more. Immerse yourself in interactive displays, innovative technology, and connect with seasoned professionals. Among the more than 40 exhibitors will be virtual reality (VR) simulations and mobile medical units. Students can enter a drawing to win VR headsets, with health careers exploration modules and training simulations for their school. DJ Brett Myhre will provide music, and there will be giveaways, a 50-50 raffle, and other fun prizes. Come Alive Outside will host a Nerf skills course, and the Rollin' Rooster and Mr. Dinga-Ling ice cream truck will be on site. Check out www.svtahec. org for more details. We want to thank our phenomenal sponsors Rutland Regional Medical Center, VNA & Hospice of the southwest region, Community Health, and Springfield Hospital, plus recognize our tech-savvy partners at Tranfr.

National Alcohol Awareness Month

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. - As April marks National Alcohol Awareness Month, Health Care and Rehabilitation Services (HCRS), the community mental health agency in southeastern Vermont and a preferred substance use services provider, is raising awareness about the pervasive issue of alcohol misuse and addiction, both nationally and within our own community. With startling alcohol statistics from both national and local sources, it's evident that concerted efforts are needed to address this public health concern third leading preventable cause of death in the country. Moreover, the economic burden of excessive alcohol consumption amounts to nearly $250 billion annually.

Closer to home, a recent VT Digger article revealed that Vermont continues to rank among the highest in the nation for binge drinking and alcohol use disorder. This alarming trend highlights the pressing need for comprehensive support, and resources within our local communities, to combat the adverse effects of alcohol misuse and misuse. Through its comprehensive programs and services, the nonprofit agency strives to offer accessible and effective treatment options tailored to meet the unique needs of each individual.

George Karabakakis, CEO of HCRS, emphasizes, "In recent years, the spotlight has been on the critical challenge of opioid overdoses, but alcohol use disorder remains a significant concern. National Alcohol Awareness Month is a great reminder that we need to create greater awareness of this preventable issue." HCRS offers a range of alcohol misuse and addiction resources, including counseling services, support groups, and specialized treatment programs.

Individuals seeking assistance or guidance are encouraged to visit www. hcrs.org for more information on available resources. New this year, Vermont's new Mobile Crisis services provide an inperson response for not only mental health, but also substance use crises. Vermonters can access this program through www.gethelpvt.org, or by calling 988. This enhanced crisis service is SPRINGFIELD, Vt. Elizabeth Marie Lombard passed away peacefully at home with family and friends on April 12, 2024.

She was born in Tyson, Vt., on Dec. 26, 1927, to Henry and Marie (Frye) Gruber, both from Germany.

Liz attended schools in Ludlow, and graduated from Black River High School in 1946. After high school, she was employed at the Ludlow Telephone Company as a switchboard operator, and in 1947 married Gordon Lombard.

When they moved back to Ludlow, after residing in numerous apartments, they bought the house at 2 Pond Street, where she lived for 68 years. Liz worked with Marge Roberts, assisting in her preschool/kindergarten classes. When she retired, Liz took over the classes, and began teaching upstairs in her own home. When her youngest son had finished the program, she stopped teaching and went to work in the kitchen at Okemo Mountain. Liz was kitchen manager for 14 years. After her husband passed away in 1985, she left shortly after that and went to work as a teacher's aide at the Ludlow Elementary School until 2004. community/opinion LEGAL

Dear Editor,

The statehouse is an extraordinarily busy place at the moment. The legislature is in the last month of its two-year 2023-2024 biennium, which means that if bills don't pass in the next four weeks, they are "dead" until January 2025, when they can be reintroduced. So, for many issues and bills, this is crunch time. As a result, most of our big bills are in negotiation.

For example, both the Senate's big housing bill, S.311, and land use bill, S.308, are being incorporated into the House's Act 250 (land use) update bill, H.687. This represents a substantial amount of time and effort by three committees. The action at the moment on all three of those bills is in Senate Natural Resources and Energy. So, if you are interested in following the developments in these areas, H.687 will be voted out of that committee in the next week. It will then go to both the Senate Finance and Appropriations Committees, as it has spending and tax proposals in it. And, after that, it will go to the Senate floor to be voted on. Following that, a conference committee will be named, made up of three members of the House and three of the Senate, and it is in this committee that the final negotiations on two of the legislature's top priorities, housing and land use planning (updating Act 250), will take place.

Another bill generating quite a bit of interest is this year's ethics bill, H.875. Vermont had been one of the only states without some form of an ethics commission, and without a state code of ethics. For the last eight years, the legislature has worked to rectify that. We now have both an ethics commission and a state code of ethics. The Ethics Commission website, which has lots of information, including the State Code of Ethics, can be found at www.ethicscommission.vermont.gov.

Each year we work to update and add to aspects of the State Code of Ethics. This year, we are addressing municipal ethics. In response to last year's legislative request for a report from the Ethics Commission on how to implement a municipal code of ethics, the House Committee on Government Operations crafted this bill, which is now being considered by the Senate Government Operations Committee, on which I serve. Evidently, a significant number, almost 50%, of the complaints lodged at the Ethics Commission are municipal in nature. Most frequently cited concerns are conflicts of interest, preferential treatment, retaliation, and financial impropriety.

Currently all three branches of state government, the legislature, judiciary, and the executive branch, have established codes of ethics. Most ethics complaints are funneled through the Ethics Commission to the appropriate state body, which, in turn, has a system designed to address these issues. Most of H.875 seeks to strengthen the code of ethics at the state level, and the last third of the bill establishes one at the local level. It is not meant to target any size of town or area of the state. We are continuing to work on this bill - trying to make sure we don't place undue burdens on towns. The Vermont League of Cities and Towns is helping us appreciate what is realistic for most municipal governments. In all this work, our objective has been to create a standard, clear, and consistent code of ethics, one that all public servants are required to abide by. Vermonters expect nothing less.

I appreciate hearing from you. I can be reached by email at aclarkson@leg. state.vt.us, by phone at the statehouse Tuesday-Friday at 802-828-2228, or at home Saturday-Monday at 802-457-4627. To get more information on the Vermont Legislature, and the bills which have been proposed and passed, visit the legislative website, legislature.vermont.gov.

Herricks Cove Wildlife | Chester Fishing Derby-Festival —

ROCKINGHAM, Vt. - If vou're a wildlife enthusiast itching for spring, then be sure to check out the Herricks Cove Wildlife Festival on Sunday, May 5, at beautiful Herricks Cove on the Connecticut River in Rockingham, Vt. The festival is presented by the Vermont Fish and Wildlife Department and Ascutney Mountain Audubon Society, and made possible with support from Great River Hydro, Ben and Jerry's, Magris Talc, Mascoma Savings Bank, Decker's Tent Rentals, HB Energy, and One Credit Union.

This is a family-friendly festival, with an emphasis on the wildlife and natural resources of Vermont. The festival will feature live animals, nature-focused walks, kids' activities, presentations by environmental and nature organizations, and demonstrations that include the return of Vermont Game Warden canine units - all this and more, with a focus on getting outdoors and enjoying nature. There will be food offered by a variety of local vendors, as well as wildlife art, craft, book, and gift vendors there through the day. "The Herricks Cove Wildlife Festival gives participants a chance to learn about and experience our native fish and wildlife, and the importance of conserving their habitats so future generations can appreciate them as well," said Mary-Beth Adler, a state wildlife technician with Vermont Fish and Wildlife.

Gates open at 9:30 a.m., and activities are scheduled from 10 a.m. -4 p.m., rain or shine, with an early morning bird walk at 7 a.m. There is a small suggested donation, but no one is turned away for lack of funds. Pets are not allowed. Visit the festival website for updates and more information at www.amasvt. org/herricks-cove-wildlife-festival.

Herricks Cove is located just off Route 5, less than three miles north of Bellows Falls.

Introduction to bullhead fishing clinic

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. - The Vermont Fish and Wildlife Department is holding a series of introductory bullhead fishing clinics this spring, highlighting a seasonal opportunity to target one of Vermont's most overlooked fish species.

'The arrival of spring brings increased opportunities to catch bullhead as they begin moving into their spawning grounds," said education specialist Corey Hart. "In addition to be being a blast to catch, bullhead - or 'horned pout,' as they are also known are excellent table fare."

Each clinic will explore different fishing styles used to target brown bullhead, which are found in many of the shallower, muddier lakes, ponds, and rivers of the events calendar on Ver-

Vermont. Bullhead, like other species in the catfish family, are nocturnal bottom feeders. So, the clinics will take place in the evening, to take advantage of increased bullhead activity.

These clinics are open to people of all ages and levels of experience, including those who are completely new to fishing. Equipment will be provided, but participants are encouraged to bring their own rods as well. Participants should also dress for the weather, and bring a flashlight or headlamp.

Space is limited to the first 30 registrants, and seminars fill up quickly, so sign up as early as possible. Preregistration is required, and can be completed in mont Fish and Wildlife's website at www.vtfishandwildlife.com. Directions to the meeting spot will be given upon registering.

This area's clinic will be held on Wednesday, May 15, starting at 6:30 p.m., at Hoyts Landing in Springfield, Vt.

Reasonable accommodations for persons with disabilities are available upon request. Please include a description of the accommodation you will need. Individuals making such requests must include their contact information. Please send an email to corey.hart@vermont.gov, or call 802-505-5562 (voice), or 1-800-253-0191 (TTY).

CHESTER, Vt. - The Chester Rod and Gun Club will sponsor the annual Children's Fishing Derby on Saturday, May 11. from 9 a.m. – 11 a.m., at the Chester Reservoir. Children 12 years old and younger may participate in the event, and must be accompanied by a parent or guardian. The Children's Fishing Derby is hosted each year with the cooperation and assistance of the Vermont Department of Fish and Wildlife. The reservoir will be stocked with trout shortly before the event. Prizes will be awarded to the lucky anglers who

Green Mountain Conservation Camp Workcation Weekends –

REGION - The Vermont Fish and Wildlife Department is looking for volunteers to join them for fun-filled weekends to get the Green Mountain Conservation Camps (GMCC) ready for the 2024 season. This year, the GMCC Kehoe Workcation Weekend will be May 11-12, and the GMCC Buck Lake Workcation Weekend will be May18-19.

We look forward to Workcation Weekend all winter long," said education specialist Hannah Phelps. "With the help of local volunteers, we spruce up both camps in preparation for the summer, and enjoy being outdoors knowing it's for a good cause - environmental education for today's youth."

Volunteers can participate for as long as they are able to - one hour, one day, or both days. They are welcome to stay overnight in onsite cabins, or they can bring their own tents Lunch and dinner opportunity for Boy Scout and Girl Scout groups, as well as high school and college clubs. The Conservation Camps are looking for help with general repairs, construction, landscaping, painting, cleaning, firewood, and gardening. Participants are encouraged to bring their own tools, but the camps will have some available.

For more information and to register as a volunteer for one of these weekends, please email Hannah. Phelps@vermont.gov, or call 802-249-4199.

Vermont's conservation camp program is unique, because it is sponsored and directed by the Fish and Wildlife Department professionals who conserve Vermont's fish and wildlife species. Working biologists, foresters, wardens, and conservation educators teach young people about their role with Vermont's forests, wetlands, wildlife, and fish through interactive activities

The Green Mountain Conservation Camp program's greatest strength is connecting young people to the outdoors. The camp program is sponsored in part through a grant from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Wildlife and Sport Fish Restoration Program.

CHESTER, Vt. – With a steadfast commitment to preserving the natural beauty of our town, volunteers are eagerly preparing for another impactful Green Up Day on Saturday, May 4. Join us by picking up your free Green Up supplies and dedicating an hour or two to cleaning up litter around town. Your efforts make a significant difference, and contribute to the sense of pride in our community.

Their tireless efforts significantly enhance the aesthetic appeal of our surroundings, leaving a lasting positive impact. Residents can collect Green Up bags from various locations, including the Whiting Library, Chester Hardware, R.B. Erskines, and Chester Town Hall. Sign-up sheets will be available at the Whiting Library, aiming to assist Green Up Vermont in setting a new volunteer participation record.
