Londonderry approves North Village wastewater connections —

BY SHAWNTAE WEBB

The Vermont Journal

LONDONDERRY, Vt. — At their Dec. 15 meeting, the Londonderry Selectboard approved the village wastewater committee connection recommendations for the North Village. The properties start with main connections on North Main Street, and thereafter, spaces will be filled starting from the top of the list and working to the bottom as remaining capacity is available within the system.

The list includes properties on Middletown Road, Edge Hill Road, then additional connections on Middletown and Edge Hill roads, Hells Peak Road, High Street, and Pond Street. Gary Hedman, chair of the village wastewater committee, reported that the list is prioritized to best benefit the town, with cost-effectiveness in mind as well. Complete addresses can be found on Page 22 of the meeting packet.

Town administrator Aileen Tulloch announced that none of the three Community Development Block Grant Disaster Recovery (CDBG-DR) applications were approved for funding.

The board then needed to determine if the town highway department would take on the snow removal of the parks, in addition to the town hall and town office buildings. Board member Taylor Prouty explained that there was previously a contract for the parks, which the town allowed to lapse. Furthermore, after the renovations and upgrades at the town office, snow removal from that lot is more complex than it had previously been.

Road foreman Josh Dryden confirmed that the highway department could plow the town buildings, after prioritizing the roads. Dryden added that they could plow the parks, but they do not have a sander on the small pickup truck, so the lots could become slippery, and therefore a liability.

Parks and recreation director Liam Elio reported that the recreation department already voted to close the parks, and the gates have been closed for the season. Elio added that the parks can still be used, but the parking area is not currently being cleared or available.

The board determined that, since the parks are closed and the town does not have a way to ensure a safe lot, they would not remove snow from the parks.

Tulloch then proposed that each committee be responsible for properly posting and warning their own meetings. "I feel strongly that it is the responsibility of the committees themselves to abide by open meeting law...and to make sure their meetings are properly warned." She added that herself, town clerk Allison Marino, and treasurer Tina Labeau are the only three paid staff at the town office, and each have their own tasks that need to be done. "We don't have the capacity" to make sure everyone's agendas and minutes are posted properly.

She further expressed that, at times, the committees are not giving her enough time to perform the tasks, or that some of the information is not accurate and needs to be updated multiple times, and it has become a tedious task for her to continue.

Tulloch said agendas need to be posted at the Londonderry Post Office, South Londonderry Post Office, and town office, as well as on the town's website. She also felt that one person posting to all of the physical locations seems more consistent. Labeau added that the copy room is available for everyone to use, and she would be happy to make copies.

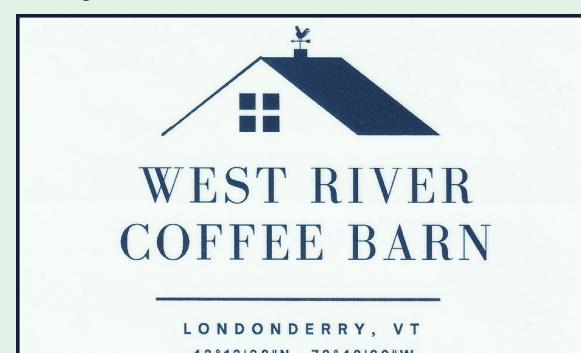

Board member Martha Dale recognized that these individuals are volunteering their time, and felt this task may be a big step for them to have to do. Prouty agreed in the sense that, "The harder we make it for people to volunteer, the less volunteerism will survive." Board Chair Tom Cavanagh reminded the board that open meeting laws fall on the committees, not the town.

The board agreed that if they were to hire another paid staff member in the future, assisting the town's committees might be a beneficial task to the town. They will use this feedback and information to deliberate on how to proceed with open meeting law posting requirements for all of the town committees.

Labeau had some final edits to make to the fiscal year 2027 budget, which will be discussed and approved at the next meeting on Monday, Jan. 5, at 6 p.m. Following, the board moved their next regularly scheduled meeting to Tuesday, Jan. 20, in observation of Martin Luther King Jr. Day.

More tax talk in Chester

BY NICK GIBERTI

The Vermont Journal

CHESTER, Vt. — Chester citizens once again came out on Wednesday, Dec. 17, to address the selectboard about a proposed 1% local options tax on rooms, meals, and on-premises alcohol sales, with the funds generated to be earmarked for use by the Chester Housing Commission, to fund necessary studies and other housing development-related projects. Recently, the town sent letters to business owners in Chester whose businesses would be required to collect the tax.

Prior to the discussion with citizens, Board Chair Lee Gustafson expressed that he would prefer to investigate all other possible sources of funding for the housing commission, such as the Cypress Mineral Funds and economic development fund. Gustafson requested that town manager Julie Hance bring to the board a list of available funds at their next meeting in January, which Hance agreed to do.

Chester resident Damon Tyler wondered if Hance could provide a list of businesses in Chester which are not required to charge the tax. Hance replied that, because Chester does not maintain a business registry, this would be "cumbersome for me to try to do." Tyler said that he would furnish Hance with a list of Chester businesses, saying he possessed a nearly comprehensive list, to which Hance was receptive.

Tyler also expressed some concerns about the proposed tax, including the fact that an extra 1% on top of the current tax rate of more than 9% on rooms, meals, and alcohol would bring the total tax rate to double digits, causing it to be perceived as significantly higher than surrounding areas which do not charge the tax. He also echoed a sentiment expressed by Stone Hearth Inn co-operator Conner Eklund at the previous meeting, saying he felt that the businesses which would have to charge the tax are less likely to benefit from increased housing for local workers than those the board is excluding from charging the tax — namely, retail establishments.

In response, board member Tim Roper explained the logic for restricting the tax to rooms, meals and alcohol, saying, "One of the benefits of keeping it to rooms and meals is it would bring in much of that revenue from out of state, from people who are visiting, versus a retail tax...which would hit everybody in town who shops here."

Resident Carl Henshaw, who also serves on the planning commission, said he is concerned that new housing will be "gobbled up by second homeowners," rather than by people who intend to be full-time residents of the town. Henshaw noted that 30% of Chester's houses are second homes, many of which are vacant for significant portions of the year.

Gustafson responded that there are also buildings which have sat vacant for other reasons, such as their owners' deaths, and wondered, "Is there any way that we as a town can encourage people to sell at a reasonable price that people can afford?" Gustafson acknowledged the necessity of new housing construction, but also observed that more housing is remaining on the market for longer, and that home prices are, as a result, decreasing, though they are still out of reach for most average homebuyers.

The board will continue the local options tax discussion in future meetings. The Chester Selectboard meets the first and third Wednesday of every month, at 6:30 p.m., at the Chester Town Hall.

Third generation owners of GMSH learn from the best

BY PAULA BENSON

The Vermont Journal

LUDLOW, Vt. – In March of 1985, Ann and Doug Rose took over the Green Mountain Sugar House (GMSH), located at 820 Vermont Route 100, from Ann's parents Marjorie and David Harlow. Ann recalled that she and Doug signed the papers while they were at the store, boiling sugar for maple syrup.

Ann and her siblings grew up working at the Sugar House, and Ann was running the gift shop for her parents by 1974, when she was 19 years old. "They both had other jobs," Ann explained with a shrug.

The Rose's store and sugar house has become a favorite destination for visitors to the Okemo Valley, as well as a local institution, and, as Doug said, "the only agricultural business left in Ludlow." Their customers return year after year for freshly tapped Vermont maple syrup, homemade maple candy treats, maple creemee ice cream, and lovingly curated Vermont products.

Over the past 40 years, Ann and Doug raised three children, and expanded both the scope and footprint of GMSH, which sits on the peaceful shores of Lake Rescue.

Now, at 70 years of age, Ann and Doug feel it is time to pass the business on to the third generation – their son Josh, his wife Jamie, and their three sons: 6-year-old

Smith, 3-year-old Vaughn, and Zeland, 18 months.

Josh grew up working "the woods" with his dad, meaning he learned firsthand how to maintain the more-than-180 tap lines owned and operated by GMSH. Josh still remembers the first time he asked his father to allow him to drill a tap.

"They were old gas tappers called Tanakas," Josh recalled. "I remember following Doug for a long time, and finally I asked, 'Do you mind if I drill a hole?'"

Doug asked Josh if he was sure he felt ready, and Josh said he was. "So, I picked a good spot, I drilled a nice hole, then I [realized] the drill was kind of heavy, so I went to hand it back to Doug... 'No, that's yours,' Doug said. "That's yours now."

"Summers at the lake, summers in the woods," Josh reminisced. He looks forward to his boys having the same memories of their childhood. Just like their father and grandfather, the Rose boys enjoy learning about and helping with the tapping process.

"I love it when Josh takes the boys to the woods," Jamie remarked. "Smith will come back and tell me, 'I fixed three lines this time, Mom, three lines!'"

It was three years ago when Josh became operations manager of the woods, allowing Doug to step away from that part of the process, which is more involved, and more technical, than one might imagine. The current technology used to track the tap lines works via an application accessed by cell phone or smart television, allowing the monitoring of lines without having to physically inspect each one. If there is a problem detected, the system will pinpoint the exact location, which is a huge labor and time saver.

The mountainous terrain of the two tapping locations in South Reading can be difficult to traverse, and the family has given names to different sections, such as Death Mountain, Upper Death Mountain, and The Lost Valley.

Josh and Jamie are preparing to step in as of January 2026, and will slowly transition into full ownership. "We're going to work for them on a part-time basis," Ann said.

The mechanics of managing such a large agricultural business are complicated, and Josh and Jamie will need more time for on-the-job training. For instance, the reverse osmosis process adopted by Ann's parents in the 1970s requires a machine that now only Doug knows how to operate.

Ann has developed the candy-making business completely on her own, so she will be sharing her secret recipes with Jamie beginning next year.

"There is no recipe book," Jamie said, laughing. "There is nothing written down, it's all word of mouth. But," she added with a sweet nod to her mother-in-law, "I will be learning from the best."

"When I met Josh," Jamie commented, "I knew I was marrying the Sugar House." However, Jamie also said that when the couple first met, there was "no retirement in sight for Ann and Doug, and they seemed like people who may never retire." Jamie feels a duty to maintain the traditions of quality and customer service that has been established at GMSH.

Ann said that once she and Doug are finally able to walk away, knowing they are leaving their business in capable and caring hands, they would like to travel. She relayed that her parents had visited all 50 U.S. states, and even though her father was a "true Vermonter" who loved winter sports like skiing and snowmobiling, "his most favorite state to visit was Hawaii. That's what we hope to do this coming year, take a trip to Hawaii."

ESBR shares updates —

LUDLOW, Vt. — The Expeditionary School at Black River (ESBR) started this year with 22 students, which was quite a jump in numbers. The school receives tuition money from the state for students from choice towns, such as Ludlow, Mount Holly, Weathersfield, and Grafton. Families of students from other towns pay tuition to attend, and have a variety of reasons for wanting to attend our unique small school in Ludlow.

Head of School Mike Kell continues to do a wonderful job of helping to grow and lead our school. His vast experience has been invaluable. The students have begun a student government, and several students attended a school fair presentation recently to assist Kell in sharing ESB's opportunities. There is even a parent group which has also started this year. Furthermore, please visit ESB's website at www.esblackriver.org, where you will meet the staff and see the new student local news show. This production takes a crew of students to write, direct, produce, act, and edit. It is well worth the watch.

Lastly, over the years we have had a number of students take part in Springfield's River Valley Technical Center (RVRTC) programs. This year, we have two students who are finishing their second year in the health science program and the criminal justice program. The students take classes in the morning at ESB, and then travel to RVTC in Springfield to take their programs. This partnership is another valuable educational opportunity for our ESB students. These seniors are both looking to pursue further education in those areas.

The board of directors continues to meet monthly, usually the second Thursday of each month, at 6 p.m., and visitors are welcome. If you have any questions, or would like to attend a meeting, please feel free to reach out to Board Chair Patrick Pullinen at ppullinen@esblackriver.org.

If you have questions, or would like more information for a student looking to attend ESB, please contact Kell at mkell@esblackriver.org.

OMS raises record amount at Ski and Snowboard Swap

LUDLOW, Vt. — The 2025 Okemo Mountain School (OMS) Ski and Snowboard Swap, which took place at the Okemo Mountain Resort from Nov. 21-23, raised over $40,000 for OMS, more than $2,500 over our previous record amount. The swap proceeds are used to help keep OMS' tuition as affordable as possible for all students. 2025 swap attendees found outstanding deals on new and used winter outdoor gear, including race and recreational skis, bindings, and boots, snowboards and snowboard equipment, winter clothing, helmets, goggles, gloves, snowshoes, and more.

"OMS gratefully acknowledges the many volunteers who generously donated their time, as well as the Okemo resort staff who went above and beyond their regular duties to support this event," said Mariel Meringolo, Head of School at OMS. "This swap plays a vital role in helping us keep OMS' tuition as affordable as possible, and its success would not have been possible without this incredible community effort. Our entire school community deeply appreciates everyone's hard work and support."

SEVCA welcomes new members to board of directors

WESTMINSTER, Vt. — Southeastern Vermont Community Action (SEVCA) is pleased to welcome the appointment of three new members to its board of directors: Gary Stroud, Mimi Yahn, and Jessica Ucci as the Head Start Policy Council representative for the board.

Their addition strengthens SEVCA's ongoing commitment to ensuring that its leadership reflects the perspectives and voices of the communities it serves.

As a tripartite board, SEVCA's governance structure includes representatives from the public, private, and client sectors, ensuring that the organization remains responsive, inclusive, and community driven. The new members are joining the client sector, which represents the interests of individuals and families with low incomes — the very people SEVCA exists to empower and support. And one is joining the private sector, which represents the communities that support our work.

"We are thrilled to welcome Jess, Gary, and Mimi to SEVCA's board," said Josh Davis, SEVCA's executive director. "Their expertise, insight, and dedication to community action will be invaluable as we continue our mission to eliminate poverty and create opportunities for all in southeastern Vermont."

Southeastern Vermont Community Action is a 60-year-old nonprofit serving Windham and Windsor counties by helping families overcome hardship and build stability. This past year, SEVCA supported 3,500 people in 2,000 households with more than 7,500 services. From housing and fuel assistance, to financial coaching, early childhood education, microbusiness support, tax prep, home repair, and weatherization, we are here to help create thriving communities.

If you're interested in learning more about SEVCA or its programs, visit www.sevca.org, call 802-722-4575, or email hello@sevca.org.

VTel donates $5,000 to local food pantries —

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. — VTel has donated $5,000 this December to 10 local food pantries across southern Vermont, supporting community food programs during the busy holiday season. The donation was distributed evenly among 10 organizations, with each food pantry receiving $500.

December's recipients include Black River Good Neighbor Services in Ludlow, Chester-Andover Family Center, Danby Town Office Food Bank, Grafton Community Church Food Pantry, Hartland Community Food Shelf, Our Place Community Food Center in Rockingham, Pawlet Community Church Food Pantry, Springfield Family Center, Wallingford Town Hall Food Cupboard, and Woodstock Community Food Shelf.

The donation reflects VTel's focus on supporting its local communities, and follows the company's annual free Thanksgiving dinner event, which served nearly 800 seniors in Springfield and Pawlet.

REMEMBERING OUR LOVED ONES This Holiday Season

To Our Community
Neighbors,

As 2025 comes to a close, we share our mission's core focus, "neighbors helping neighbors." Fighting hunger and poverty since 1964, Black River Good Neighbor Services continues on a daily basis to be an active community resource. For many, we are the initial point of contact when hardship strikes and folks are struggling to get back to their normal. We are here, this is what we do!

Serving the community in many ways, our priority and an overwhelming need includes food insecurity. Twice monthly we provide close to 100 bags of food to community residents, and serve free community meals, feeding more than 200 folks. While the meals are nourishing, and especially helpful for those who can't quite make ends meet, we have learned that many also come to make connections with friends and neighbors.

In keeping with those needs, our food shelf is a critical resource, and while recent significant increases have occurred, we consistently work hard to ensure that every family and individual receives a well-balanced, healthy amount of food. All of this occurs with grateful support from our community, and thrift store and furniture store sales.

Important to share is an amazing volunteer force, who provide critical assistance including community meals, memory cafes, rummage sales, Meals on Wheels deliveries, furniture and trash pickup, music group, Senior Planet, and service on the board of directors. So many community services!

Trusting in and valuing our work enables Black River Good Neighbor Services to effectively serve those needing help, and for that we are truly grateful. With appreciation and best holiday wishes to all of our community neighbors.

Sincerely,
Krey Kellington, Executive Director
Black River Good Neighbor Services

Dear Editor,

We are living in a time and a place where it is easier to blame our neighbor rather than work with them, to use drones to drop explosives rather than food, to look the other way rather than help. But that is not what we are called to do.

Our faiths remind us that "you shall love your neighbor as yourself" (Leviticus 19:18) and "you shall also love the stranger" (Deuteronomy 10:19). If a neighbor or a stranger has been turned into an enemy, which is happening all over the country and world, then we are told to "love your enemies, and pray for those who persecute you" (Matthew 5:44).

Imagine how much better this country and world would be if we could lead with love rather than hate? Love makes us pause when we feel wronged, to try to find the reason why, and maybe consider if we had any part in the problem. Love encourages us to be patient and to forgive. Love makes us work harder to find common ground, and to compromise. Love makes us speak with respect and kindness, even when we disagree. Love allows us to see from another person's perspective.

If the love bar is too high, maybe we could start by remembering some of Robert Fulghum's lessons in his iconic essay "All I ever needed to know I learned in Kindergarten." "Share everything. Play fair. Don't hit people. Put things back where you found them. Clean up your own mess. Don't take things that aren't yours. Say you are sorry when you hurt somebody."

We each have a part to play in making this country and world a more peaceful and cooperative place where everyone has at least the basics they need to survive. There are enough resources on this beautiful planet to support all who live on it. It begins by recognizing and respecting the dignity of each person, thinking of everyone as our neighbor despite our differences, and working towards peace and wholeness one neighborhood at a time.

Sincerely,
Rutland Area Interfaith Council

year, the program provided more than 5,000 free home-delivered meals.

HCRS Mobile Crisis holiday reminder —

SPRINGFIELD, Vt. — Health Care and Rehabilitation Services (HCRS), southeastern Vermont's nonprofit community mental health agency, is reminding community members that the holiday season can bring more than celebration. For many, it also brings pressure — packed schedules, family obligations, financial stress, and increased exposure to alcohol and other substances. Over time, that pressure can build, making the season feel heavy and harder to navigate.

As the holidays approach, HCRS is highlighting its Mobile Crisis program and an existing video series that shows what Mobile Crisis support actually looks like — grounded, compassionate, and available before mental health challenges or substance use begin to feel unmanageable.

"The holidays can create heavy expectations to hold everything together," said Mark Young, statewide director of Mobile Crisis at HCRS. "Mobile Crisis is here to help relieve some of that weight by offering calm, compassionate support when things start to feel like too much."

HCRS encourages community members to check in with themselves and with one another during the holidays, and to remember that support can be simple, immediate, and available, even during the busiest time of year.

Mobile Crisis services are available 24/7 by calling 988 or 800-622-4235. To learn more from HCRS' Mobile Crisis video series, visit www.tinyurl.com/h8m-c3rab.

Efficiency Vermont winter resources

REGION – As 2025 draws to a close, many Vermonters are facing uncertainty and rising costs. When budgets are tight, projects that improve comfort and reduce energy bills may feel out of reach. Recognizing that households and businesses are feeling stretched, Efficiency Vermont has gathered a collection of free resources, practical tools, and affordable projects that can help Vermonters begin to improve their homes and get more from their energy budget.

Do you want to understand what's driving your electricity costs? Try our electricity usage calculator to see how your energy bill adds up with your appliances, lighting, and other needs, and see where you can save.

Do you need to diagnose the cause of high energy bills? Call Efficiency Vermont's energy advisors to see how your home is using energy, understand what equipment could be wasting money, and learn about services and rebates that can help you reduce costs.

Looking for a deep dive into ways your home can save energy? Schedule a free virtual home energy visit, and take a virtual tour of your home with an Efficiency Vermont energy consultant. Get personalized advice for using less energy at home, plus a customized list of next steps tailored to your needs and priorities.

Get $100 back for a do-it-yourself (DIY) weatherization project. Use our $100 DIY weatherization rebate to get cash back for completing simple projects like air sealing windows or adding weather stripping.

Businesses, nonprofits, and other commercial operations can also take advantage of helpful resources and rebates, such as those listed below.

Free business energy consultations – Understand where your business is losing energy, and what you can do to fix it, through a business energy consultation. Our energy advisors can help you identify cost-effective opportunities, find efficient equipment, and connect you with our Efficiency Excellence Network of contractors.

Up to $25,000 in bonus rebates for custom projects – Businesses can double their incentive, up to $25,000, for custom projects tailored to an operation's specific needs.

These bonuses are available for businesses, nonprofits, farm operations, and institutions that complete projects by November 2026.

Increased incentives for preapproved lighting projects – Businesses that switch to energy-saving LED lamps can get up to 100% of the product costs covered when they replace existing linear fluorescent lamps. Agricultural businesses upgrading to LEDs in livestock or sugaring facilities can get up to 100% of project costs covered.

Efficiency Vermont's 2025 holiday gift guide also offers inspiration for sustainable, local, and fun holiday shopping. The guide has a collection of thoughtful gifts and experiences, including ways to donate previously used items, implement energy savings, give the gift of rebate-eligible appliances, and support local businesses.

Federal home energy tax credits expire at the end of December, but Efficiency Vermont's rebates and programs will remain available in 2026 and beyond. Whether you're just starting to think about energy efficiency, or you're ready to begin a project, visit www.efficiencyvermont.com/rebates to find ways to meet your energy goals.

TRORC receives grant to assist buyouts —

REGION – The Two Rivers-Ottauquechee Regional Commission (TRORC) has been awarded a $3 million grant from the Vermont Department of Housing and Community Development. These are disaster recovery funds that come through the state from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). The funds will be used to help towns as they buy out flood-damaged properties from the 2023 floods. Most of this work will be concentrated in Lamoille and Washington counties, but will also take place around the state where floods hit hard. Kevin Geiger, TRORC's chief planner, will lead this effort. Geiger was instrumental in managing HUD funds for the state after Tropical Storm Irene. Ann Karlene Kroll, the federal programs director at the department, expressed confidence in the regional planning commission, noting that, "We have worked together with TRORC a long time, and have a strong relationship with a history of successful outcomes."

As part of purchasing a site from an owner whose property was damaged, towns need to also ensure they are not unwittingly buying any soil contamination they will need to clean up. Sites with known or suspected contamination are called brownfields. TRORC has decades of managing brownfields assessment and remediation on sites. Where needed, these new HUD CDBG-DR funds will also support any cleanup that has to occur. Peter Gregory, TRORC's executive director, stated, "By looking at sites and doing any needed testing, we can help buyouts not get hung up because of concerns about what is in the ground. Devastated owners want to be able to move on."

For information on this grant, contact Geiger at 802-457-3188, Ext. 3003, or at kgeiger@trorc.org.

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. — Bellows Falls Woman's Club (BFWC) members brought holiday cheer to the residents of Sterling House and Morning Glory Manor, elder care facilities in the community, by presenting individualized gifts.

Adam Strauss returns to Next Stage

PUTNEY, Vt. — Next Stage Arts is thrilled to welcome back award-winning comedian and storyteller Adam Strauss for a special two-night engagement, featuring two of his acclaimed solo shows: "The Mushroom Cure" on Friday, Jan. 9; and "Before I Forget" on Saturday, Jan. 10.

Tickets and details are available at www.nextstagearts.org.

"The Mushroom Cure" is a hilarious and moving true story of psychedelics, obsessive-compulsive disorder (OCD), and finding hope. "The Mushroom Cure" follows Strauss' real-life attempt to treat his debilitating OCD with psychedelics. The New York Times praised it for "mining a great deal of laughter from disabling pain." The Chicago Tribune called it "arrestingly honest and howlingly funny." Bestselling author Michael Pollan described it as "brilliant, hilarious, and moving." Time Out New York named it a Critics' Pick, hailing it as "a true-life tour de force."

In "Before I Forget," Strauss takes audiences on a wildly inventive odyssey through memory, mortality, and meaning, tackling everything from ancient Greece to artificial intelligence, Alzheimer's to open relationships. It's a ferociously funny meditation on what it means to remember, what it means to forget, and the impossibility of getting life right. Warning: May contain mushrooms, existential dread, and trace amounts of hope.

Strauss is an award-winning comedian and storyteller whose work has been praised for its honesty, humor, and originality. He won the New York Fringe Festival's Overall Excellence Award for Solo Performance, the Eddy Award for Best Solo Show in San Francisco, and the Leffe Beer Craft Your Character Storytelling Competition. Strauss performs regularly at many of New York City's top comedy clubs.

"Story Songs of the 70s" at BFOH

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt. — Tom DiMenna leads "Story Songs of the 70s," a night of unforgettable storytelling, and a thoughtful tribute to Gordon Lightfoot, Harry Chapin, and Cat Stevens, channeling the spirit of the 1970s one song at a time, on Saturday, Jan. 17, at the Bellows Falls Opera House. Doors open at 6:30 p.m., and the show begins at 7:30 p.m. Backed by his talented accompanists, he moves easily between the haunting pull of "Wreck of the Edmund Fitzgerald," the quiet ache in "Father and Son," and the soft glow of "Moonshadow."

"Story Songs of the 70s" is a seasonal concert series by Maine-based singer-songwriter DiMenna, and features songs by three legendary songwriters of the vinyl era: Gordon Lightfoot, Cat Stevens, and Harry Chapin.

This folk-rock act blends lush vocals, intricate guitar playing, and iconic story songs into a sound that's both intimate and powerful. While rooted in the folk tradition, the rotating set list has toe-tapping rhythms, sing-along choruses, and a fully amplified presence that has charmed audiences all over New England. It's a carefully crafted presentation of the timeless songs that shaped a generation performed with heart, humor, and resonance.

In addition, DiMenna is now officially endorsed by Gibson Guitars and John Pearse Strings, legendary names in acoustic tone.

For more information on DiMenna, visit www.tomdimennamusic.com. To purchase tickets, visit www.bellowsfallsoperahouse.com/special-events.

Rotary brings Christmas spirit to Kurn Hattin —

WESTMINSTER, Vt. — Members of the Rotary Club of Springfield, Vt., and the Bellows Falls Rotary Club helped bring the spirit of Christmas to the children of Kurn Hattin Homes for Children in Westminster, Vt., on Dec. 17.

Founded in 1894, Kurn Hattin is a year-round charitable residential and day program serving children ages 5-15 from across the Northeast. For more than two decades, local Rotary Clubs have continued a cherished tradition of collecting donations and purchasing individual gifts for each child — often the only Christmas

Following the gift distribution, Rotary members joined children and staff for pizza in each cottage, sharing an evening of warmth, celebration, and community.

Tap ensemble Subject:Matter

PUTNEY, Vt. — Next Stage Arts is thrilled to welcome acclaimed Boston-based tap dance ensemble Subject:Matter as artists-in-residence this January, featuring two exciting public events that invite the community to engage with the company's creative process through participation and performance.

On Tuesday, Jan. 6, at 7 p.m., Subject:Matter hosts a community tap jam at Next Stage Arts, 15 Kimball Hill in Putney, Vt. This free, open-level event invites dancers and musicians of all backgrounds to step into the rhythm and explore tap dance in a relaxed, class-style jam with live music. Whether you're new to tap, or looking to sharpen your skills, all are welcome to learn, play, and move at their own pace. Musicians are encouraged to bring their instruments and join the improvisation. RSVP at www.nextstagearts.org.

The residency culminates in a performance on Sunday, Jan. 11, at 2 p.m. (doors open at 1:15 p.m.), as Subject:Matter shares a dynamic concert showcasing the work developed during their time at Next Stage. The program blends brand-new material with selections from the company's first two celebrated albums, "With Far Hand" and "Songbook," offering audiences an inventive, high-energy fusion of live music and tap dance. Tickets are discounted for students, and available at www.nextstagearts.org.

Together, these events offer a rare opportunity to experience Subject:Matter's collaborative, rhythm-driven artistry — from an open, community-centered jam, to a polished performance that bridges the company's past, present, and emerging work.

This residency is supported by South Arts' Jazz

Yosemite Firehouse gets its wreath —

CHESTER, Vt. — The last town-owned public building in Chester to be decorated for the Christmas holiday season this year is the historic Fire District No. 2, known as the Yosemite Firehouse, on Depot Street. For years, Chester Townscape has decorated the town's public buildings and central locations with a variety of greens, berries, and cheery red bows to welcome in the holiday season. At last, the Yosemite Firehouse now sports a beautiful big wreath between its south-facing windows, as well as a greens-filled barrel beside its sliding doors, to testify to the importance of the building.

These decorations continue Chester Townscape's efforts to beautify the town for residents, businesses, and visitors. They also signify the ongoing efforts of the town to care for its resources, and the efforts of the town and Friends of the Yosemite Firehouse Museum to rehabilitate the historic building into a future fire museum to honor Chester's history.

Assistant Chester Fire Chief Mark Verespy hangs the wreath high above the sliding doors of the Yosemite Firehouse Museum.
