Londonderry votes not to assist with FEMA application process, O'Keefe resigns

BY SHAWNTAE WEBB
The Vermont Journal

LONDONDERRY, Vt. – At their Oct. 7 meeting, the Londonderry Selectboard discussed a trash compactor, the FEMA hazard mitigation grant program application processes, and the resignation of town administrator Shane O'Keefe.

Meg Staloff, program manager of the Southern Vermont Economy Project, of Brattleboro Development Credit Corporation (BDCC), was in attendance to discuss the three tiers of programs and assistance they offer local communities. Staloff said BDCC supports businesses, individuals in the workforce, and community programs and grant workshops to help communities move forward.

O'Keefe said he wanted to submit Phase 2 of the South Village Wastewater Project, stating, "That is clearly an economic development as well as housing-related project." The board approved the motion to submit the project for consideration. Staloff encouraged the town, along with other communities, to submit a list of projects.

Solid waste coordinator Esther Fishman then discussed the trash compactor they are trying to obtain for the transfer station. As discussed in previous meetings, there will be a significant cost upfront to purchase the compactor, but a savings in the amount of trucking needed to haul away waste.

The board discussed positioning of the unit, along with a slab for it to sit on. O'Keefe suggested looking at other towns for suggestions. Board Chair Tom Cavanagh agreed, "Do the research, and do it right the first time."

Given the four to six week lead time to obtain the compactor, and the necessity to pour a concrete slab fairly soon, as the "weather is not conducive with waiting too long," as board member Taylor Prouty said, the board moved to order the compactor and quickly do the research to prepare the space and slab for the unit when it arrives.

The transfer station is also looking to purchase a vending machine for punch cards, and will be updating the facility fee structure for 2025. After discussion, the board approved an increase of $5 on residential stickers, and an increase of $15 on commercial stickers. Also effective Jan. 1, 2025, the transfer station will charge one punch on the punch cards for recycling.

Chris Cole, owner of Cole Engineering and project engineer of the Town Office Project, stated that the project was on schedule. O'Keefe announced he had a change order to submit for $5,288 to remove a window, which has vermiculite insulation and needs to be removed by a certified asbestos removal company. He also requested a change order for $1,156 for heating to be added into the closet backstage area where the board meets. He said that is a minimal cost, and may be a good idea. The board approved both requests.

The board moved to discuss the FEMA hazard mitigation grant program applications, and the procurement process. The town has debated whether or not they would hire one engineer to work with all of the property owners who are submitting applications.

One downfall is that the upfront cost of an engineer for an elevation project could be $8,000 for one property owner. If the town hires the engineer and pays those costs upfront, and the property owner does not move forward with the project or is denied funding, the town is out those costs. The other option is to have the engineer provide a bid for each job and design plan, and propose it to the property owner if they want to pay that expense themselves.

"It's going to be a ton of work for somebody," O'Keefe explained, noting the amount of information needed for an elevation project is major, including an elevation certificate and an engineering design plan in order to submit each application to FEMA. O'Keefe noted there's a lot of risk on an elevation project, but much less on a buyout.

Property owners also have a buyout option, and "the state will do all the legwork on that sort of project." But with that option, the town loses a property off the tax list, and the homeowners are left to find a place to live. O'Keefe added that what they get for their home may not get them an equivalent option to move into. "There's no easy answer."

The board agreed they can't add all of the tasks onto someone's workload, but also noted they did not have funding to hire someone to specifically be a project manager to oversee each application process. It was then discussed that the town could let each property owner handle their application procurement themselves, with hopes that nothing gets processed incorrectly or missed, without the town working on behalf of each landowner.

Ultimately, O'Keefe recommended that "the property owners run with it at this stage...we just don't have the person power." He noted other projects, such as the wastewater and town office renovations that are happening, and other things that are not happening because there are so many projects on their agenda.

Cavanagh and Prouty agreed, saying, "There's no good or clear path." Member Martha Dale expressed, "I'm just sorry that we don't have the horsepower to help." The board moved to not proceed with the FEMA hazard mitigation application procurement process assistance.

Dale then announced O'Keefe's resignation, and read his letter to those in attendance. "It's been a true pleasure working with the board," he wrote, "along with colleagues, volunteers, and citizens that make Londonderry such a wonderful community." His resignation is effective with the adjournment of the 2024 annual Town Meeting on March 4, 2025, unless a successor is hired before that date. He noted he would likely be available part time if necessary. "It's time to retire," O'Keefe said to the board.

Dale expressed, "I'm sorry to receive your resignation, but thank you now for this."

The board thanked O'Keefe for his work. Dale and board member James Ameden will colead the interview and hiring process, in hopes to have someone fill the position before March. The board is also looking for winter maintenance crew members, and will continue to search until the open positions are filled.

The Londonderry Selectboard meets on the first and third Monday of each month, at 6 p.m.

ESBR hosts open house for families

LUDLOW, Vt. – Six exciting weeks into the school year already, the Expeditionary School at Black River (ESBR) hosted an open house on the evening of Thursday, Oct. 10, to share with ESBR families what the students have been experiencing so far in the 2024-2025 school year. Head of School Michael Kell welcomed guests, expressing how this year's theme, "What Makes Vermont Strong," also represents itself within the school just amongst the students on a daily basis. Board Chair Patrick Pullinen reiterated this point, sharing inspiring journeys of students past and the early days of ESBR. Sean Whalen, ESBR's English language arts instructor, also offered insight, agreeing in a joint goal of not just teaching, but also in discovering how to make something mundane "not boring" to learn or experience in the first place. A slideshow presentation accompanied the introductions, providing a further glimpse into the ESBR experience.

Following this discussion, families broke off to see the middle school and/or high school schedules and classes. Along with core courses, several other current classes include graphic arts, Spanish, and health. Families were able to visit these classrooms, and a few of the ESBR instructors were able to give interactive accounts of some of the projects they've been working on with students this school year. And, as seen in the slideshow presentation, the brick-and-mortar walls are not the only classrooms, as many field trips also occur to visit various Vermont landmarks and locations, to learn about the local history and its impact on Vermont's strength. One of these recent expeditions was to the Bennington Museum, to witness the role the region played during the Revolutionary War and America's fight for its independence.

ESBR has come a long way, and it still has a long way to go, which makes it an exciting time to shape an educational experience that truly benefits young learners. As ESBR enters its fifth year, the feedback of students' growth is expressed by parents and guardians alike. Likewise, students share their genuine joy of being at school and connecting with one another. ESBR is honored to provide this environment, and welcomes other students and families to inquire. Indeed, student enrollment has already increased since the school year began.

ESBR envisions further growth in welcoming more community members to reach out. Whether it is to inquire about attending this school year or next, information can always be readily shared. Choice Towns can now utilize the designated average state tuition dollars at ESBR. Volunteers are also welcomed; fundraising continues so as to provide extra programming – thanks to the Legion and other community members, a successful chicken barbecue earlier in September raised $1,885, which will go towards transportation funds, technology, etc. for the school; more fundraising to follow in the coming months. Community members have also been volunteering for the Wednesday lunch meal program, whereby a different community member prepares a communal lunchtime meal to bring in and share with the students on Wednesdays. Furthermore, anyone interested in joining the board is also welcome to reach out. Board Chair Patrick Pullinen may be contacted at ppullinen@esblackriver.org, and Head of School Michael Kell may be contacted at mcell@esblackriver.org or via the school phone, 802-228-3727. Thank you to everyone, ESBR continues to be forever grateful for all the support over the years to provide a viable school for the community.

Book discussions at the Rockingham Library

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. – Listen to local author Mimi Yahn talk about her debut novel “Usurpation” on Thursday, Oct. 24, at 6:30 p.m., at the Rockingham Library. Set in 1997 and spanning two cities – Portland, Ore., and New Orleans – “Usurpation” tells a powerful story about gentrification through the lives of two families, and the eyes of the novel’s historian protagonist, Kitty Feliz. When her best friend’s son is murdered, Feliz uncovers a racist scheme involving drug gangs, police corruption, and gentrification through the deliberate blighting of Portland’s historically Black district, Albina. Copies of her book will be available to purchase.

Marie St. Pez is the nom de plume of Springfield resident Mimi Yahn, a longtime writer of essays, short stories, investigative articles, and political blogs. “Usurpation” is now available in bookstores, through the Phoenix Books, Barnes & Noble, and Amazon websites, and directly from the author at www.mariestpez.wordpress.com. This program is free and open to the public.

Pick up a copy of “The Mountains Wild” by Sarah Stewart Taylor at the front desk of the Rockingham Library, and join the discussion on Thursday, Nov. 7, at 6 p.m., when the author will be on hand to discuss her work, answer questions, and read aloud from this book.

“The Mountains Wild” opens when Maggie, a police detective from Long Island, finds herself drawn back to Dublin, Ireland, where her cousin Erin disappeared 23 years ago. The discovery of Erin’s distinctive scarf, coupled with the disappearance of another young woman, fortify Maggie’s intention to find out what happened to both women. The Kirkus Review states that, “This mystery, evocative of the Irish diaspora, interrogates both a young woman’s disappearance and the meaning of homeland.”

This program is free and open to the public. You do not need to be a regular patron of the library to borrow a copy of “The Mountains Wild.”

For more information on either discussion, email programming@rockinghamlibrary.org, call 802-463-4270, or stop by the Rockingham Library at 65 Westminster Street in Bellows Falls.

Driftwood hunters

BY RON PATCH

802-374-0119
ronpatch27@gmail.com

Last week I wrote about Bob Turco and antler shed hunters. Vermonters have always felt a strong gravitational pull to the natural world. This is why we collect stuff.

Driftwood is something we have all picked up or admired as we walk the beach or riverbanks. There are a small number of driftwood hunters today. They're still around, but they keep a low profile. I used to see them at flea markets. Some have a better eye.

These driftwood hunters know when to walk the Connecticut River. After spring runoff, once ice is out and the river returns back to its original level, is a good time to look. They find all kinds of driftwood. It could be a weathered, pressure-treated board, showing interesting, elongated grain. It could also just be a branch or root that took its form from years of tumbling and drifting.

Each piece is to be judged by the eye of the beholder. Some hunters have a better eye. The photo with this article is a piece of driftwood I bought from a driftwood hunter years ago. We both saw what could only be a walleye. It's about 25 inches long, and weighs almost nothing. One passerby, not knowing it was driftwood, commented, "What a beautiful sculpture."

We all live here. If we slow down and open our eyes, we will see such natural wonders all around us.

Wasp nests

Another thing many of us collect is wasp nests. You might find one hanging from a branch in your backyard, or maybe in the woods. They can be quite large. I have seen them 16 inches high and 10 or 12 inches in diameter. Make sure there are no current inhabitants.

Stone structures and Indian arrowheads

Another strong magnetic pull for Vermonters is the earth itself. Since the earliest introduction of Europeans to Native American culture, the white man was aware that he was not the first to inhabit this area.

Many interesting stone structures were encountered by colonists. Today you can still find these Native American structures in Andover and Mount Holly.

We've always picked up Indian arrowheads whenever we found them.

Today, on Route 103 out of the Stone Village, on the left is what I call "the Merrill Stevens barn." This barn belongs to the Town of Chester Water Department.

This is where the solar farm is today. We have at the historical society a collection of arrowheads found at this site by Merrill Stevens.

In those days a plow was drawn by horse or oxen. The plowman walked behind the draft animal, holding the wooden handles of the plow. From this vantage point and speed, the plowman would notice an arrowhead as it was turned over, stop the team, and bend over to put it in his pocket. We have his collection of arrowheads at the historical society. Some arrowheads from his collection date back 8,000 years.

Archaeologists have documented arrowheads and other finds from this site. For thousands of years, this area was a camping ground for Native Americans travelling to the fishing grounds in Bellows Falls. They came from northern New York, Canada, New Hampshire, and Maine. Many of these arrowheads are made of a stone that does not exist here.

Burl

Burl is another natural wonder. It was in the antiques business where I learned about Native American burl bowls and dippers. They could be worth thousands of dollars in the 1980s. Burl is a growth or wart on a tree, usually maple, ash, or cherry. Its grain remains unequalled. Again, there were a few Vermonters who recognized these objects needed to be saved.

This week's old saying. "Frankly, Scarlet, I don't give a damn."

New biography chronicles Bellows Falls man's Army career

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. – A recent book chronicles the life of Ralph V. Little and his wife, the former Eleanor Baraby, both of Bellows Falls. "Three Cold Wars: A Vermont Citizen-Soldier's Life in the Infantry," is authored by his son R.V. Little Jr., himself a career intelligence and infantry officer. The book reveals a man who rose from the Great Depression to experience combat and unheralded Cold War service. Intended for family, the story evolved into a military history of a valorous man and untold combat. Details are enhanced by the writer's background, extensive archives, and battlefield research assisted by four Italian museums.

Half the content follows the development of a hometown private in Company E, 172nd Infantry Regiment of the Vermont National Guard, through development into an infantry officer, and on to World War II combat. The reader accompanies then-Lt. Little through all aspects of service, and sees how things happen – the training, personal life, movement to combat, engagement, recovery, separations, and even the paperwork battle. The format repeats for subsequent death-defying combat in Korea. Throughout are either hitherto unreported battles, or new details on the initial 1950 Chinese attack in Korea. The combat and occupation duties impress how his third war – the Cold War – took form from the eyes of a player. As a captain, Little served as grand marshal of the 1951 Bellows Falls Memorial Day Parade.

The book includes weapons and manpower charts, maps covering all the action, and troop lists depicting the players. Family and military photos appear with the pertinent event. Both military and general readers will be fascinated by text that identifies the exact en-

Joyce C. Wilkins, 1945-2024

LUDLOW, Vt. – Joyce Caroline Wilkins passed away on Oct. 2, 2024. Joyce was born on Feb. 20, 1945, in Colchester, Vt., to Villa and Richard Wells.

She married Albert Wilkins on Oct. 17, 1959. Joyce and Albert had four children: Chuck, Chris, Peggy, and Kelly.

Joyce made her home in Ludlow, where she raised her children while working at Valentis Restaurant, the Jewell Brook Woolen Mills along with Albert, and at Dartmouth Woolen in Claremont, N.H. She loved to read her romance novels, and was a huge fan of the soap operas on TV in her younger days. She spent many a night driving to local bingo parlors.

Joyce was a loving and caring mother, often frustrated by her children and their antics. Mom always took great interest in what you were doing in your life. She was fiercely protective of all she loved and cared for, and woe to any that felt her wrath; Mom was known to swing a mean broom handle at the boys.

For many years, Joyce and Albert would spend the winters in Florida; this was something she always looked forward to.

Joyce's greatest joy came from all of her grandchildren, great-grandchildren, and great-great-grandchildren, they always received her biggest smiles, and she loved them all.

Her husband Albert, her parents Villa and Richard Wells, her brothers Richard and Elton Wells, and her son Charles Wilkins predeceased Joyce.

Joyce is survived by her sisters Darlene (Brian) Haynes and Mary (Dan-

A graveside service and Celebration of Life for Joyce will be held Oct. 17, 2024, Joyce and Albert's 65th wedding anniversary. The graveside service will be at 12:30 p.m., at Ludlow Cemetery, and the potluck Celebration of Life at 2 p.m., at Jackson Gore Inn.

At the young age of 6, Edris could be found participating in the Ludlow Baptist Church choir. As a woman of faith, she maintained a nightly prayer list for those in need, which varied in length but remained a consistent part of her routine. Edris treated

Frances Webb, 1935-2024

CHESTER, Vt. – Frances Webb, 89, passed away peacefully at home on Sept. 30, 2024. She was born Frances Ahmann on April 9, 1935, on a small farm in Hartsburg, Mo., with three siblings. Sadly, both parents, Raymond and Martha Ahmann, were lost to cancer when Frances was just 13.

She graduated from a local junior college and moved to St. Louis, where she worked for Braniff Airlines. They had two sons and moved to Brookfield, Conn., where they enjoyed the beauty of Candlewood Lake, swimming, and waterskiing. The family would often travel to southern Vermont on winter weekends to ski, and so after a divorce, Frances took her two sons and moved to Chester, Vt.

Frances worked for several years at the well-known Chester Inn, playing tennis and skiing with the boys. She eventually started her own successful business, Cuddly Critters, on Main Street in Ludlow, and ran it for 20 years. Along the way she developed an interest in hand drumming, and astronomy through the Chester-based SoVerA group.

After retirement, she became more involved with the Fletcher Farm Community Garden in Ludlow, and tended two plots there for many years. A music lover, she liked attending the summer music concert series in Chester and surrounding towns, and occasionally well-known names like B.B. King, Tina Turner, and most recently, Marty Stuart.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Pursuant to Executive Order 11988 (Floodplain Management) and Federal Emergency Management Agency's (FEMA) implementing regulations at Title 44 of the Code of Federal Regulations Part 9, FEMA hereby provides final notice of its decision to provide Hazard Mitigation Grant Program funding for an action located in a floodplain. Funding would be provided through Vermont Emergency Management to the Town of Chester to stabilize the river embankment along two sections of VT Route 35.

The action is located along VT Route 35 in Chester, VT. The actions which would affect the floodplain consist of the construction of two culvert outfalls and the stabilization of two sections of the embankment between the roadway and the South Branch Williams River. Culvert outfalls would convey stormwater from the west side of the road into the river through 2-foot-diameter culverts, and would include 10-foot by 12-foot stone splash aprons. Each section of stabilized embankments would be filled with stone along 220 linear feet of the riverbank. Stone fill would be planted with live stakes of native vegetation.

The project is within a mapped special flood hazard area. The action is expected to strengthen the integrity of the embankments, which would reduce, but not eliminate, the flood risks to the embankment and roadway. The project is also expected to have minor beneficial effects on the natural functions of the floodplain by slowing floodwater and improving the quality of the habitat for wildlife. A map of the area of available upon request.

The project must be in a floodplain because the riverbank and culvert outfalls are functionally dependent on their location within the floodplain. The "No Action" alternative was considered and dismissed because it fails to reduce the risk of flood damage to the roadway and foregoes the opportunity to restore the beneficial functions of the floodplain. Grant conditions will also require compliance with all federal, state and local laws, including coordination with the local floodplain administrator.

Map requests and comments about this project and potential floodplain impacts should be submitted within 15 days of the date of this publication to:

Dear Editor,

As we enter the last weeks of this election cycle, it is important to recognize the characteristics that are most critical in a candidate - integrity, honesty, transparency, and a genuine desire to be sensitive to and to understand the needs of the people of Vermont. There can be no ulterior or self-serving motives which would affect how that person votes on issues, no matter that person's personal beliefs or religious affiliations, and above all, they should be immune from the influences of outside lobbyists.

served as a Windsor-6 representative prior to that. Joe as the Hartford town treasurer and a proven community leader, with extensive business management experience, who is dedicated to a Windsor County where everyone can thrive.

All three have a vision for moving us forward in the 21st century, to be sure that Vermont remains a viable place for young people to live and start families, while also supporting the needs of older Vermonters, attracting new businesses for expanded employment opportunities, developing affordable housing options which will encourage growth, and being sure that everyone is treated with compassion and respect - they are the problem solvers and leaders that we need now. Please join me in supporting Alison, Becca, and Joe this year.

Mindy Fisher Solo Show at Canal Street Gallery —

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. — Canal Street Art Gallery presents the Mindy Fisher "Lost Creatures from the Atomic Volcano" show, open Oct. 18 – Dec. 14. Join the gallery for Third Friday Gallery Night, Oct. 18, in historic downtown Bellows Falls, Vt., from 5-7 p.m., for an opening reception for the artist. All gallery events are free and open to the public; for wheelchair accessibility, call 802-289-0104.

"Prepare to be entranced, dear viewer, as you venture into the colorful and hypnotic realms of 'Lost Creatures from the Atomic Volcano,'" says Fisher of the show. Canal Street Art Gallery invites the public to experience this brain-tingling collection of abstract paintings as the artist guides the viewer on a journey through a mysterious world of marvelous mayhem.

Fisher asks, "What would happen if an undiscovered megavolcano suddenly erupted, spewing uranium-poisoned lava and evaporating almost all life on earth? Without the interference of humankind and minimal traces of surviving technology, what would emerge from the radiated ashes?" Fisher imagines the astonishing possibilities with her super saturated gouache paints. A supporting cast of oil pastels, spray paint, and dye deliver surprises throughout the canvases. Abstract forms spontaneously evolve into a boundless array of plant life and alien-like creatures battling their way into existence. Oozing scenes depicting vast, unearthly landscapes and microscopic lenses. Visitors are encouraged to record their discoveries in the logbook, and to take home a lost creature from the unearthed pile of affordable sketches, or create their own at the public art-making station.

Fisher was born and raised in southern New Hampshire. In 1998, she moved to Chicago to study set design for theater at Columbia College. She lived in Chicago for 14 years, and focused on painting, cartooning, and exploring animation. She taught youth cartooning and sewing at Right Brained Studio in Oak Park, Ill. She now lives in Vermont, and works out of her studio in Bellows Falls. Fisher has shown work in Chicago, Ill.; Cincinnati, Ohio; Lafayette, La.; Portland, Ore.; Keene, N.H.; New York City; and Clifton Springs, N.Y.; as well as many towns in Vermont, and has sold work to collectors around the globe.

Canal Street Art Gallery is located at 23 Canal Street in historic downtown Bellows Falls, Vt. For more information about the Mindy Fisher "Lost Creatures from the Atomic Volcano" show, go to www.canalstreetartgallery.com, call Mike at 802-289-0104, or email artinfo@canalstreetartgallery.com.

Watercolors by Brad Dunbar at Project 9 Gallery

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. — The Rockingham Arts and Museum Project (RAMP) is pleased to exhibit watercolors created by local artist Brad Dunbar at Project Space 9 in Bellows Falls. The work captures still lifes, landscapes, and birds.

Dunbar, a native Vermonter, was raised in Springfield, and his education in the public school system introduced him to ceramics, and sketching and charcoal drawing later in college.

In the 1970s he was able to study with Les Sheehan in Saxtons River, and after retirement he has had more time to explore the watercolor medium and, in his words, has "always preferred the appearance of watercolor and the relationship between paper and pigment."

The Project 9 Gallery space is a public gallery in the lobby of the Exner Block, located at 9 Canal Street in downtown Bellows Falls.

An opening is planned for Friday, Oct. 18, from 5-7 p.m. The exhibit will run Oct. 18 – Dec. 31. The public is encouraged to attend.

Project Space 9 is wheelchair accessible; call in advance to make arrangements. For more information, please contact RAMP at 802-463-3252, or ramp@sover.net.

RAMP acknowledges the Vermont Arts Council, The National Endowment for the Arts, Chroma, The Windham Foundation, and Stewart Property Management for helping to support its mission.

Canal Street Art Gallery grows with eight artist studios

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. — Canal Street Art Gallery presents The Working Artist Program, providing local artists with a self-curated exhibition and work space within a gallery setting. The gallery is pleased to announce the expansion of this program from its current number of three artists, to a total number of eight artist studios. The program offers visitors a unique and personal experience by introducing them directly to artists and their artworks. Participating artists have the opportunity to provide the community with free public events and private talks, lectures, demonstrations, and classes.

The eight studios comprising the Working Artist Program range in size from 28 square feet to 77 square feet, each with 12-24 linear feet of wall space. Artists provide their own studio furniture, tools, and supplies. This makes for a range of affordable monthly exhibition fees, all with flexible predetermined lengths of time.

Customers may purchase any artwork in the gallery during open hours. Artists processing their own sales pay no commission to the gallery.

Beginning Nov. 15, the gallery will be open to the public Tuesday-Saturday, 10 a.m. – 6 p.m.; Sunday, 11 a.m. – 5 p.m.; Bellows Falls Third Friday Nights, 6-8 p.m.; and Vermont Open Studio Weekends in the spring and fall. Working artists will staff the gallery each with publicized hours.

Windham Harvest Supper and Square Dance

WINDHAM, Vt. — Windham's annual Harvest Supper and Square Dance returns for the first time since the Covid shutdowns. The feast begins on Saturday, Oct. 26, at 4 p.m., at the historic Windham Meeting House, 26 Harington Road, Windham, Vt., on the corner of Windham Hill Road. Look for the tall white steeple.

The traditional dinner is hosted and prepared by the Windham Community Organization (WCO). We will be serving ham, butternut squash, baked beans, scalloped potatoes (plus a gluten-free version), a vegetarian Mexican cornbread casserole, salad, sweet breads, rolls, and assorted homemade pies and desserts. The cost is discounted for children 12 and under, with a family rate available.

After dessert, Sally Newton will be calling the moves for an incredibly lively square dance.

She will be accompanied by talented local musicians, many of whom are her relatives. Newton is excellent at explaining the dance moves and creating a fun atmosphere, so don't be bashful. Donations are appreciated for our musicians and for square dance only. All proceeds benefit Windham area residents through WCO. Come on out for the last big fling before winter.

Raku pottery workshop through the VAULT

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. – Gallery at the VAULT is excited to offer a raku pottery workshop with Andrew Berends on two consecutive Saturdays, Nov. 2 and Nov. 9, from 1-5 p.m. each day. Register by Saturday, Oct. 26.

Berends will be teaching the Japanese firing technique known as raku. Raku is a 16th-century technique developed in Japan for making tea ceremony ware. It has been developed in this country to produce really interesting pottery. The firings take about an hour, and you get a finished piece at the end. Raku is a technique where pots are fired to 1,840 degrees, pulled out of the hot kiln, and manipulated with sawdust and water to change the look of the glazes. The glazes can be metallic, and/or have a crackle effect. We will also fire pots with a technique known as “horsehair” raku, which creates designs on the clay.

The class will include wheel throwing, slab making, as well as extruding instruction. The first day will include making all types of clay work, and the second day will be glazing and firing all the pots in the raku tradition. Emphasis will be on being creative, and learning the basics of pottery, including making the work, glazing, as well as firing. The class is geared towards teens through adults, and limited to five students.

Berends has been a master potter for over 30 years, with a Bachelor of Fine Arts from the New York State College of Ceramics at Alfred University, as well as a Master of Fine Arts from Montana State University. Upon moving to Vermont in 1988, he became a professional production/art potter, and has exhibited internationally, as well as being represented by over 180 galleries nationally.

The cost of the workshop is discounted for gallery members, and includes 25 pounds of clay, glazes, and firing costs in a gas-fired kiln. Wear old clothing, and bring pottery tools if you have them. Directions to Andrew’s studio in Springfield will be given at registration.

Gallery at the VAULT is located at 68 Main Street in Springfield. For more information, call 802-885-7111, email galleryvault@vermontel.net, visit www.galleryvault.org, or stop by the gallery. Gallery at the VAULT is handicap accessible.

Play Every Town comes to Springfield

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. – On Sunday, Oct. 20, at 3 p.m., composer and pianist David Feurzeig will play at the First Congregational Church of Springfield, 77 Main Street, as part of his Play Every Town series of concerts.

In May 2022, Feurzeig embarked on Play Every Town, 252 free concerts in each of Vermont’s 252 towns, to confront climate change through the power of community and music. With this project, Feurzeig will become the first musician to perform in every Vermont municipality. He is traveling in his solar-charged electric vehicle, offering free concerts to bring attention to the interrelated issues of climate and community.

“I want to support Vermont’s local communities with live performance in village centers and downtowns, while fulfilling UVM’s mission to serve as a resource for the whole state,” says Feurzeig, a professor of music at UVM.

Each program is locally tailored. In Springfield, Feurzeig will play music by the child Mozart from 1761, the year Springfield was chartered, and his beloved variations on “Tinkle Twinkle” from the year the Congregational Church was founded, while a selection of Chopin mazurkas from 1833 mark the year the current church building was completed. In 1954, U.S. Sen. Ralph Flanders of Springfield famously asked Joseph McCarthy, “Have you no decency?” In honor of this signal moment in turning the tide of McCarthyism, Feurzeig will play Errol Garner’s 1954 classic “Misty.”

Springfield’s Kyle Washburn, a former student of Feurzeig at UVM, will join him for a rendition of Bach’s “Jesu Joy of Man’s Desiring,” while Chloé Husser will sing Bill Withers’ “Lean On Me,” released in 1972, the year the church’s Yamaha grand was manufactured. Like every concert in the project, this one will include its own unique sonata by Domenico Scarlatti, “Sonata no. 66,” for this 66th concert in the project.

Admission is free, with voluntary donations going to the Black River Action Team for their ongoing river cleanup work and work on flood resilience and promoting the planting of lots of native shrubs, trees, grasses, and flowering plants to help grow the soil so it can better absorb storm water. The bonus is all the shade and cooling of the microclimate wherever the vegetation is planted, replacing hard, hot surfaces where feasible.

Follow Feurzeig on his journey on Instagram, find up-to-date events for your town via Facebook, or visit the website at www.playeverytown.com.

Alasdair Fraser & Natalie Haas, and San Miguel Fraser

PUTNEY, Vt. – Next Stage Arts Project and Twilight Music present an evening of traditional and contemporary Scottish and fiddle music by duos Alasdair Fraser & Natalie Haas, and San Miguel Fraser (Galen Fraser and Maria San Miguel) on Sunday, Oct. 20, at 7 p.m., at Next Stage.

The musical partnership between consummate performer Alasdair Fraser, “the Michael Jordan of Scottish fiddling,” and brilliant Californian cellist Natalie Haas spans the full spectrum between intimate chamber music and ecstatic dance energy. Over the last 16 years of creating a buzz at festivals and concert halls across the world, they have truly set the standard for fiddle and cello in traditional music. This seemingly unlikely pairing of instruments is the fulfillment of a longstanding musical dream for Fraser. His search eventually led him to find a cellist who could help return the cello to its historical role at the rhythmic heart of Scottish dance music, where it stood for hundreds of years before being relegated to the orchestra. Fraser and Haas blend a profound understanding of the Scottish tradition with cutting-edge string explorations. In addition to performing, they both have motivated generations of string players through their teaching at fiddle camps across the globe.

Fraser has a concert and recording career spanning over 30 years. Haas has performed and recorded with a who’s who of the fiddle world, including Mark O’Connor, Natalie MacMaster, Irish supergroups Solas and Altan, Liz Carroll, Dirk Powell, Brittany Haas, Darol Anger, Jeremy Kittel, Hanneke Cassel, Laura Cortese, and many more.

San Miguel Fraser is a project bringing together Galen Fraser, a Berklee graduate and son of Alasdair Fraser, and Maria San Miguel, a native of Oviedo Conservatory with deep family roots in the traditions of her homeland. Together, they combine dynamic fiddling and string arrangements with the soaring, life-celebrating singing of San Miguel and the exciting, oh-so-sensitive cittern accompaniment of Galen. Surprises abound in this project, with fresh compositions and startlingly touching and deeply thoughtful arrangements. San Miguel Fraser has performed at Celtic Connections, Festival de Ortigueira, Bellingham Celtic Festival, Bolao Folk, and at many other venues around the world.

Next Stage is located at 15 Kimball Hill in downtown Putney, Vt. Tickets are discounted in advance at www.nextstagearts.org; there is also a livestream option. For information, call 802-387-0102. Next Stage will provide a beer, wine, and cocktail cash bar.

Vermont Film Festival returns with “Funny Farm”

S. LONDONDERRY, Vt. – Last winter, the Vermont Film Festival began with a speaker from the Vermont Humanities Council, and the showing of three films.

This fall, the celebration continues with three more films, two filmed in Vermont and one purported to take place there.

First up, on Oct. 24, is “Funny Farm,” filmed in Townsend and Grafton, Vt. Chevy Chase stars in this comedy about a couple who swap city life for the country, but their picturesque new hometown and country life turn out to be more than a little bit different from what they were expecting.

“Funny Farm” will be followed, on Nov. 14, by “Where the Rivers Flow North,” and on Dec. 12, by “White Christmas,” with Bing Crosby crooning the title tune.

All films will be shown at the South Londonderry Depot, on Route 100, at 7 p.m. There will be no cost to attend; donations will be accepted and shared between the three sponsoring organizations, a consortium of the Friends of the West River Trail and the historical societies of Londonderry and Weston.

Fall home maintenance tips

REGION – Fall is here, and you know what that means – it's time to tackle those fall home maintenance tasks before winter hits. Checking the interior and exterior of your home can help you get ready for the changes in weather that will come, and help you discover any opportunities for home improvements.

Seasonal home maintenance can help keep your house in good order as the seasons change. Plus, it's important to make sure that features like a fireplace or heating system are ready to operate safely as colder temperatures get ready to set in.

Outdoor fall home maintenance

Start by cleaning out your gutters and downspouts to make sure they are free of leaves and other debris, to avoid damage caused by clogged gutters. If you want to make this task easier each year, you can put a mesh cover on your gutters once they are clean to keep leaves from falling back in.

It's also a good idea to get a roof inspection in the fall, before snow falls. Check your roof for missing or loose shingles, as snow and ice could cause water damage as they melt. While you're up there, make sure the metal flashing around any vents and/or chimneys aren't damaged. If you think there may be a potential leak, an inspector can help identify any issues.

You will also want to check your exterior walls and foundation for any cracks or gaps, as these could be places for small animals to burrow into your home. Gaps or cracks can also be areas for water and air to get into your home, so be sure to fix any bad spots before winter begins.

Indoor fall home main-

When was the last time you changed your furnace filter? If you don't remember, now is a great time to put in a new one. You should also consider having a professional come in to inspect your heating system, to make sure it runs at its peak performance all season long.

Don't forget about your fireplace. Make sure your chimney flue is clear, and that the overall fireplace is clean. A chimney sweep can help check for buildup in the chimney, as well as any damage that may need to be fixed.

While you're doing your

fall home maintenance, be sure to test your smoke and carbon monoxide detectors. Making sure these work and have new batteries can help you keep your family and your home safe.

Once you've completed your fall home maintenance tasks, be sure to sit back and relax, because you've earned it. If you did find any major home repairs you need to make this fall, give me a call to talk about your financing options.

IDC days are a fond memory in our rear-view mirrors, and the December holidays are a bit down the road ahead. Yet, here is an opportunity to check off a gift or two while supporting the 2025 Independence Day Celebrations at the same time.

Back by popular demand, the Brownsville Independence Day Celebrations committee is, once again, offering fresh evergreen holiday wreaths and decorations as a fundraising effort for the 2025 IDC event. And the prices, which include shipping to your doorstep or to that of your gift recipient, remain the same as last year.

Go to www.giftitforward.com and use the Brownsville IDC code BROWNSVT001 to see the beautiful wreaths, swags, and tabletop centerpieces/trees available. You can now access products with this new flip booklet at www.heyzine.com/flip-book/25f2e8ba69.html#page/1.

Button Up Vermont prepares homes for winter —

REGION – The best time to weatherize your home for a warm, comfortable, and more affordable winter is today. That’s the message from dozens of partners involved with the annual Button Up Vermont campaign, which launched on Oct. 1. Homes that have needed repairs to “button up” can now get up to an additional $15,000 through a new home repair program that prepares homes to be weatherized.

Button Up Vermont encourages Vermonters to get their homes ready for winter with rebates and resources that make “buttoning up” any home more accessible and affordable. This year, the campaign launches alongside a new home repair offer to address underlying issues in a home that need to be fixed before weatherization can happen. Up to $15,000 for improvements is available to homeowners through the new home repair program.

The home repair program is available to low- or moderate-income homeowners planning to weatherize. All repair projects must be deemed necessary as part of a planned weatherization project in a home, including manufactured homes. Homes served by Burlington Electric or Vermont Gas Systems are not eligible for the home repair offer.

Many home repairs are eligible, like roof repair, ventilation and ductwork, asbestos/vermiculite remediation, window repair/replacement, foundation repair, plumbing, siding/sheathing, and more. Any contractor can install or complete home repair measures, including members of the Efficiency Excellence Network of independent contractors, a list of whom can be found at www.encyvermont.com/find-contractor-retailer.

For full details, see www.encyvermont.com/rebates/list/home-repair.

After repairs, the next step to “button up” a home is a weatherization project. Efficiency Vermont’s Home Performance with Energy Star rebate offers 75% of project costs back, up to $9,500. Vermont Gas Systems also offers weatherization rebates. Income-eligible households can also get free weatherization from the state’s Weatherization Assistance Programs, which can be found at www.dcf.vermont.gov/benefits/weatherization.

Telltale signs a home has opportunities to button up include drafts even when the heat is on (a sign that cold air is leaking in and heat is leaking out), snow melting unevenly on a roof (indicating an attic in need of air sealing and insulation), and icicles or ice dams forming on a rooftop from escaping heat.

“Buttoning up is one of the best ways to make a home more comfortable year-round – and making essential home repairs is a great first step,” said Peter Walke, Efficiency Vermont’s managing director. “Once a home is ready, air sealing and insulating as part of a weatherization project means a warmer home that uses less energy – and lower energy bills for years to come.”

Vermonters can join in and Button Up this fall in several ways.

Attend a Button Up event in your community. Community events can be found at www.buttonupvermont.org/events. Learn about reducing heat loss and trimming energy bills through energy fairs, webinars, and other opportunities. No events in your area? Sign up to host one at <https://www.buttonupvermont.org/partners>.

Not sure where to start? Try a free virtual home energy visit. An Efficiency Vermont energy expert can assess your home by video chat, and give you a personalized list of projects and improvements. Vermont Gas customers may also qualify for an energy assessment. To learn more, visit www.encyvermont.com/rebates/list/home-energy-visit.

Complete three DIY weatherization projects and get $100 back at www.encyvermont.com/rebates/list/diy-weatherization. These do-it-yourself weatherization projects may not reduce your heating bills, but they can limit drafts and make your home more comfortable. Follow the DIY Weatherization Guide at www.encyvermont.com/blog/how-to/9-diy-projects-to-help-you-keep-warm-this-winter to start your buttoning up efforts.

As part of this year’s Button Up efforts, Efficiency Vermont is hosting “Weatherization Wednesday” webinars, offering weatherization tips and information about climate-friendly heating with heat pumps. Join a “Weatherization 101” webinar on Oct. 23, at 12 p.m., and/or join a “Heat Pumps 101” webinar on Oct. 30, at 12 p.m. Learn more and register at www.buttonupvermont.org.

Japanese knotweed, a common invasive plant.

CAVENDISH, Vt. – When Japanese knotweed is mentioned, people often cringe, and tell tales of how it’s taken over parts of their yard and is impossible to kill. However, it’s long been part of traditional medicine in Asia for centuries, as a treatment for such ailments as inflammation, infections, skin burns, and, most recently, Lyme disease.

While knotweed was brought to the Americas in the 1800s as an ornamental plant, other plants that had medicinal properties were brought to the Americas by the colonists. In addition, the “seed trade” was big business, with middle- and upper-class landowners buying plants from around the world to study in their back yards.

On Saturday, Oct. 26, the Cavendish Historical Society (CHS) will host their third workshop on plants, this time focusing on the invasives. This talk will feature garlic mustard, plantain, barberry, eucalyptus, ragweed, and other plants that were introduced or traveled with settlers. We’ll be exploring plants that can do damage to existing ecosystems, yet also offer medicine.

The workshop will take place at the Cavendish Town Library, 573 Main Street, Proctorsville, starting at 2 p.m. Dr. Charis Boke, a member of the Dartmouth College faculty in anthropology, will once again be speaking. Boke is currently writing “Poison, Power, and Possibility: Building Relations with Medicinal Plants,” which will explore the poetics, politics, and practices of contemporary herbalists in North America, leaning on ethnographic research, botanical histories, and lived experience to examine what it takes to remedy what ails us. Boke was involved in helping with the Benjamin Rush Medicinal Garden at the Mutter Museum in Philadelphia.

HOME Sweet HOME

Knowledge and preparation are key for first-time homebuyers —

REGION – Being a first-time homebuyer doesn't have to be an overwhelming experience. "A lot of clients come in with all these assumptions," said Michael Douthwaite, a mortgage loan officer with Zillow Home Loans.

"But it's not that complicated, especially if you have that educational moment on just what steps to expect," Douthwaite advises buyers to ask a lot of questions, and not to hesitate to request more information if something isn't clear.

An important factor to keep in mind when preparing to buy a home is that you cannot finance the down payment. Douthwaite explained, "Unless it's coming from a secured loan like a home equity loan, you can't take out a loan for the down payment. You can't use a credit card, or anything like that."

The exception is borrowing money from a 401(k), but Douthwaite warns that there are "lots of rules to follow, and consequences for tapping those funds... be sure to talk to a tax advisor."

Additionally, there are several types of low-interest or forgivable loans and grants that are available for qualified first-time buyers.

One of the biggest challenges when purchasing a new home can be saving enough for a down payment. Twenty percent of the purchase price has long been considered the average down payment, but according to the National Association of Realtors (NAR), the median down payment among homebuyers in 2023 was 15%. However, the lower the down payment, the higher the loan amount, meaning higher monthly payments, and more interest paid over the course of the loan.

Douthwaite suggests buyers will want to get preapproved for a mortgage loan prior to starting their search. In competitive markets, preapproval is especially important. "We recommend having a conversation with financing, either at or before the first viewing, or right after the first viewing," noted Douthwaite.

Buyers can become discouraged if they don't find a home quickly, or if they miss out on a home they wanted, but Douthwaite wants to remind buyers that many lender preapprovals are good for 90 days. "You don't have to reapply again during that period. If one home doesn't work out, you have our blessings to hit the ground running for the next one."

Part of the financial review process is to calculate an affordable monthly mortgage payment. Experts advise that a mortgage payment should be no more than one-third of your income. Utilizing online tools to estimate monthly costs or talking to a lending professional will help first-time buyers create a personalized budget. One such tool is BuyAbility, created by Zillow Home Loans to offer buyers an accurate, personalized estimate of the home price and monthly payments.

Data provided by Zillow Group.

Why it may be better to buy a home in the fall

REGION – Goodbye summer, and goodbye sizzling home prices. As the peak of summer homebuying reaches its end, fall homebuyers could expect to see lower home prices as we settle into autumn. If you've been waiting to buy, now could be the time to act.

A recent report from www.realtor.com found that, nationally, the best time to buy a home is during the first few weeks of October. For the first time since 2020, the Federal Reserve lowered interest rates by 0.50%, and mortgage rates may soon fall too. As mortgage rates trend down, we may see homebuyers who've been on the sidelines flooding the market. Not to mention, homeowners who have been waiting to trade up jump into the buying game once rates get equal to or below what they are currently paying on interest.

Another benefit of fall homebuying could be falling home prices. Homes that have been sitting on the market all summer may experience price reductions in the fall. With winter creeping up, sellers are more motivated to negotiate if their home has been listed for a while.

Ultimately, the most important thing that makes fall a good time to buy a home is if doing so works for your budget. Knowing your mortgage options early on can help you make a stronger offer when the time comes. Contact me today to discuss your needs.
